"Willing to Work" Replies

In Reply to "Work's Reward and Sloppy Clothes"

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:—

Because people are poor and on relief they don't have to take insults from our present Mayor. No wonder the man took as if ready for the cemetery. They are worried and weak and half nourished and so about in rags simply because they can't get the clothes. If our Mayor would do for the unemployed as our past Mayor Mr. George Tice did, provide clothes for the unemployed and pay them, I'm sure the taxpayers wouldn't complain about slowness. If they were to walk in a few of our unemployed homes and see how they are situated they would say "Give them work, pay them normal wages and let them rise. Men can't shave without blades and without money to buy them with or buy clothes to keep them in decent shape. Remember we are human and have a soul and are sensitive as well as our present Mayor. We pay our rent when we get our wages as long as we are able. So why should the taxpayer complain and the Mayor come at us through the taxpayer. Why is the taxpayer complaining the title. Thank you, Mr. Editor for your valuable space in your paper, plain about slowness. If they were to walk in a few of our unemployed

'Be Proud of Your Race Origin' Jews Advised by Dr. Lewisohn

Says Jewry Took Downward Step With Napoleon's Hard Bargain—When Allegiance Was Foreworn

Detroit, Feb. 22—(CP)—From the time of Napoleon to the present day Jewry has failed to gain what it has forever sought—common respect as a people, Dr. Lewisohn, writer and lecturer, told nearly hundred people at the Congregation B'Nai Moshe last night.

When Napoleon drove his hard bargain, allowing Jews equality before the law in France provided they forswore allegiance to any one or anything that was not Jewry took a fatal downward step, Dr. Lewisohn said.

All nations since then have treated Jews in much the same manner as regarding them as something that could not be avoided—and the broken spirit of the race today is the result, he added.

He said his message to Jews was to be proud of their origin and race, to share in the good works of the world.

Chris Ahlberg, visiting a neighbor, chanced to look out and saw Mrs. Fryer. He brought her to shelter.

It was a pleasure for a good many of us in the rural section to hear the voice of one of our old boys who was born at Moira giving an address over the radio, and we refer to Mr. J. O. LAWYER TRIES TO TRICK BRUNO

Bruno Falsa And Grips Bars As He is Shown Chair

Trenton, N.J., Feb. 21 (AP)—Governor A. Harry Moore, "more convinced than ever" by Bruno Richard Hauptmann's silence the Lindbergh kidnap-slaying is still unswerving in pressed his investigation of the crime today.

The withdrawal of Samuel S. Leibowitz, New York criminal lawyer, from participation in Hauptmann's defense activities, and statements indicating Leibowitz believes Hauptmann is guilty, have not influenced the Governor's view of the case, he said last night.

The Governor said he has made no plans for another reprieve for Hauptmann. Unless there is a reprieve, Hauptmann will go to the electric chair the week of March 30.

Hauptmann himself, his chief counsel, C. Lloyd Fisher said, is fully aware of the hopelessness of his situation but is still in good physical and mental condition.

Tries To Trick Hauptmann

Fisher said he had written and would like to question Dr. John F. Condon, the Jafsie of the ransom negotiations, about his reported statement he was offered $250,000 to change his testimony and to explain purported discrepancies in his story. He said he has received no reply.

"If it is necessary to ask the Attorney General to get Dr. Condon back here, I will," Fisher said. Condon is in Panama.

Leibowitz, in his last visit to Hauptmann's cell, used a variation of an old third-degree trick to try to frighten Hauptmann and persuade him "to tell the whole truth", it was discovered yesterday.

Leibowitz ordered a guard to make Hauptmann visualize the nearby electric chair, when he locked the cell block by a door. How he did it was disclosed when Leibowitz was present at the interview Wednesday.

Guards removed the screen from Hauptmann's cell as he pointed to Room 13 in Governor's mansion. Then he moved to the door of the execution chamber, locked through a peep hole and asked a guard casually if that was the chair he saw.

The person who received these happenings said Hauptmann paled and gripped the bars. He shivered and sighed and for a moment lost control. But he quickly recovered. Leibowitz's plan had failed.

Crime Labratory Traps Young Man

New York, Feb. 21—The use of a silver nitrate solution to develop fingerprints on two extortion notes and a study of the notes by a handwriting experts helped to trap Andrew Athanasiads, 22 years old, of 1966 West 177th Street, the other day.

After an eighteen-day investigation by city detectives in which the secret of the crime research laboratory played an important part, Athanasiads, also known as Joseph Athens, was arrested early in the day and charged with writing extortion notes to Morris Sarnoff, brother of David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America. He will be arraigned in Federal Court today charged with violating the Lindbergh Law.

According to the police, the prisoner admitted writing the notes after he was confronted with the evidence developed by the crime research laboratory. His fingerprints corresponded, they said, with fingerprints brought out on the notes by the use of silver nitrate and the specimens of his handwriting corresponded with the handwriting in the notes.

Mr. Sarnoff, who has an office at 270 Madison Avenue, received the first note on Feb. 1 threatening him with harm unless he paid $500 to the writer, who signed himself "Joe Athens." The letter was directed to Mr. Sarnoff in care of his brother's office in the R. C. A. building, and was forwarded to the Madison Avenue address. Police said that apparently the writer believed that Morris Sarnoff was president of the Radio Corporation.

Mr. Sarnoff called in the police, and in accordance with their directions, he sent a dummy envelope to the caller of the building at 666 West 178th Street, which had been designated in the extortion note as the place for payment. The police watched the building, but no one came for the envelope.

Mr. Sarnoff received another note on Feb. 7 demanding $1,000 and again the trap was set, although the second note warned that if Mr. Sarnoff notified the police, "I'll see you first." No one came for the second dummy envelope, but subsequent police investigation in the apartment building developed that Athanasiads, who formerly lived there, had sometimes shortened his name to "Joe Athens." Police discovered his new address was at 653 West 177th Street, where he lived with his parents, and after watching the apartment for some time arrested him yesterday.

Hepburn Forbids "Joy Rides" on T.&N.O. Private Car

Toronto, Feb. 22.—(CP)—Premier Hepburn issued orders prohibiting use of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway wave to business purposes only and it must not be operated on any other railway than this Ontario Government owned line.

The Premier's order follows charges by Leopold Macauley (Conservative, York South) in the Legislature yesterday that one car had been used for golf game in Jasper Park, Alta., last September.

Mr. Hepburn disclosed receipt of a report from Arthur Kennard, General Manager, stating Car M had been used by himself and his wife for a 19 day trip to the Pacific Coast. Mr. Kavanagh said the trip was to "familiarize himself with the Western lines of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways which he had not seen before.

If the cars are taken off the road for "joy rides," Mr. Hepburn threatened, there would be a complete shake-up.

MUSIC

This morning story of artists who will be in Belleville this week-end, Friday, February 21, to Sunday, February 2.

By Augustus Bridle

Muldoon and Godden went to the Maritimes for the first two-piano concert tour ever planned in Canada; playing this week and next in Halifax, Moncton, Truro, Yarmouth, Sydney, Truro and Truro, Nova Scotia. They had never played before and only used sheet; little white-lighted lamps in the rows of Canada's great concert halls, more than the England; music-loving places where most of the personal music is from the Steel Home pianos of Toronto, and many players of artists coming through from the Old Country. With them, duly organized, go a pair of Steel Home grand pianos, especially selected by these peripatetic connoisseurs of keyboard touch and dynamic; and the travelling Steels, with the concerts, are the head of the Boring department in the Toronto shop, to see that these temperamental "grands" are duly keyed up to enharmonic changes of climate, program changes and train journeys.

Never heard of a Canadian pianist travelled "en suite" with a piano? These piano-pals of Toronto had recently returned from a Western tour, playing in Winnipeg, Regina, Saskatoon, Calgary, Edmonton, Vancouver, Victoria and Cincinnati. Playing in Cook's Tour of towns, they had a delightful time playing to good audiences. Scarcely a town on the Canadian Pacific Railway system but could have good concert grands or pianos. The Toronto pianos, as they travelled to towns with no Canadian grands, found themselves handicapped with old-style actions, and had made any flash fugue sound like the Five Dukes of Hazzard. Some of the pianos were one piano only was available. A second one had to be shipped from Cincinnati—a hybrid from Cincinnati—or else a Toronto Grand. Or, in any synthesis the pair, but finally gave it up. Muldoon and Godden, the Toronto group on the program, decided to "double" the Grand Piano, and to be the key that refused to play. Muldoon, tuning between solos and virtuosity, and Godden, whose soldiers in the war were the Royal Canadian Engineers, they transposed the piece on sight and "doubled" it by ear, and it was a date. And that's a little harder to do than to transpose into F sharp. Just the same, they made a hit, and the audiences never knew the difference.

There will be no such picnics in Mendelssohn Hall, Steinway Hall or all American town these Toronto pianists are to have a team of good pianos to choose from.

Frances James, distinguished Canadian soprano, is appearing with the Toronto Trio at the Concert Club Rooms in Copper Cliff, Ont., March 2nd. The trio, which recently played in Timmins, Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie, is under the management of the Canadian Concert Association and has just completed a series of five radio programs, is preparing for another Toronto recital this spring.

Second Program of 3 Plays Presented at Drama Festival Of Quinte Secondary Schools

Mr. Stavrakis Bassett as Adjudicator Offers Valuable Comment

STAFF IS PRAISED

Impressing on all dramatic groups the importance of making the characters portrayed, really live, Mr. Stavrakis Bassett, adjudicator, concluded the second evening's program of the Quinte Secondary School Drama Festival with comments on the plays presented by Moira Secondary, Trenton Collegiate Players and the Albert Players of this city, and stressed the importance of the actor to aspire to a place on the amateur stage.

"It is the object of all players to bring the work of the author or playwright into action," said the adjudicator. "The same thing is true of music. The composer places on paper a number of signs which are of little meaning save to the expert who can hear music as he reads it. So the ordinary person, understanding and appreciation of music come only with his performance. Exactly the same thing is true of the play. Performances must be expressed to the audience the message of the author and that is conveyed only by making the characters really live. Unless we do this it would be far better to let the audience read the play and let them read it for themselves."

Aids to Groups

Mr. Bassett who was introduced by Friday evening's audience by Mr. Douglas Newby gave a fine and searching criticism of the evening's presentations. As those of the previous evening, his comments were helpful to give assistance to the various groups and all had much to learn from the experience and study that Mr. Bassett has given to the drama.

The Worthwhile plays were presented throughout the entire festival and the Bay of Quinte district leads, as far as is known this festival movement in which drama competitions flourish. Members of the committees in charge, particularly Miss Merry of the Belleville Collegiate staff who originated the idea, are to be congratulated for fostering this movement.

Last evening's offerings included "The Great Dark" by Pan Tolford presented by the Albert Players under the direction of Miss Jessie Mae Wills. This play will be given at the Kingston regional drama festival of the Dominion competitions, next week. A Canadian play, "Brothers In Arms" by Merrill Denison was chosen by the Napanee Collegiate Players and was directed by Miss Pike, while the Trenton Collegiate Players, directed by Allan McIntosh presented "The Stoker" by Harold Brighouse.

Work Behind Scenes

Special reference was made by the adjudicator of the excellent work done behind the scenes. The stage manager, electrician and crew earned high praise for the smoothness of the stage mechanics. There were no waits, scene changes were quickly done and no property was missing for any play. Mr. Bassett said he was specially impressed by the fact that the stage manager in his very difficult task had evidently succeeded in giving entire satisfaction as he heard not one word of complaint.

The Quest Dark

Mr. Bennett said the scene arrangement of "The Great Dark" was effective, though he found the fire a little too light, which he would have toned down. The stage setting also struck him too soon to be impressive, for he thought it would have been improved by waiting and letting the curtain rise on a rumbling sound. The grouping of the characters was splendid, he said, as he cited the reaction to the explosion which led to the grouping at the window. When Rachel Clegg came in, he thought she was a little too old, and should have picked sooner for a place on which to put the plate or food. The part of Rachel Clegg as played by Miss Muriel Vermilyea) was a well conceived character. He found that the play is written in the Lancashire dialect, and agreed that where the characters were true to that it was better not to use it. Mrs. Lomax (played by Mrs. Smith) should have seemed too polite to suit the lines of her part, particularly the result of her speaking in dialect. When one is playing in a play written in dialect, he said that the dialect in which it is written, the actors should endeavor to speak as one who spoke should convey the meaning satisfactorily. Rachel Clegg (Estelle Mar, played by Miss Vermilyea) only did not have the far-away look, during the scene when she was down in the mine. The impression was that she was too much in the room. Mrs. Lomax (Mildred Lloyd) seemed to the adjudicator a little too conventional in her stage attire.

Some of the direction was outstanding. The exquisite feelings Mrs. Yates and Rachel and the women was well done, the positions being well-conceived for the conflict. Each group was on its proper side, there was rightly no mixing up of the opposing forces.

He noted that Mrs. Yates appeared to be too studied. He liked did not seem to come from the heart.

Pace in drama is important, there should be an increase in pace for each climax, for pace and climax are closely connected. First one must find the climax of a play, then strive to accentuate it. This gives life and dales. There is climax in each character which must not be the same as the climax of the play. Each character has to find that and also the subclimax of the character. The subclimaxes of character and the climaxes of the different characters are like the waves of the sea, wave after wave which must be held and beautiful. He is built up the rhythm of the play each sub-climax urging on towards the climax.

In this play quite a number of them were lost, he found. In the climaxes the pace was not increased. The movement "It's Late" should have been held. He suggested that Mrs. Yates should have walked to the Bible and touching it said "It's Late" instead of saying "It's Late" and then touching the Bible.

Mrs. Ryan's entrance did not seem convincing. Why he did not know as the work of this actress in Canada he had been the convincing all the way through. She was rather pale for the character.

The last scene between the two characters Rachel Clegg and Mrs. Yates after the discovery that Mrs. Yates' husband was dead in the mine disaster was clean-cut. The emotion was not felt by them, for emotion must come from the heart. Rachel in the play convinced him that they had felt this emotion, but he did not. Some of the characters did not have enough of "what is going on inside". It is not necessary that the character be saying what is in himself, but what he is thinking of, and that must be imparted upon the audience. According to Mendelssohn it is far more important to bring to the audience that unspoken dialogue which expresses the thoughts of the playwright. The unspoken dialogue is called paraphrasing by actors. Mr. Bennett advised the young players to study what is in the thought at the back of the mind. He knew he was being a little supercritical but it was not that he thought the play a perfect nor good for it was good, but he felt that the play needed more care and thought. The play should be read over and over again and then freed, not acted, "because people for acting, I want them to live," he remarked.

"Brothers in Arms"

Mr. Bennett first pointed out that Major Brown did not show enough irritability. Instead, he fidgeted and thus did not give the impression of irritability needed to build up the climax. Mrs. Brown had a very good voice, very, with great carrying power. She gave a good characterization throughout the play. The character of Charlie was too similar to Sid's. This was a mistake and the contrast would have been better. The scene was good, although the fire did not look "fresh like" (with freshness). He thought out and whether he went too far with it in the matter of emotion but the adjudicator felt—that she was many overlooked this part as she really to take anything to the way of "business". Sid should have made his pose and his mouth would have let it fall on the floor. Sid had the right pace and sustained it through the play, however entirely to his role. A point to be remembered by comedians was to wait for the laughter to die down. Just the opposite was true in tragedy for if a tiller were heard in the audience the players must quickly take up the lines never let it die. One or two times the characters took their pace from Sid. This was wrong. In their scene with the Major and Mrs. Brown went too far tug-stage. Although the play was very well done.

The Stoker

The fault in this play was a lack of tenseness. The English was not made up old enough to be convincing although the boy conveyed just the bearing. Mr. Howard should have been older. Mr. Hoyt and Mr. Leighton got off to good starts, freedom in their relation as shipboard friends. The fist-fight scene, which at first was too large for portraying a calm on a ship. Overcrowding would have made more sensible. Mr. Hoyt should not have walked backwards. The Rise of the play did not seem as though they were being thought out by the players and this is the most important thing. The stoker was not dramatic enough. His lines should be heightened. Mr. Leighton really to give intensity and bitterness. The action of throwing coal lacked sincerity. To give the play the intensity it required it should have run more rapidly. At least one should have received the impression that the Stoker was wrought up to the same thing was true of the struggle at the end. The giggle in the audience after the line, "I'm an ex-con here" was natural as it was quite obvious that no such fight as the struggle should have appeared more violent. In struggling, everything must be carefully planned out in one, two, three style, so that each actor knows exactly what to expect from the other. What looks like a very realistic fight is really quite a series of carefully planned movements.

Mr. Bennett at the conclusion of his comments expressed his sincere thanks to the festival committee for the very happy time he had had in Belleville, and for the opportunity afforded him of hearing such very good friends. He wished the groups going on to Kingston every success.

"Don't be too good, though," he laughed. "for I am entering a group in Toronto this year and I'll meet in the finals and that we will fight out our own conflict at Casa Loma."

After the plays the visiting players were entertained at a reception and a dance by the Belleville groups.

Two of Quadruplets Succumb after Birth

Charleston, S.C., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Two of the quadruplets born to a negro couple here died on Friday when they failed to respond to incubator treatment.

The quadruplets were born yesterday in a hovel near here and were rushed to a hospital by Dr. Leon Banov, County Health Officer. The babies arrived under the administrations of a midwife. They were not weighed, but Banov estimated their combined weight at about twelve pounds.

World Day of Prayer

There are always some folk who listen for the beginning of things. This is in answer to a question raised. The World Day of Prayer is held yearly on the 1st Friday after Ash Wednesday, the first day of the Lenten season, which this year falls Feb. 28th. The program will be practically the same in every country. The theme is, "On Earth Peace, Goodwill Towards Men," prepared by Senorita Laura Brunet, of Santiago, Chile. Special participation is being given to the young people's gatherings, which may include the program, in whole or part, at their regular group meetings. It is compiled by Miss C. Mary Hill, M.A., Christ Church Secretary of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, the theme being "Lead Us, O Father in the Paths of Peace." This is a fine program, and it is the hope of the committee that the youth of the country will meet in large numbers for prayer and meditation.

The World Day of Prayer has grown to something so great and far-reaching that pen fails in attempting to picture its wonders and its powers—before things are wrought by prayer."

Than this world dreams of in terms of labor!

In U.S.A. the Federation of Women Boards of Foreign Missions which had previously held separate prayer meetings, have together in this year. Years later, the Missionary Boards of Canada were approached with the idea of a United Missionary Conference. Interdenominational Women's Day of Prayer for missions to be held March 1, 1935. The decision was unanimous. In 1936 the number increased greatly. Beginning in New Zealand at sunrise, the women of the world pray in relay for one day. Then the sun sets and globe is completed with the dawning, forty hours later, as the sun rises again in Honolulu. The day will be observed in Hastings County, including Belleville, full details of the meeting will be given previous to Feb. 28th.

MASTERS IN THE ART OF CLEANING

The Library Corner

"Facing two ways" is a happy choice of title for an autobiography by Baroness Shidzue Ishimoto, who has lived in Japan and the occidentals of life in Japan today. Daughter of a samurai family, trained with all the ritual and ceremony that characterized the old Japan, both through her marriage to a Japanese Viscount, a disciple of the famous Prince Ito, and prominent figure in the movement of progressive reform. Her childhood and youth are described with the delicate charm of an exotic blend of moonlight and keen knowledge. With her marriage, the narrative changes. The 15-year-old bride, carefully nurtured, moved with her husband to a little mining town where he had secured a position as an engineer. Here, for the first time, she came to grips with life that was stripped to the simple needs of sleeping, eating and working. Two years of this life served as a preamble to the development of the girl from a social and political conscience and the will to express it. Then the young husband made use of an opportunity to visit the United States, studying at Columbia and spending his industrial relations. She in possession of a child, and faith control, with stenography and typewriting to fall back upon. In the first part of this book, she writes of the great part that women have played in Japan's social and economic scene, and especially of the women's movement.

Geoffrey Gorer, a newcomer in the group of modern artists of which Henry Moore, Evelyn Waugh, Peter Fleming and others, has written a book which is well acquainted with Bengo, a famous negro dancer who has been explaining a tour of West Africa to study native dances in the various districts, and has now left being back a black ballet. The book is an account of his 18 months' indoor trip through the English and French colonies in West Africa.

Furthermore, a record of the manners and customs, government and religion of the primitive people and racial character of the negro. Gorer, who knows Bengo well, has been, the Cambodians dance more subtly, more dramatically than the far as I have seen their range is limited, and their technique small compared with the negroes. Africans have only one art, but to what an extent. Art, therefore, is their first and last African dance."

The Carnegie Corporation has donated a small volume comprising the memorial addresses given at Colgohouse, Irvine, and other tributes to the memory of Andrew Carnegie, whose centenary was celebrated on November 25, 1935. The book includes letter of public libraries throughout the United States and Canada. Many of these public libraries as the best agencies for improving the lot of the people because they give something for nothing. They are free, and they help themselves. They never pauperize. They reach the aspiring, and open to them the doors of culture and the world, those stored up in books. A taste for reading drives out lower tastes...I prefer the free public library to any of the many other agencies for the happiness and improvement of the community.—E.J.A.

Germinated Barley A Diabetes Specific

Toronto—A substance akin to insulin, which may prove useful not only in diabetes but also in other ailments, has been obtained from germinated barley by two French scientists, Drs. Leo Lubbe and H. Labbe of the Faculty of Medicine of Paris.

Insulinoids of germinated barley (J. O. B. Orge Germe) is the name Dr. Labbe gave the substance in his report to the Canadian Medical Association, which published here.

Valuable as insulin is, Dr. Labbe points out, it has certain disadvantages and must be used only under the careful guidance of a physician. For this reason, almost as soon as it was found, several Canadian scientists tried to find whether certain substances in the tissues of the animal pancreas, had the power to secrete substances with properties like those of insulin but which would at the same time be less dangerous to handle and easier to manipulate."

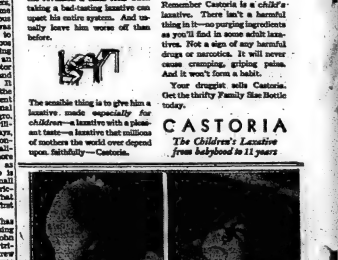
Dr. Labbe's own first to work on this problem was Professor J. B. Collip of McGill University, Montreal, who discovered the hormone parathormone". In vegetable tissues Dr. Labbe found the active effects of various plant extracts, among them were Lucerne tea and bean pod extract.

The barley insulinoids prepared by Dr. Labbe and his colleagues were tried on animals and human patients in hospitals and by physicians in the Hospital Saint-Louis of Paris. In all cases the preparation reduces the high sugar content of the blood and relieves the glycosuria which is the chief reports. The use, he declares, seems to be harmless, and the fasting coma for underweight patients.

"Of course," he adds, "only long experience will tell if, while being much less dangerous to handle than insulin, insulinoides and particularly Nos 12, 2, 3, will produce as good and continuously the desired effects in the recovery of the general nutrition."

Is it fair to the child to make him take a laxative that nauseates him?

Common-sense says No. Doctors say it can be dangerous. For the revolting taste of child facts when taking a bad-tasting laxative can upset his entire system. And usually leave him worse off than before.



The sensible thing is to give him a laxative made especially for children—a laxative that's gentle, yet tastes—a laxative that millions of mothers the world over depend upon. faithfully—Castoria.

Remember Castoria is a children's laxative. There isn't a harmful drug in it—no purging ingredients as you'll find in some adult laxatives. Not a sign of any harmful drugs or narcotics. It will not cause cramping, griping pains. And it won't form a habit.

Women Over Forty Need have no fear

The much talked of change which comes at about this time of life is too greatly emphasized as a danger period. True there is for a time a drain on the nervous system. Then may be felt a sense of tension and a disposition to be irritable and moody.

It is a time to avoid excesses and too much excitement and over fatigue. It is essential that the blood be kept rich and the nervous system fully nourished. For this reason Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is of almost priceless value at this time. You need have no fear for the future, for to the great majority of women the change of life passes with the happiest of their lives.

It is surprising the number of women who attribute the safe passing of this period and the good health and happiness of succeeding years to the use of this nerve food.

IN MEMORIAM

REID—In loving memory of a dear brother and uncle, who entered into rest, John Henry Reid, May 31, 1925.
And Annie Reid, Feb. 21, 1935.
As we loved you,
So we miss you,
In our memory you are dear,
God loved them before we knew,
And He calls we are hard to obey
So he gently closed their eyelids,
And whispered, peace be still.
—Sadly missed by Family.

MARION WOOD ALTEA—In loving memory of my mother who passed away three years ago today.
Sweetest memories are dear,
Tokens of pearl and gold,
Sacred thoughts I treasure of them.
We knew and loved of old.
Their voices full of calm delight
Blend through the radiant air—
Sweet memories, sweet memories!
Our hearts are with them always!
—Ina Hurst and Sister, Tompkins. 122-21

STRONG — In sad and loving memory of our dear son who passed away fifteen years ago, Feb. 22nd, 1921.
The years glide on and on,
Smiles we cherished have faded away,
Those hands always so willing
Are resting so peacefully today.
The heart that loved us fondly,
How sweet their memory still,
Gone, but not from memory's page
This world can never fill.
—Sadly missed by Sons and daughters. 122-21

EGGS HIGHER AT 33 CTS. PER DOZ.

Bright weather and plentiful offering of fresh produce of all kinds resulted in a large Saturday market at the city market. Many shoppers of both sexes concluded what may be the season's top price. Extra specials with 200 average weight per dozen of fresh eggs at 33 cents. Others were being offered at from 32 to 33 cents per dozen. Butter was steady from 29 to 30 cents and pulled a lengthy line of prints at 30 cents each. Cold weather and less production is responsible for the increase in eggs. "Heroes were paying 35 cents the dozen last week," explained one vendor.

Fruit, especially oranges, were plentiful, selling at 60 to 70 cents per dozen, with the exception of the single bird, with an average of $1.80 per pack. A few choice boxes at from $1.10 to $1.35. Butter remained firm as the unit used was 30 cents, although in some cases 35 cents the two-pound roll was being asked.

Ready Sale of Apples.

Apples were one of the chief offerings on the outside market found readily sale. McIntosh were being offered at $1.50 per bushel, Spies, Greens at $1.50 bushel, or 40 cents per peck. Pears were retailing at 25 cents the pack. In the staple lines of vegetables, turnips were offered at 60 cents the bushel; parsnips 60 cents the bushel; smaller offerings of onions at from 40 to 60 cents a peck. Potatoes were few, selling from $1.25 to $1.40 per bushel.

Fresh fish, the first of the season from local waters in any quantity, was offered in the market today, owing to their scarcity, small fry were selling at 15 cents the dozen and sunfish at 15 cents the pound. Fresh pickerel fillets have been offered, "Perch are very scarce; they're still in the deep water and haven't shown much of themselves yet. Most of them can't understand their actions lately," said a veteran local fisherman vendor.

Plenty of wood was featured with little change in prices noted. Dry hard wood was offered at the same price of the week end with soft wood brought a blockade at 94 for males and 66 for females.

Board Room Gossip

Ontario Gold Producers.

Ontario gold mines produced 96,-110,571 worth of the yellow metal in January, an increase of more than $800,000 over the output for the same month of last year. Tonnage milled totalled 908,243 as against with 868,476 in January of 1935.

The metal came from 21 mills serving 11 properties. Two recently added to the Northwestern Ontario list recently, and the January output from the district reached $672,076 as against $535,445 in the same month of last year.

The Kirkland Lake district led in production last month by a narrow margin over the Porcupine district.

According to Toronto reports, Mackenzie continues to add to its work on the 2,950 foot level, the lowest in the mine; several veins are now at this level and the ore is said to be showing better values than on the 2,800 foot level.

Gold Lake Mines.

According to T. C. Anderson, president of Gold Lake Mines, and Anglo Huronian Company and W. O. Pitcher, of Gold Lake Mines, there was an agreement whereby they will take over control of the Gold Lake Mine property in the Rice Lake area of Manitoba. The above two companies are also said to be interested in options formerly held by P. Hopkins, Winnipeg financier.

Fate of Canada "A".

The fate of the strength in Pact of Canada "A" shares is interpreted to mean that another interim dividend declared by the Pact is forthcoming. It was expected that the company would declare a dividend before this time, but so far, pressure of business of the tariff conference at Ottawa, no announcement has been made.

Thank You Sheet An Appreciation.

Hollinger Consolidated made net profits of $5,000,000 in the year 1935, according to indications at this time. Dividends paid in the year amounted to $3,000,000 and there remained $2 per share. Ore reserves are expected to show an increase above 7,000,000 tons, which is valued at around $40,000,000. Hollinger's investment company, Hollinger Securities, at $2,532,000 in May, 1934, is now said to have a value of over $5,000,000.

The duration of the prevailing bull market is difficult to forecast for the reason that the public is not taking part in security purchases daily. The heartening feature however is that many purchases are not being made on the "shoestring" margins which would seem to indicate that the market is in a wide open break. At the same time there are many solid men who are hoping for a setback which in their opinion would prevail in the event of a reaction.

It is superfluous to comment on the possibility of a reaction, but the section of the board is coming in for considerable attention. Specialized issues as leaders. A construction company would be better than the best policy for the time being.

In connection with Power Corporation, it would be better to bind that the appreciation in the company's portfolio is more important to shareholders that actual earnings. The equity holding in Canada is around $30 a share at the present time, the highest it has been in many years. Many investors looking for the investment-trust type of security have been accumulating Power Corporation common from 17 up.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Fresh eggs arriving in the city yesterday sold at prices 1-2c to 1c per dozen under levels prevailing the previous week, but the lower buy but buyers were holding off operations, anticipating a heavier receipts next week and possibly easier prices. Trade was quiet over the weather moderates. On the butter market a certain tone prevailed, although trading was on a small scale. There seemed little pressure from either producers or dealers to force speculation. Traders were still looking for a sharp spurt in prices, but no business for export has been done as yet, although the margin between prices here and those of export market levels has been pretty wide for some time. Cheese and potatoes and poultry were steady. Following are the prices in the city of trade for the day as 750 cases of eggs, 1,764 boxes of butter and one car of potatoes arrived.

Redmen in Third Round as Campbellford Defeated 8-5 in Home Game, 15-7 on Round

Goals Gave Much Better Display Than in Home Encounter

PLAY QUITE ROUGH

Expected Belleville Will Meet Whitby In Next Series

Completing their rivals in every department, showing more speed and finesse, the Belleville "Redmen" advanced into the third round of the Intermediate O.H.A. series by defeating the Campbellford Tigers by victory on an 8 to 5 count in the Campbellford rink last night and a subsequent 7 to 2 win on the home ice here last night to give them the second round play-off by the combined score of 15 to 7. The Campbellford boys put up a substantial goal advantage they had piled up and counted in to set the pace early. The Maroons threw caution to the winds and from the opening whistle started in a last ditch effort to whittle down the goal advantage enjoyed by the visitors but with little avail as the Redmen proved too fleet-footed and their poised defensive system backed by fine goal tending and numerous heavy body-checks were methodically applied by the visitors to halt the efforts of the Campbellford sharpshooters. In fact, nothing ran right for the latter during the entire game but on the breaks of fortunefly marred the match which developed into a rough affair as the "Redmen" went on the rampage for Referee Jack Ramsay on the attack with three minor penalties, two of which were for roughing, while Earl McDonald, Harry Morgan and Jimmy Lambert were banished for the remaining two minutes of the game. Despite the absence of St. Louis, McGuire and Harry Morgan, all three of whom were sidelined with injuries, the Redmen were able to put on a smooth working attack which proved too much for the Tigers to solve and Carl Morgan starring in the nets was equal to the occasion when he made the majority of his saves. Thomas scored four of St. Louis, McGuire and Harry Morgan's goals between them while Jack Burgess and Lancaster Allen playing their first game for the Redmen this season, were also credited with counters. Ken McGrath filled in ably as an alternate defenceman when called upon.

The Play.

Belleville opened hostilities with a determined offensive attack that carried the play into Campbellford's end and opened the scoring early in the first minute of play when Carl caught the loose puck from Lambert and drove it hard to the net for the first goal. MAIDEN VOYAGE

BY KATHLEEN NORRIS

INSTALMENT 1.

While she waited Antoinette remained standing; she was nervous and excited now, and seemed unable to stand. The little outer office was dim and vacant, cool in the rainy April morning; it smelled of damp and tar. Except for herself, standing by her registered letter and small valise, and the wraith of smoke at the high dirty window, there was nobody in the room.

There had been an inky shabby boy—Antoinette, in a shift for herself for him idling at the bailiwicked desk—but he had disappeared through the last-propped shabby street door marked "Editor. Private." Through the frosted glass pane of the San Francisco Journal of Commerce and Shipping Antoinette Tait was waiting to see him.

Rain was falling in very sheets. Traffic crashed and hooted on Montgomery street out of sight; electric cars hummed along their tracks. Nothing of this was visible from the windows.

The boy returned; Mr. Bellamy would be free in a moment. Antoinette sat down, her heart beating fast, and perforce looked about the black shiny-new waiting-room of the Journal. Antoinette had set waiting in many such rooms in these last hard months. She knew their details well. Here was the same decorated walls, their worn linoleum floors, their high dusty windows.

Today the steadily falling rain provided only more interest, more and uncertainty to her mood which was all shadow and unreverence. Antoinette knew that she also reflected that nobody in his senses would give a girl a job this morning like this.

"If he's go 'in now?" the boy said. Antoinette got gradually. In her heart, she said, "Mr. Bellamy told him to do that!" but she waited five minutes. Had Just to make himself important.

But when she stepped into the editor's office she revised her opinion. There was a big, handsome, in a cafe an tall raincoat in the revolving chair opposite that of Lawrence Bellamy.

"I wish, you'd let me read you our figures," the latter was saying exaggeratingly, rising as Antoinette came in.

"I won't!" said Mr. Bellamy.

"Say I leave you my card!" ventured the visitor.

"Sure!" the editor agreed. Antoinette saw the older man, falling in his last glance at her card. "Miss Tait!" he said, and the tall Antoinette merely nodded he tucked the card in a big hand smugly. "Funny thing," he said, "I thought it was Tait Baldwin."

"They're all good New England names," Antoinette said with a slight effort to seem friendly and at ease.

"Your people from Boston?"

"My father's people. But his father came 'round the Horn in forty-nine." Antoinette went through the usual little story smilingly. She was still terrified of the editor, but the sound of her own voice was rather less frightening than most of them.

He was dark, his brown face thin, his equiline large nose gave a sort of aristocratic distinction to his face. Even though he was small, Antoinette knew that he was strong, his hands were big and lean, his mouth large, his smile wide. He was in an untidy tumble and he worn gear.

"Job, eh?" he began. Antoinette only smiled deprecatingly. "What experience have you had?"

"Not much — on newspapers. I did the social column for the Bellets for two months, before all the stuff. They had someone in the office just like mine."

"Then what? Fired?"

"They blamed Stannard — my friend, who got me into it — came back from her vacation."

"And you don't work just over did?"

"Oh, hh," Antoinette smiled ruefully. "I've done lots of other things," she continued, "I was in the Mercantile Library for a year, and then in Younger's book store, perhaps my older sister."

"I know Paul Younger well," Mr. Bellamy said, with what seemed to be characteristic musing irrelevance. "Nice fellow — dresser, but that's all right. Now, what's work there?"

"Don't! Probably her because she's tall and dark, and she wears her hair—" Antoinette made a gesture. Only always made this impression. Only always made this impression on describing Brenda's crown of braids.

"I know young girl, rather pretty, tailored, turned-down collars; boot twenty-four or -five?"

"That's Brenda. She's really a little older than I am."

"Just the two of you?"

"Two sisters and Bruce."

"Mother and father?"

"No, we've been two years ago. But my aunt, Mrs. Ellis, lives with us."

"And you think you'd like a job on a newspaper? No social stuff on this paper, you know."

"I know. I know, it's a commercial paper. Now was her time to show that like was an up-to-date business girl, full of bright ideas. But Antoinette felt all her self with Brenda's last night and formulated the actual phrases she would use in this interview. Brenda's mother was pretty, fair and dry and the whole thing seemed flat and impractical.

"And you think you'd like a job on a newspaper? No social stuff on this paper, you know."

Now was her time to show that she was an up-to-date business girl, full of bright ideas.

But this is what I was thinking, Mr. Bellamy," she managed to say. "You could, I think, have done a nice page of society news and of things interesting to women; recipes and fashions and a puzzle or two."

"Yes." Her voice was dying into a whisper. Antoinette was conscious of his narrowed smiling look and slowly shaking head. "Not enough, Miss Tait. I'm afraid not. I'm afraid that was always open, and an impersonal view of the city."

Next to this bedroom was the bathroom, dark and dank, with a smell of ammonia and yellow soap on. Friday's dream Antoinett came to clean. Next to this was Meg's room, the best bedroom in the house, small but sunny. Meg had always loved the southern city and Twin Peaks, and shared with the sitting-room next to it the only exposed side of the apartment. No one ever came to Meg's room except when she was ill, so that it reduced the apartment's dirtiest spelling to four rooms. Of these one, on the left of the hall, was a small black hole originally intended for an occasional servant and now used conveniently enough by seventeen-year-old Bruce, who had a very dreamy-looking of broken concerts, nails, tools, radio equipment, guns and stretching frames. Bruce's books, bureau, mingling in casually with his skates and fishing rods, and the tiny kitchen with its daylight upon whose dusty face the rain had begun to patter, belong as Antoinette came in.

Antoinette took and twenty minutes past two. Antoinette made herself a luxurious meal of brown bread and butter, cheese and a saucer of stewed tomato in the lobbot; one cup of coffee went with the others, scrambled an egg in the tomato sauce and presently carried a cup of coffee and the egg to the sitting-room window; found her book. The rain fell and flooded, and the budget, the depressing downtown streets, the condition of the family budget, and all forgot. Antoinette was in London streets, in London clubs and theatres, in London shops, moving through strange and dramatic adventure.

After a while the food was gone and the coffee disappeared from Antoinette's pot her head down on her arms and sat motionless for some fifteen minutes. Then suddenly she sprang up, her book coasting to the floor, and with a long sigh she flipped up on the dresser again, leapt closed and turned it upside down.

Antoinette worked as if whips were driving her. In two minutes the bedroom and came out with two dresses and several pairs of stockings, took a fresh towel from the clean vegetable-scented back porch, rinsed and hung them over chairs. Her electric iron was plugged in and a board brought from the same back porch, which was fortunately spacious and served as a stove.

Antoinette, with characteristic fatal determination to be through with this task before she allowed herself other things and planning in her busy head how to do them, had put the dresses daintily on hangers in the sitting-room, put the clean towels on the bathroom rack, and then had put and it into the sink to give it's a thorough cleaning. Now she was using materials into the kitchen to clean that, and had just returned and mend the split heel of another, and poured a big cup of tea into a pan. It really ought to rise in an old sheet and recover that ironing board — I wonder if there's an old sheet in Aunt Meggy's room?

The window had been left open and Jingle had performed his ironic little trick of coming along the back porch and entering by the door from the fire escape, and so making a leap into his favorite spot in the bed, Aunt Meggy's bed. His green eyes full of conscious bliss met those of Antoinette with utter composure.

There were no signs on the Tait shadowy; they were the eyes of the world, and they were the eyes of the crowd. On the right of the narrow room was that Aunt Meggy always kept before Grandma's picture; violets and lilies of the valley were everywhere.

Yes, and you know you're a bad cat!" Antoinette said grimly as he leaped pasty pear her to the kitchen. She repaired the damage gingerly, but Jingle knew her true mood. Presently she went into the bathroom to wash them, and was in there when Brenda came home a moment later.

"Hillos!"

Brenda, my darling, you're early!" Antoinette kissed her sister affectionately. "Darling, what time is it?" she asked.

"It isn't five yet. But Paul" said Brenda, who usually spoke of her employer thus familiarly, "told us we all could go home!"

"Paul" was as Antoinette, but slenderer, with a certain fastidious delicacy of build and features. Her eyes were blue like Antoinette's but not so deep, and her lashes and silks, for all their differences in coloring, but Antoinette gave an impression of sturdiness and vigor where Brenda was etched in paler outlines and tones. Brenda was twenty-eight; it was as if her bloom had faded in a mist.

"Oh, it's good to get home!" she exclaimed. Presently she found Antoinette in the kitchen, in the midst of activities.

"What on earth are you up to?"

"I did the stockings—oh, and both blouses too—and then I got into the bathroom!"

"And you're cleaning the stove now!"

"Sit down, Barney, and rest; here, take the peas. I'll get out of all this!" Antoinette brought to the confusion her own swift energy and concentration, and the sitting-room, the hot clean dish towels when her aunt came in.

Little Miss Bruce was cramped with the cold; she greeted Antoinette with pleasure as she came into the comfortable warm kitchen.

"You got caught in the rain, Aunt Meggy!"

Straight in it; I should say I did!" scolded Miss Bruce with a pretty show of indignation that disappeared as Antoinette put her head down on her arms and sat motionless for some fifteen minutes. Presently she sprang up, her book coasting to the floor. She hung the dish towels she had rifled rather than walked with it to the sitting-room. Cup, spoons, plate into the dishpan. Jingle was lipped up on the dresser again, leapt closed and turned it upside down.

Antoinette worked as if whips were driving her. In two minutes the bedroom and came out with two dresses and several pairs of stockings, took a fresh towel from the clean vegetable-scented back porch, rinsed and hung them over chairs. Now she was using materials into the kitchen to clean that, and had just returned and mend the split heel of another, and poured a big cup of tea into a pan. It really ought to rise in an old sheet and recover that ironing board — I wonder if there's an old sheet in Aunt Meggy's room?

The window had been left open and Jingle had performed his ironic little trick of coming along the back porch and entering by the door from the fire escape, and so making a leap into his favorite spot in the bed, Aunt Meggy's bed. His green eyes full of conscious bliss met those of Antoinette with utter composure.

Brenda sat on at the kitchen table in a contented dream of pea-shelling. Antoinette, hurrying with her other odds and ends of work with the fastidiority of busy people, Miss Bruce, returning in a practical apron, found a large, checked apron, inspected the kitchen sternly. Presently Antoinette spoke musingly:

"I wonder if someone let's say movie queen—like Jean Arthur or the other sort left—I wonder, if movie queens ever do anything as pleasant as the end of a bleak wet afternoon as to come out to a nice warm kitchen and have the smell of dinner they like to cook!"

This affected Miss Bruce emotionally. Her back was to the kitchen as she filled the kettle at the sink, but her voice was thick with sadness.

"I dunno, Tony, you have a wonderful nature!" she said.

"You flatter me, darling," said charm me, ladies," said Antoinette, with such a smart gist that she left her oven door and turning to look over her shoulder. "What have, I done that merits this unexpected testimonial? I have contented myself with a stretch on a yawn. Dinner nearly ready?"

Presently they were at dinner. Tony, sitting at them all, said contentedly. "Isn't anyone going to ask me about the job on the newspaper?"

"I know the minute I saw you that there was nothing doing," Brenda said.

"Nope." Tony said heroically, "nothing doing!"

"Ah, my dear, I'm so sorry!"

"That means," Tony said, sharing into space, playing with her knife, "that I'm back in the old office to-day and every Sunday editor in this city, I've been to the Catholic weekly, the Argonaut and the Monitor, the Saturday Night, the Call weekly and the Argonaut and the Monitor, the Saturday Night, the Call Bulletin, and I'm not destined to enjoy a newspaper career!"

"Kind of." Tony blinked and laughed. "Kind of."

"What'd he say, the Journal man, Tony?"

"Oh, he was nice enough. But he wasn't interested."

"Darling, my father!" Brenda said helping herself to more strawberries.

"Oh, I'm sorry, Tony," Bruce said, stunning young thing, as tall as Brenda, somewhat younger, "I should think, and very much the gentleman!"

"How did he say?"

"He wanted me to get advertisements. I'm a wonder, I'm told, at said mudsling, her elbow on the table, her head resting on her hand. "I wonder if it's horribly hard to get advertisements. Some one must do it, I suppose, and I'm willing to learn, Mr. Bellamy," she mimicked, "I'm willing to learn. Maybe I ought to try it. It would be fun, I suppose."

"It doesn't seem to me the thing for you to do," Miss Bruce began with a decision that sat oddly upon her smallness and frailness.

"Why not, Aunt Meggy?" Tony said; "but it seems so useless to get started. I don't know what I'm fitted to do."

"Anybody home, Cliff here!"

"He's really ship — Barney; he's been sailing to make the break." Tony thought as she wiped and put away. "Barney, Barney. No, he's not. He went to Sacramento."

Barney big bulk slid into the chair that Aunt Meggy, flutteringly left vacant.

"I can't stay," he said half-heartedly.

"You'll come to dinner, Barney," Brenda observed.

"I'd like to very well." He was floundering. Tony's grin had a little malice in it. Bruce had, after a light. There was a silence.

"Barney, Barney, you sat on last, lily, at the wide-opened window with him light. Bruce was nursing sudden pain.

"We can have a light if there's any wood," Tony said practically.

"No, I have to go," Barney said, but did not move.

"Not on a hundred and fifty a month, with a mother like him!" Tony said, with a look at the whole family, and I don't blame him, when I look back at my family life and Tony said. "He's lonely and he likes your food, and he likes to have all circuit-breakers and pole-top what lots with Cliff, and that's all there is to it."

"Tony," Brenda began as Tony left the room, "you haven't had a sat you to marry him?"

Tony laughed, not displeased with the turn the conversation had taken. "Brenda, I wish I knew!" Barney is serious, but he took his relationship very seriously. "I could marry Barney," she said thoughtfully, "and I think it would just be a marriage, Brenda," she burst out after a pause. "It would be—oh, a little apartment somewhere, and being nice to Mrs. Kerr, and agreeing with her that there never was a son like Barney; they can't be seven minutes together without quarreling but that's selfish; here nor there! Aunt Sally'd be pleased — and I suppose you would be. But why should you want me to get married, Beverly?"

"I want you to be happy."

"I couldn't be. And once you're started you can't get out."

"I dare say it's quite different, though, once you're in."

Tony was silent.

"But why not Barney?" the older sister persisted lightly. "Cliff loves him; we all do. We've known him all our lives."

"In the first place he isn't in love with me," Tony said. "In the second, I'm not in the least in love with him and I could be. And last of all, that," she added honestly, "I think he wants me, has it in his mind, anyway, but he will respect some way, and I believe I could marry him and make him a very good wife! But there's no — no romance to that, Brenda. Tony finished in a low tone. "There's no glory. If I were successful at something, if I were a — a — a — reporter, or a photographer, or a lecturer, it'd be different. I'd be with—with style then. I'd feel that I'd been a success at one thing and could be at another. But if I married Barney now it'd be a harbor—I'd be safe, I'd be loved, I'd be just taking care of poor wild Tony, who failed for days and days on newspapers and was fired and wandered all around, and who finally realized that a woman's highest love is that of wife and mother—" she stopped. Her voice trembling.

"It is the happiest life," Brenda said in a slow voice with notes of pain in it. "If you love a man, I'd be added.

"Ah, but you don't. I don't," Tony said. "I know the real thing when I see it. In the newspaper office today, down at the Journal rooms. Bruce, I met a man!"

She stopped. Presently she resumed again a little shamefacedly.

"You'll think I'm crazy, Brenda, but if I say that something—something tremendous happened when this Bellamy upon whom I'd never set eyes before in my life, and saw that was a nearer—nearer—love, than anyone Barney's ever made me feel! He had only to look at me to make me feel silly and cold and shuddery, I know that's absurd!" she hurried on, "but it's something—something's got to happen to me! I've got to be—to be—to be! Just the out of his mouth—it's quite natural large, and the look in his eye—he looks at me as if I were quite a while after he's finished speaking."

"Antoinette Tait!"

"I know. I know how it sounds. I admit that it's supremely silly! I what on earth is an illustration. . . . What on earth is—"

She said the last words on an odd note of fear, for the room about was shrilly ringing.

Jingle, on the narrow hall Brenda's face was a study in varied emotions as she listened to the conversation. Then she hung up, returned, excited, rapturous.

"Oh, Bruce," Brenda gasped Tony rushing back to fall at her sister's knees, "that was Mr. Bellamy!"

"It's the Call! Some Mr. Greenwood of the Call Bendy, he wanted to see me, Bruce cried. Twenty-five a week—twenty-five a week! I'll be the society columnist! Oh, Bendy, you'll help me, you'll help me! I'll be among people who come into the store—I getting getting engagements and parties and everything! Bruce, he sounded so nice! He said he was going to be married soon, and I said I couldn't come tonight — —"

"What is it?" Aunt Meggy here interrupted excitedly from her doorway. Cliff, home and pale and tired, was in the hall doorway. "What's the fuss all about?" he said.

Tony enlightened them ecstatically.

"Oh, Cliff, just as I was despairing that I'd been to the Journal today, and there didn't seem a chance. Just as I was despairing, this Mr. Greenwood telephoned from the Call, and he wants me to gather up all the Society news of the morning . . . and twenty-five a week. Cliff!"

"That's something like," Cliff said with his slow smile.

"Oh, Cliff, I know I can do it," chattered Tony. "And I know I can, Brenda! And Cliff'll help me, and Mrs. Terry!"

"Why do we down now and clean it?" Clifford asked.

"Oh, Cliff, could we? He really did want to see me, because tomorrow's the day he usually has off, and he said I'd have to 'scout around and dig up a lot of news' and that the Sunday page!! He sounded so cute!" Tony said in a rush.

"Get your hat on," said Cliff. "I'll take you down — and I suppose you would be. But why should you want to get married, Beverly?"

"I want you to be happy."

"I dare say it's quite different, though, once you're in."

COMMISSION TO VISIT FACTORIES

Sweeping Inquiry of Textile Industry To Be Made

Ottawa, Feb. 21 (CP)—A one-man Royal Commission today continued preparations for a sweeping inquiry into operation of the Canadian textile industry ordered by the government after temporary closing of a Sherbrooke, Que., rayon plant, allegedly owing to tariff changes effected by the administration.

J. G. McIlraith, Toronto lawyer and joint commission counsel with E. Beauregard of Montreal, yesterday outlined for the benefit of the textile company representatives the phases of the industry he believed should be investigated.

The lanky Toronto attorney said he believed the rights of labor and the consuming public "should receive our first and paramount attention. As the rights of labor are most urgent I tentatively suggest, subject to discussion with those representing the textile industry, that the commission should visit the mills and be in a position to observe the process of manufacture, the treatment of employees, and while visiting these mills hold public hearings for the purpose of giving those interested an opportunity to place facts before the commission."

Mood Is Different Place.

This was taken to mean the commission would hold meetings here, at Sherbrooke, Montreal and possibly other places.

McIlraith said it would be the duty of the commission to determine "how far the burden of protection, which ultimately must be borne by the consuming public, has seen passed on to the workmen employed and how far it has been absorbed by those otherwise interested in the industry."

He said the commission would have to study merchandising of the industry to determine how far the tariff was a protection to production of machines and how far to that of labor.

"We will have to determine," he continued, "to what extent the industry has, enjoying a protective tariff, made profits which have been distributed, whether by payment of large dividends or by other financial re-adjustment, and how far the industry has conserved profits made in times of prosperity for the benefit of the wage-earners and their dependents in time of depression."

B. E. Richmond of Royal Canadian Mounted Police said it was Sunday and suicide.

Eight other children and the widow said there has been no quarrel and the son, Roger, had been quiet.

Dayland is one hundred miles southeast of Edmonton.

Elements Conspire Against Johnson

Washington, Feb. 21—(AP)— The elements appeared today to be conspiring to thwart Walter Johnson's attempt to throw a silver dollar across the Rappahannock River at Fredericksburg, Va., tomorrow in emulation of George Washington's legendary feat.

A broad, smily brightened Representative Sol Bloom's face as he heard a Weather Bureau report the river and the stream may be much broader tomorrow than the 372 feet it measured today.

Strict believers in all George Washington's acts have showered denunciations on the New York representative because he says the father of his country never hoisted the dollar. He says the river measured 1320 or 1420 feet across in those days.

Even if the flood does not occur, Johnson, former baseball king of baseball, is doubtful whether he can make the throw.

Snow and ice are piled high along the banks and the footing is tough.

However, the Fredericksburg Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the experiment, is trying to be overcome that hazard.

"We are building a sort of platform for Johnson," said Fen F. Pitts, President of the Chamber.

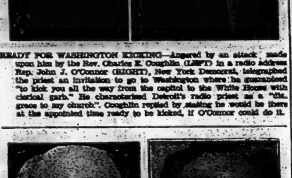
WHERE BORDER DISPUTE AROUSES FAR EAST—Tension between Soviet Russia and Japan created world apprehension as long-standing friction over borders between Outer Mongolia and Manchoukuo came to a head. Hope of a settlement emanated from Moscow, when the Japanese ambassador suggested a frontier commission composed of Mongols, Manchoukuoans, Russians and Japanese to investigate recent border incidents. The Soviet government replied promptly, saying they are trying to provoke incidents to permit penetration into Outer Mongolia in their expansionist program. Soviet officials say that Japanese-Manchoukuoan forces penetrated 13 miles into Outer Mongolia, and that they suffered a series of defeats.

HOOVER IS UR POLITICAL QUESTION—The burning question in U. S. politics of recent months is none other than Ex-President Herbert Hoover, Republican. No one but Hoover knows what he is going to do about the coming presidential elections. But everyone knows he's against Roosevelt's "new deal" and here he is shown in Portland, Oregon, playing FDR, NRA, AAA, etc., with rare abandon. (Note the bust of Abraham Lincoln in background.)



KRADY FOR WASHINGTON KICKING—Angered by an attack made upon him by the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, (LEFT) in a radio address Rep. John J. O'Connor (RIGHT), New York Democrat, telegraphed the priest an invitation to go to Washington where he was guaranteed "to kick you all the way from the capitol to the White House with clerical garb." He characterized Detroit's radio priest as a "disgrace to any church". Coughlin replied he would be glad to kick him at the appointed time ready to be kicked, if O'Connor could do it.

Paraguay, the President's Palace and Dr. Ayala, Deposed President

FASCIST REGIME FOR PARAGUAY!—In a revolution in Paraguay lasting only two hours, army leaders forced the resignation of President Eusebio Ayala, above, and installed as his successor the rabid fascist, Rafael Franco. He had come only two weeks previously—Colonel Rafael Franco. Colonel Franco was the hero of the Chaco war with Bolivia. President Ayala fled to Villa Concepcion, where, it was reported, he was arrested. Colonel Franco had been exiled because he was charged with plotting a revolution. Observers wonder whether the upset means a Fascist dictatorship for Paraguay.

MANUEL AZANA FRANCISCO CABALLERO

12,000 JOBLESS IN NEW YORK RIOTS—Struck on the head with a short police club, this relief worker (TOP) in a dazed condition is stopped in the snow. He was one of the many who fell in the violent clash between 12,000 relief workers and 400 police at Madison Square Park, where the workers massed for a protest parade. (BELOW). They had no permit. Rep. Vito Marcantonio of Harlem district, New York, was badly beaten and arrested when he shouted "forward" to the workers and attempted to lead them through the police lines. Several on both sides were injured.

ORGANIZE "SIT-DOWN" STRIKE IN AKRON—One of the most effective new weapons in the hands of labor, according to officials of the tire and rubber workers of Akron, Ohio, is the "sit-down" strike. Workers do not leave the building, yet just sit by their machines. When new shifts arrive, the "sitting" is continued, while another shift does picket duty outside. At the Goodyear Tire Company plant, "sit-down" strikes have been occurring for several weeks following the layoff orders by the company.

REGINA ALDERMAN AND WIVES MAY BE JAILED—Unparalleled in western criminal court history is the situation in Regina, Sask., where one alderman is already in jail for contempt of court in refusing to testify against himself, as can be demanded under rules of the Saskatchewan Evidence Act, and another may be liable to similar punishment. The wives of the two men may be liable to similar treatment for refusing to testify. Here are the four figuring in a drama which daily sees parades and meetings of hundreds of them. Above, supporters in 50-below-zero weather; floods of petitions to government, and a tenseness not felt since the Dominion Day Riots of 1935. LEFT TO RIGHT, are: Ald. P. J. Mikkelson, in custody because of an attack of inflammatory rheumatism; his wife, Mrs. Mikkelson and Ald. T. J. McManus. The last-named was committed to jail for an indefinite term by Magistrate A. R. Tingley for refusing to testify against Mikkelson on conspiracy charges being brought by a taxpayers' group against both aldermen, unemployed, to unseat them.

HOSPITALIZATION ALLOWANCES CUT

Private Exempt Under Order Effective on March 1st

OTTAWA, Feb. 21.—(CP)— The Canadian Legion will discuss at its March convention at Vancouver, a Dominion Order-in-Council providing for drastic reduction in hospitalization allowances to all war veterans except private.

In a statement last night, J. R. Bowler, General Secretary of the Legion, said the cuts in monthly hospitalization allowances ranged from $6 in the case of married sergeants to $200 for married major-generals.

Bowler said he had already made representations to the Department of Pensions and National Health against some provisions of the order which Pensions Minister Power announced yesterday would be made effective March 1.

The Secretary explained he believed many features of the order were unduly restrictive although he had been assured the government did not intend that they should be.

Fear Abolition.

He mentioned specifically four sections objected to the order. "In the first place" he said "it delegates departmental authority in the hand of the medical service. We feel that departmental responsibility should be retained. While we are given to understand there was no intention of departing from this principle, nevertheless, we feel the language employed is susceptible of no other construction.

He said many of the proposed changes were unduly restrictive in connection with government service which actually "is not considered sufficiently generous."

Bowler named as the outstanding feature of the order the proposed new policy regarding compensation during hospital treatment. Up to the present he said "all ranks have apparently been compensated on the basis of army pay and allowances or the equivalent.

5,000 WILD GEESE FED BY J. MINER

To See Geese at Sanctuary is No Longer a Sign of Spring

Kingsville, Feb. 21.—With evergreen trees planted around the ponds of the Jack Miner Bird Sanctuary to break the severe winter winds, and with plenty of corn scattered over the ice-covered ponds, over 5,000 Canada geese have spent the winter at Jack Miner's Bird Sanctuary. These birds came to this place of safety last October, and it will stay until the middle of April, with the spring migrants joining them in March.

On interviewing Jack Miner, he said:

"By our caring for these 5,000 Canada geese all winter, to go north for the spring and summer nesting season, it means they will increase and come back south with 15,000 or 20,000 in the fall—not to the Jack Miner Bird Sanctuary alone; but the over-flow will spread all over Canada and southern U.S.A., and the hunters and bird lovers of our continent will benefit by the increase; while a limited number will return to this sanctuary for feed and protection next fall and winter here. In other words, this place, as long as it stands, will save them from extermination; and individuals and governments will not have to build museums to save specimens, because children and future generations will be able to come here and see them alive. And when a child kindles a love in his or her heart for bird life, that child at once becomes a better citizen and has a greater love for his fellowmen."

OXFORD REBUFFS OLD HEIDELBURG

550th Anniversary of German University to be Passed Over

London, Feb. 21 (AP)—The hebdomadal council, Oxford University's "cabinet," announced today it had decided not to send a delegation from Oxford to the 550th anniversary celebration of Heidelberg, its German counterpart. The decision, disclosed in the official university gazette, was interpreted widely as a rebuff to Nazi Germany.

The "Congregation," Oxford's parliament, has yet to approve the council's decision but the approval was expected as a matter of routine.

Letters passed by war veterans urged old rivalries be forgotten and politics should not influence the question while Oxford professors stated Nazism should be held in contempt.

Dale Plays The Game

BY

Ann Forester

It was over. Phil sat down the manuscript. A summer of feminine opinion breathing out over the room. A swish of rising garments, Erma tearing down on him with a bright cheerful smile.

"Come, Phil; I want you to meet Mrs. Rynd—then in a mailing aside, "You old scoundrel, my Rissa!"

"Could Rissa do less for his scout?" Phil murmured gallantly while the calm feminine voice in his heart spoke against himself. Rissa and Grant Mary..... the comedian and the Scottish queen. He had used it as a parallel when both were unknown, and it tickled Erma's vanity. Now, while he obediently followed her down the room Phil stormed at her in his mind. Conceited fool! What gratitude for flattery these women have! Nothing was too good for them to reject it! Rissa and Green Mary. God! Erma Hanford and her lap dog..... Phil felt his cheek bones burning. He until now had he realized how far along the road he had come.

Lila Delorme had taught him how avid were women for flattery. Were the older and plainer they were, the more they craved it. Subtlety was wasted on them. One had to make the mixture strong and apply it frequently. Phil had learned to be a succinct satirical things in that warm voice of his, learned to time it up for the benefit of his eyes so that the women never guessed his tongue was in his cheek. So Phil, doctor, politely now, with that charming touch of deference in his manner which never found irresistible, while Erma introduced him to the assembled, giddy ladies languidly patronizing ladies who regarded him, half coughing, half suppressed by women in town it seemed to Phil, save only Dale. He skirted to the other pool and stole a look around.

There she was, at the further end of the room by herself apparently engrossed in the calf bound backs of the Hanford library.

The shock of finding Dale here had subsided somewhat. Phil was burning with curiosity about her now. How had this girl whom he had left weeping into the greasy paint handle here in the sacred circle? When he could collect in his hunger he ventured a question to Erma Hanford, she followed his gaze and frowned.

"Oh, Mrs. Kendall. Brant Kendall's wife—" Then, suspiciously, "Why do you ask?"

"I thought I knew her.....stumbled upon her accidentally—" Phil was the man. Damn the women! Would they never be done and give him a moment.....

"Thank you, Mrs. Rynd, I shall be delighted to give a reading before your club on Thursday..... Mrs. Adair, this is a pleasant surprise! Hush..... Miss Harrington, I have just promised Miss Hanford that I would direct the Junior Assembly.....

That giggly girl Amazon watching him..... and Dale down at the other end of the room.....

Finally Phil was free there under the pretext of looking up a reference while was bleeding by detained by a committee of club women.

She turned.

Confused thoughts had been drifting through Dale's head since she had stood there alone. The memory of Phil Clifford had dropped over the horizon of her world. It had been a wound when she first met Brant—a wound that Brant and Carol Dyke had healed. Mimi's spite—the loneliness of the past months had inflamed the wound again. At one time Dale would have been aghast at the mere suggestion the sight of Phil Clifford could move her. But now in no way suddenly like this, so strangely upsetting.

It caught Dale with the disadvantage of surprise. For a moment the magic of the old days enmeshed her. Glimpses of days she thought forever behind her had stirred at Phil's voice. Phil slumped down on the top of her brain, discouraged by the long years of silence and the sudden shy days. Phil perched on a stool beside her in an all night speak shop, his startling intensity face close to her own..... that bitter night in Cott City, her heart the sower of the seed of hate and the violence of his kisses.....

The thankful woman—the sumptuous empty home—were oddly unreal. She and Phil were the only actualities. Mimi and she hurrying down to rehearsal in a draughty theatre, terrified lest they be late and Davis beat them out..... Phil and she—eight! promise—and the sea of life.....

A tremulous little smile broke on Dale and Dale gave Phil a hand, cold as death.

"It's good to see you again, Phil—"

He hadn't realized how he'd missed Mimi Selfish, ambitious—but he'd loved her. No acting about her. Her art needed to be subtle and sent note in his voice as he gripped those cold, cold fingers.

"Dale—to see you here—" he said hoarsely. "It knocked me all in a heap—Oh, Dale—"

CHAPTER 37.

MIMI MAKES HAY

"Dale, I hear you're married—" Phil's voice was tense.

"Yes. I'm married."

"Oh." A tense little pause. Then his voice was low and hurried as his eyes left those of that last night—that night we quarrelled. "Dale, I've thought of you—remembering you—"

Yes, he had thought of her. But it had been the remembrance of a little country girl who knew in the dark. A girl with her own way to make. Not a girl who could help and make a young fellow like Phil Clifford climb to the good things of life. Phil would have frowned that the tables would be reversed—that Dale, suave and lovely in the full flow of wealth, would be standing here listening to Phil Clifford stammering.....

Dale was getting a grip on herself again. She began to remember what they were. "Oh, well—it seems so long ago—"

"Not so long." Phil's hand eyes were somber. His gaze went over the dark gold of her dress and he said slowly, "Well, it was the best thing for you, apparently—" Odd, seeing Erma Hanford bearing down upon them he added quickly, "Dale I must see you. Where?"

"Not Oh, no!" Dale was suddenly in a panic.

"Where?" he insisted.

"But Dale would not say and the next moment Erma Hanford joined them.

"I'm certain you two haven't had tea. Won't you let me get you some, Mrs. Kendall?"

"I'll bring some for Mrs. Kendall." Phil spoke quickly but Erma stopped him with a playful hand and a coquettish air. "Much a-telling-boy! No, Phil, I want you to talk over those tableaux with Miss Harrington. Mrs. Kendall will excuse you, I know."

Erma led him away and sensing Phil's silent fury Dale found herself seized with an hysterical desire to laugh—and as uncontrollable a desire to cry.....

That night when Mimi adroitly led the conversation to Erma's tea Brant asked with a smile of annoyance. "Well, and how were the trained seals today? I trust you weren't disappointed in the private asylum?"

"Why, didn't Dale tell you?" Mimi expressed elaborate surprise. "Dale!" she called to the silent girl at the table, "you're the most modest person I ever met. Here she walks in and makes the success of the afternoon and she hasn't even the weakness to boast about it—"

They all looked at her and Dale felt her cheeks grow hot.

"Oh, I'm afraid you're giving me too much credit!" she said lightly, for she had found raillery the best weapon to use against Mimi. "No one could outshine Erma Hanford! An electric blue gown—Brant—and that wild black head of hers. I felt as though I were having supper with the Borgias!"

But Mimi had no intention of allowing the conversation to drift to Erma Hanford.

"Brant—my modest, Brant—your wife is!" Mimi said gaily. "Today she simply wouldn't tell a word about herself about. The poor old thing was green with envy whenever she talked to Dale. I've interested people less than stimulus! Not that I would blame her. Dale's boy is simply wonderful—like a, screen hero and I hear that Erma's utterly charming feeling of Dale's, saw a man flop so completely as he did when he saw Dale. His eyes spoke simply volumes."

Dale felt her hands growing cold and she knew her laugh was hollow. "Oh, Mimi, you're so romantic! Dale's boy is—because I used to know him—long ago—" And as soon as the words were out she had the sinking feeling of having said the wrong thing.

Mimi pretended exaggerated relief. "Ah, that is the answer then! I was wondering why you'd let a man change mind your hand in a corner. So long as it was only an echo from Dale's past!"

What a devilish trick Mimi had in putting a sting in all she said!

thought Dale raging silently. Impossible to answer without appearing guilty. You were to understand Mimi meant her words playfully, yet the strokes of the picture remained! It gave the impression that Dale had been cheap—conspicuous. She saw it in the slight lift of Mrs. Kendall's brows. And Brant—was it her imagination that he fell unaccountably silent throughout the rest of the dinner? Wasn't there a speculative look in the grey eyes when they rested on her?

Nor was this all Dale's imagination. Mimi's words had opened up a new train of thought in Brant's mind. "An echo from Dale's past"—funny, he'd never thought much about Dale's life before he'd met her. Indifference had been the keynote of their first acquaintance—it hadn't been antagonism. Then their amusing marriage the struggle of wills—their surprising mutual love—all had kept them so occupied with the present there had been no need to think of the past.

And since they had been home Mimi Dale had been so adamant on from everything save him that she seemed to have no other connection in the world.

The rest of the evening Brant played with this novel and not altogether pleasing idea. He refused to play bridge on the plea that he was tired. Better to sit in an easy chair with his pipe and a magazine trying to remember what Dale had said about herself before he had known her.

Little Benny's Note Book

My sister Gladdis and Harvey came around after supper and Gladdis started to tell ma about the birthday party she's going to have for little Willie, saying, I want everything to be original and modern, that's the main essential. After all, modern children are different from children in the old days, and they probably wouldn't get the slightest kick out of the old standbys like blind mans buff and so forth. Now one letter, I want to line them all up and put them through a intelligence test, and give prizes to the ones with the highest intelligence quotient, she said, and ma said, How thats quite a novel idea.

It's not a bit how good is it pop said. What would you think of a party like that, Benny? he said, and I said, I wouldn't want to go.

There you are, the old last pop said, and Harvey said, Absolutely! If there's any different in the kids nowadays its the fact that they're even more like the old safety and first seat. So I'd suggest a good old fashion game of blind mans buff with modern trimmings. In other words, instead of merely blindfolding all who happen to be it, blindfold the whole lot of them and let 'em try to catch each other. What do you think of that idear, Benny? he said.

O, that sounds swell, I said, and ma said, Marsey, can you imagine the country state your house would be in?

I got cave to given try, Gladdis said, and pop said, As far as my observation goes, the present generation isn't happy unless it's listening to The Gun Greeny on the radio or looking at Gray the Ape Man in the comics. The simplest things is the best when it comes to fire-crackers and some little bombs filled with some kind of harmless gas, and let your little guests make up the rest for themselves. How would that be, Benny? he said.

O boy, I said. Mooning perfect. And Gladdis said, O well, I think I'll just buy one of these donkey's that spanks the stationery store and let nature take its course.

And they all started to play bridge.

AT THE CAPITOL
"Final Edit"

Fascinating Tale of a Master Crook's Career

Intrigue and mystery blaze in detective stories.

In this one the very law that should protect us, serves as the most safeguard for an amazing band of crooks, and ends by serving as the means of their undoing.

This is the amazing dramatic twist in "Final Edit," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's gripping new detective romance, in which Allice Macdonald and Ralph Morgan are the elaborate cast. It comes Monday to the Capitol Theatre.

Morgan plays a famous story by Hugh Walpole, dramatized by Mr. Thalberg's brother, Irving, and by Bernard Schubert, the new picture is the story of a master crook who has, in which May Robson recently starred on the coast, "Dangerous Number" and "Any Woman."

Morgan portrays the sophisticated, debonair master crook who helps solve the mystery.

Miss Macdonald plays the adventuress who poses as a newspaper reporter to obtain entrance to the home of a wealthy woman living a life of seclusion. Through a combination of hatred and self-interest, and having the supposed will in her possession, she forces the woman to do her bidding.

Riviera Fun.

Ethel Merman is grand and puts over some of the best in smash hit-old Arlen-Lee Brown song hits in her inimitable style in "Strike Me Pink," her plenty of "Thou You Have Me Sin," "When You Have Me Sin," "Strike It On", "The Calabash Pipe" and "The Lady Dances". Sally Rhea is a delight in the role of Patricia Parker, heroine on the air who Buddy's sweetheart. Jack Haley and William Frawley is swell in another of his funny hard-boiled characters.

The costumes by Omar Kiam are eye-filling, the dance ensembles directed by Robert Alton are definitely unique and different and Lennie Hayton and his orchestra provide the superb background. "Strike Me Pink" is in Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. It's the biggest funny ... definitely Capitol's most entertaining picture. Belle Baker, Patsy Kelly, Ben Bernie and "The Adventures of Popeye" provide the remainder of his funny-festival attraction.

FIVE FIREMEN KILLED AS WALL CRASHES—In one of the worst fire tragedies in the history of Columbus, Ohio, five firemen were killed and 11 injured when a wall of the Goldsberry Temple collapsed, burying them in the debris. Rescue squads, working in sub-zero weather, were forced to use blow torches to cut through tons of brick and steel. The firemen were buried under the wreckage shown above.

MAY BRING NEW KIDNAP STORY—Reported frightened and shaky in the death house at Trenton, parole officer, Bruno Richard Hauptmann may yet change his story of the Lindbergh kidnapping in a last effort to save himself from death in the electric chair. The combined efforts of Genevieve Hoffman, New York criminologist, and Rev. John Mackenzie, after three interviews, has expressed his belief in Hauptmann's guilt. Governor Harold Hoffman of New Jersey, the prisoner's wife Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, and his spiritual adviser, the Rev. John Mackenzie are said to have broken Hauptmann's iron nerve.

The American husband of her niece arrives on the scene. It is suspicious and calls on Scotland Yard. He is informed that the law cannot arrest a member of mere aristocracy—that a man's house is his castle. But the detectives are suspicious.

Finding that Foster from the bank, Lowell is in the house, the police consult with him and give him his instructions. The banker believes Lowell, who is forced to sign a power of attorney. She hands him a note. When the crooks try to take it away, he hurls a statuette through the window.

This gives the waiting detectives a legal opportunity to force an entrance—the breaking of the window is evidence of violence. Led by the American, they round up the crooks. Monday and Tuesday are "Hostess Overwayte" nights for the lady patrons.

WESTERN, QUEENS MEET IN FINALS

Toronto, Feb. 22 (CP)—Queen's University and University of Western Ontario will fight it out today for the "Bronze Baby" trophy, emblematic of Senior Western Ontario collegiate Basketball supremacy, instead of a fight between two teams, as it may be just a private affair between Ray Kay and Mary Wood.

Kay led Queen's, the defending champions, to a 31-15 victory over Toronto University and Mary played the leading part in Western's 17-9 triumph over McGill in the semi-finals last night. The brilliant Miss Boyd scored 25 points, Miss Wong 11.

The McGill girls had one advantage, in height, but it was ineffective against the individual ability of Miss Boyd and the all-round teamwork of Queen's. Miss Kay Montgomery got six for McGill, Eileen Crutchlow five and Lorraine Strachan four.

Varsity and Western put up a close checking match. Western's defensive work and poor shooting by Toronto forwards kept Toronto behind from the start.

WRESTLING AND BOXING SHOW AT AIRPORT SUCCESS

Matches Promoted by A. G. Meagher Of This City

HOCKEY GAMES

Benedict-Proctor And Woolcr-Tessier Emerge Victors

Trenton, Feb. 22.—(Special)—The R.C.A.F. Station, staged their first Amateur Wrestling and Boxing matches of the 1936 season in No. 1 hangar at the Air Base, last night. The matches were promoted by A. G. Meagher of Belleville and the talent, which he brought in, put on a fine show. The opening bout of the night was a boxing bout between Kid Vieau of Trenton and T. Decoste of Belleville. Decoste gained a three round decision over his lighter opponent as he carried the fight to him throughout the entire three stanzas. The second number on the card was a wrestling bout between Chuck Trent and "Gabby" Gassley of Belleville. These two boys look like sure enough scrappers and if they keep on displaying such fine form as they did here last night they are bound to get places in the grunt and groan world. Gassley gained the fall over Thorn after 37 minutes and 4 seconds of the thirty minute limit. Gassly won on a body press. The third clash of the evening was a wrestling bout between Pardella 165 lbs and Ty Storms 164, of Belleville. They put on the badman's act and had the spectators booing and hissing their heads off. W. Storms pinned Pardella to the mat with a body slam after 18 minutes and 44 seconds of the thirty minutes had elapsed.

Hockey Bout Fast

The fourth bout of the night was a boxing match between B. Dawson of Trenton, 178 lbs and J. Ross of Project No. 32, 170 lbs. Dawson, a favorite by the five rounds went all in favour of Ross, who seemed to have the most experience. The fighting did not run much damaged to each other as most of the hard blows dealt out were well guarded. Ross scored a grab in Dawson's fifth in the fourth round, but other than that both seemed to shirk the leg of punishment. Ross gained the judges' decision. Johnson A. Ouvrie, 146 lbs and Johnny Teale 145 lbs. both of Project No... 32 were matched in the fifth number on the card. Teale gained the five round decision over Ouvrie, who put up a great battle.

Both fighters displayed how they could take punishment. In the fourth round Teale, who had been getting the best of Ouvrie, was tricky left, started his nose bleeding. Ouvrie, who had been getting done to the fighters.

The round ended with Ouvrie and Teale standing toe to toe slugging it out. The final and main bout of the evening was between Ted Lang, of Belleville and Cliff Paire of Belleville (160 lb class). The match was a two out of three or more falls affair.

Masked Marvel gained the first fall after 15 minutes and 34 seconds of the first hour. Lang, who had been matched with Ouvrie and Teale almost 3 seconds later and began to show signs of fatigue. Lang himself pinned the Marvel to the mat. The Marvel got some sore at the Referee, who would not let hir pull Paire's hair. In parting the pair the Referee used rough tactics and as a result the Marvel was knocked down by a blow on the left jaw by the arms. Paire seeing his opportunity applied a scissors hold on the Marvel. Five minutes and fifty-five seconds later the Masked Marvel pinned Paire to the mat. Lang, who had defeated Paire in the Arena last night, was defeated by Corporal O. O. Johnson, R.C.A.F.

Hockey

In the first game of the Trenton and District Hockey League matches, played here at the Arena last night, Benedict and Proctor defeated Project No. 32, by the score of 19 to 0. The first game was a walkaway affair. T. Blakely starry little Benedict centre, ran around the net to score "with the Hook" by R. L. M. appearing in Pat. Shaf. Sons of the Mail and Empire.

Meals for the Feathered.

Many inquiries have been made as to just what to feed the various species of birds weathering winter in Beaverdams and surrounding districts, showing how many are trying to help the birds live through the days when an unusual depth of snow covers their natural food supply.

Peas or unsalted fat of any kind is a standby for such species as Woodpeckers, Chickadees, Nuthatches and Blackjays, though most of these will take other food as well. Sunflower seeds or broken squash seeds being relished by chickadees, blackjays and even nuthatches. The ordinary rolled oats from the kitchen larder will be eaten if nothing else is available. Wintering in these can make a very good meal of pie pastry if soft and rich.

Many birds find it much harder for the pheasants and quail than for the grouse, as the latter can feed quite sumptuously on the buds of the white birch where these are sufficiently plentiful. Where there are no birch, enough to supply food, grouse can be tided over by almost any grain, wheat, oats, buckwheat or "chillings", in which there are only small seeds. This or any waste grain about the barn will be a welcome feed for the quail and pheasants, and chaff thrown down where food is scattered will attract them to it.

One bird protector bound wheat (on the stalk) in small sheaves and tied these, heads down, to the tree above the snow. The only objection to this method of feeding in a woods is that the wheat might be first discovered by squirrels and devoured before the birds could find it.

Wherever possible it is better to put out the food supply daily to make sure it isn't always there. If snow is trampled down to make a solid surface seeds scattered will work and sink into the snow. Some birds are not "well adapted for foraging about in soft snow in order to get a bite to eat, and seed-eating birds are likely to find food as they more readily on the ground. Cheese is a special delight for most insect-eating birds, and have nothing unlike the Frichadoes no longer as cheese scraps accumed on their table. A bird lover writes to strongly recommend a cheese rind laid among where birds dine.

Those who are far enough south to have song and tree sparrow grouse in winter or purple finches will find bird on or many seed, millet seed, rolled oats, crumbs, a welcome variety, and many species will feed on larger seeds cracked into bits. Prairie Shak's Pine Grosbeak's Redpolls will also eat seed such as hemp and millet. Those who will take to Crossbills should not forget that, unlike most birds, they are fond of salty food also salt water.

A neighbor has just told us that he saw a Nuthatch pulling suet beads to pieces and eating the seeds, and in his walk to the stream where he has table drink he placed morsels in the snow where grouse had gone down to sleep beneath a white blanket. They deceive their enemies, and the snow is slept on by the foot of the burrow, but moving along some distance under the snow they may touch their feeding and their wings for the night.

Then in the early Messenger firing over the ice-bound river. Several species of wild ducks have been reported on the open water below the dam. But though they are being fed it must be a hard and difficult winter for waterfowl so far north.

Tommy Gorman Names Perfect Team of Players

Toronto, Feb. 22 (CP)—Imagine a hockey forward with the deadly eye, archer's blasting shot, Bill Cook's accuracy in driving pucks into the net and Hec Kilrea's skating speed.

Or imagine a defence player had Larry Northcott's backchecking ability, could alchemize as well as Johnny Cotsilday, give and take a pass like Marty Barry and had Paul Thompson's finish and poise in front.

Add them up and you get two Howie Morenz (160 lb. class). So Tommy Gorman thinks he would be the perfect coach if he could manage it if he had the old "college try" Kiley Clancy injects into his performances and Conn Smythe's fire.

A gentleman of many talents, the Montreal Maroons' manager-coach-pilot Frankenstein to build the mythical perfect hockey team. He has done just as good for The Canadian Press today as his Stanley Cup holders have done for the Montreal public.

The attributes of the perfect player, as Gorman sees them, crystallized in calling it a "tough assignment", he picked them from the abilities of players in the National League and filled in the blank spots. Former Leafs, Rangers and Black Hawks stars he named only three are Maroons.

Gorman envisioned a defenceman who would have the hip-blocking action on a goalward rush like Marvin Wentworth of Maroons and block opponents' shots in the manner of Eddie Shore of Boston.

Canadien Rated Tops.

He would hand out the sort of stick-checking Aurele Joliat and Mcdonald dispenses on Detroit Red Wings' defence and would have the speed of Babe Siebert of Boston uses in getting goals.

If anyone who measures up to the Gorman standard for super-defenceman ever comes along, Gorman will have all these qualities and when the going gets tough he'll have Cecil Lionel Conacher's coolness under fire. Gorman rated his veteran defenceman Babe Siebert as high for steadiness in the pinches.

Building up the perfect forward, Gorman considered there would be no argument about his choice of Conacher as the hardest shot in present day hockey. The Toronto Leaf is without a peer in that regard.

He still likes Kilrea's speed although Hurricane Hec has slowed up a lot since he and Frankie Finigan won a world title for Ottawa in 1927.

Gorman's forward choices were spread over five teams. He named Detroit wings, Kilrea and Barry, two Chicago Hawks, Thompson and Gottselig, Bill Cook of the Rangers and his own Northcott.

Attributes of two Maroons, two Montreal Canadiens and Detroit were named in fashioning the perfect defencemen.

COWANS ARE REPRIEVED, SPEND LIVES IN PRISON

AGED PEDESTRIAN WALKS INTO CAR DIES OF INJURIES

DRIVER NOT BLAMED

Police Allege Victim Quite Deaf And Became Confused

Alonzo S. Black, 85-year-old resident of Hendrickson Avenue, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Sunday afternoon as the result of having been struck by a motor car just east of the city limits some hours previously. Mr. Black suffered a fractured skull and never regained consciousness.

Mr. Black, according to Mr. C. B. Smith, 387 Bridge Street East, who was the driver of the automobile which struck the unfortunate man, was very deaf and apparently became confused as the automobile which was travelling in the same direction, passed him. It is supposed that Mr. Black turned to the left and walked directly into the right rear side of the automobile and was knocked to the ground. Mr. Smith stopped his motor car and assisted the elderly man up, immediately rushing him to the Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. Black was walking easterly on Highway No. 2, about one mile east of the city, and allegedly in the centre of the concrete driveway. Mr. Smith was also proceeding easterly in his automobile and noticed the man as he approached the pedestrian. Mr. Smith sounded his horn and tightened his brakes. Constable Bruce Irvine, who investigated, stated that the pedestrian then deviated somewhat to the right hand side of the road indicating he was giving the motor car plenty of room to pass. Mr. Black was known to be quite deaf and it is believed he did not hear the sound of the horn. Mr. Mr. Smith assured the authorities that the front portion of his motor car had passed Mr. Black when the victim suddenly turned and walked into the rear end of the vehicle and was knocked down. The accident happened about 5.45 p.m. and Mr. Black died at 5.45 p.m. After being rushed to the hospital, Mr. Black was attended by Dr. W. C. Morgan, but never regained consciousness.

Accordingly, a report was received from Traffic Officer Samuel Irvine, who investigated the fatality, and a signed man was proceeding easterly on the highway at the time. Mr. and Mrs. William German, resident near Gibson's crossing in Thurlow Township.

It is understood, the incident was purely accidental and no blame is attached to the driver of the car.

The late Mr. Black was well known and highly respected in the community. He was born near Wellington and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Black and for 65 years has resided in the district. He was a member of Bethel United Church and leaves to mourn two daughters, Mary Black of Toronto and Walter Black of Montreal also one daughter, Mrs. William German, Thurlow Township.

Inquest Opened

An inquest to inquire into the death of Lorenzo Black was opened today at the Martin and Son Funeral Home, Church Street, before Coroner Dr. R. W. Dennett and after preliminary evidence had been given the hearing was adjourned for one week and will convene at the Police Court rooms. Identification was made by Mr. Charles Black of Toronto. The jury composed of William H. Panter, foreman, Thomas H. Harris, Reginald Bateman, Leo Foard, C. Fisher Gauthier, Michael Thompson and A. Percy Coyne was assembled by Sergeant Arthur Harman.

FLOODS SWEEP OVER CALIFORNIA

Agricultural Losses Are Estimated at Over Million Dollars

San Francisco, Feb. 24 (AP)—Flood waters receded except over wide areas of northern California today, leaving a severe personal death, thousands of acres under water and hundreds of motorists marooned in the mountains.

For a distance of 100 miles the valley-bisecting Sacramento River was from one to seven miles wide, from Colusa to Sacramento and Marysville. Agricultural losses alone were unofficially estimated at nearly $1,000,000.

At least 300 persons were marooned at Lake Tahoe in the high Sierra Nevada by what old residents described as the worst storm on record.

Four persons drowned. One death from exposure was reported and two were killed in a motor car accident on a flooded highway.

Almost two weeks of incessant rain sent the Sacramento and its tributaries far beyond normal levels. Breaking levees forced families near Stockton and Modesto to flee from their homes.

BRITAIN LAUNCHES CLEAN - UP DRIVE ON WHITE SLAVERY

Revelations Reveals Bogus Marriages Made to Evade Immigration Laws

LARGE PROFITS

Gangster Murder of Max Kassel Starts Investigation by Police

London, Feb. 24 (AP)—Revelations of a new type of bogus "marriage racket," yielding huge profits to white slavers, today followed a sensational slaying, have led Scotland Yard to launch the biggest clean-up drive here in recent years.

The campaign was touched off by the gangster "execution murder"—the slaying of Max "Red" Kassel, 35, whose bullet-riddled body was found on a lonely heath near St. Albans, Hertfordshire. He had been shot six times in what newspapers described as the "gangland style" known to the underworld.

But police investigation disclosed that they had a problem of more serious proportions on their hands. They learned that Kassel was the "brains" of a highly organized white slave traffic.

They found that women entered into bogus marriages with foreigners on week-end excursions when the "husbands" were landed, and that, through the medium of a "bride-broom agent," they had become naturalized British subjects and entitled to remain.

Dastards Go Through Rites

To evade the immigration laws, the dastards went through "marriage grooms"—picked up along the docks by the "bride-broom agent"—for as little as $50 each—who would go through the marriage rites at the registry office, giving their names and British citizenship to the new "brides" and receiving from $250 to $75 a head.

Immediately the police found, the men were drowned and—only 200 of the 1,000 "brides" were ever traced—went to sea, to be paid off in hard cash and a new suit of clothes, given them to go through the ceremony with the next "bride."

The "husband," of course, never saw his bogus "wife" again.

Scotland Yard found that at least 30 white slave "syndicates" were conducting a big-scale "business" in and around London with profits ranging from $50,000 to $500,000 annually.

The ring discovered to have deposited more than $20,000 in a bank in Hamburg, Germany, is believed lacking concrete evidence, police suggested that the man, a Parisian, should be "dealt with" summarily.

How Scotland Yard is examining registrars' records of marriages for the past year in an attempt to ferret out "bogus" marriages linked with the illicit traffic.

Kassel's murder, police believed, was the result of his attempt to take a place in recent years—chiefly between Germany and other continental countries seeking sanctuary in Great Britain.

CHAMBER GIVES DATA ON ROAD CONDITIONS

Data of the necessary functions of the local Chamber of Commerce during the past weeks of January and February has been that of answering the many inquiries daily from the motoring public and outside residents for information regarding road conditions in this section. The Chamber which has long been recognized as a clearing house for information of this nature gains its knowledge from reports received by the Provincial Motor Lamps, statements of bus and transport lines and through personal visits.

During the past week or so while the ban was prohibited upon traffic on the highways some of the inquiries were answered by reports given out by the local office. Now that we have lifted this embargo we feel, however, that the Provincial Motor Transport Board authorities have been few and far between.

WRONG VIEWS ABOUT RELIGION SERMON THEME

Rev. Archer Wallace of Toronto Attacks Those Who Preach End of World

Religion is not a creed, it is a spiritual experience. Religion is an inspiration, not a belief. Religion is a program of life, it is practical, and is not so much concerned with the life beyond.

These three points were made by Rev. Archer Wallace of Toronto, editor of United Church publications, in a sermon in Bridge Street Church last evening on "Right and Wrong Ideas of Religion." The suggestion of the sermon came in the result of a questionnaire answered by 500 young students in Brooklyn, N.Y. High School as to what was religion. Belief in God might be collected from other than students, he said.

Religion Experience

The first wrong view is that religion is a creed, he said. St. John, or St. James, and the early Christian Church had no creeds, they never saw a New Testament which was not assembled. The creeds came later and were really at Nicaea that the first creed was formulated. Belief in religion, whatever it is, is not a conviction nor a creed. It is a spiritual view of life which lifts man above the animal creation, said Mr. Wallace. There will be no creeds, of course, because man desires some formula of view, but a creed that will satisfy one generation in the world will not satisfy with the next. Three hundred years ago knew nothing of electricity and radio as applied in household work or in farm implements for theirs was the horse and buggy. And creeds of eight hundred years before. There will be a new creed with new development of religious experience.

Liberalism Decried

"One of the calamities of the present time is, I think, the teaching of rigid liberalism," said Mr. Wallace pointing out the impossibility of the conception of the creation as taught literally. To point the difference between having some idea in the head and a being thrilled with a religious experience.

Wrong views, he declared years, he prophesied, the 26 articles of the United Church. He said that Jesus Himself spoke in parables, saying that men could not stand the truth at once.

"As men are able to bear it, God pours them into a larger mould point." Mr. Wallace said.

Now the difference of creed does not affect the personality of the appeal was shown by the preacher who quoted the famous written by Rev. Dr. Jowett, Birmingham, in persons of every divergence of religious opinion.

"Can one think some little sect is the right one and hundreds of millions of Christians wrong?" asked Mr. Wallace. Religion would not be religion if creed was all so hard to understand and to live. One Bible reader of the Bible, not an authority in the Bible, that passage is non-essential and of no value.

Every Road Right Road

"Religion is a growing, expanding experience," the preacher urged the sons who want to come to God in a faithful obedient service. Others are satisfied if they can follow a right road. There is no difference. Every road is the right road to heaven, the preacher declared. Those people with the mental belief religion is an inspiration, not a religion. In the answers to the questionnaire declared, Mr. Wallace said religion was made for a grandson of Abraham, but for religion means more life. He went on: Some persons are handed by religion as by a ghost. They do not live religion. They are religious because they are scared. "Do not put the emphasis on the wrong things."

Religion should increase the income, decrease the sense of humor, the love of sports.

Cruel Teaching

It is a cruel thing to teach a child that a God which has no love is untaught later on. "I never see a tent of Scripture written on a barn or stone but I feel sad. The man who put it there is doing harm. Many people attempt to regard God as a big policeman 200 feet high. That is a cruel blasphemy. The thing to teach with wrong views of God and it is a travesty of religion," the preacher added.

"We have not a greater task than to teach the 700,000 young people in the United Church that God wants them to be good and to be happy."

Religion Practical

There was the third wrong view of religion—a practical helping to prepare man for the next world. Many think of Heaven as the land of pain. I do not think the word "hell" should be used in the New Testament as people understand it. Read the New Testament, it is the life which is stressed. I see the Church of England is talking of abolishing the hymn from the hymn "There is a Happy Land, Far, Far Away". I agree with their attitude. No, religion is not an insurance policy for the next world. It is a program for life. Religion must make people more decent, kind, make them a better place to live in for others. Religion must be practical, not some theory of the world to come. I am amused to see what some of my brother ministers are writing about it as I take up the Saturday evening papers. Some are talking "The End of the World". I do not think anyone knows anything about the end of the world. I think it is a waste of time and I am annoyed at men talking to people about it and am annoyed that there are people foolish enough to listen to them."

Mr. Wallace closed with the words of the Whittier hymn:

"I know not where His islands lift Their fronded palms in air;
I only know I cannot drift Beyond His love and care."

First Robin of Year in City

The harbinger of spring, Robin Red Breast, has made his appearance in the city, according to Mrs. Joseph Waddell, Wansboro street, who reported to The Intelligencer today that he sighted one of the cheery birds in his yard this morning. Mrs. Waddell states she was feeding from a red cedar bush and was pleasantly surprised to see the flash of red breast obtained. The bird was not subdued by the cold and stopped about freely and sang gaily.

Mr. Waddell is also doing his share to prove the pleasantries of the date from the appearance of the birds finding it extremely hard to obtain enough food due to the deep snow. "Every time I open the door," Mr. Waddell, "three birds and one female chickadee are there waiting for me to get out and I have fed them on the verandah." Today, when the birds arrived there were only two males and one female, the other two having been killed apparently moving off by himself. Mrs. Waddell stated that the birds were quite tame although it was impossible to get very close to them. They relished their food."

ADD ROBIN .....

Spring is here, there is no two inch wings through the near-zero temperatures of the past few days, day morning market and sighted the delivery wagon of Mr. Low John.

Spring came in the form of a bedraggled robin redbreast which came to rest recently on the side of the delivery truck. The first harbinger of Spring was rescued by Mr. Jack Smallhorn, and exhibited to The Ontario Intelligencer shortly after.

FORMER GOVERNOR MARYLAND, DIES

Albert C. Ritchie is Victim of a Paralytic

Baltimore, Feb. 24 (AP)—Former Governor Albert Ritchie, vigorous advocate of states' rights and a leader for the Democratic party's prohibition repeal in the United States senate, died at his home here early today. He was in his 68th year.

A stroke apparently caused the death of the noted Marylander, a contender for the Democratic presidential nomination at the 1932 convention in Chicago.

Death ended speculation over the possibility of his taking a leading role in opposing the candidation of President Roosevelt at this year's Democratic convention in Philadelphia. His outspoken criticism that the Democratic platform pledges failed to circumvent the constitution and states' rights stamped him as an ostensible opponent of conservative members of his party.

SAYS 1000 HOMES ARE IN JEOPARDY

Property Owners Association Head at Oshawa Tells of Conditions

Oshawa, Ont., Feb. 24 (CP)—Mortgage companies and private persons will take over 1,000 Oshawa homes should the present moratorium be extended, Lieut.-Colonel C. A. Sharpe, president of the Oshawa Property Owners' Association. He believed over 50 per cent of the 1911 Oshawa residents were to servants of farms, he declared, on their property.

During depression years, he pointed out, some 1,100 homes had been taken over, "and these homes are" approximately 3,300 homes in the city.

Eight-tenths of the people don't know how the Mortgagors' and Purchasers' Relief Act works, he said.

"The moratorium only applies to contracts in effect when it was passed. New mortgagors are not affected by it and mortgage companies will not be forced to carry on loans without a new covenant being made. This new agreement automatically makes the moratorium inoperative. The mortgage companies are all hitting at the government for interfering with private contracts. All Canada property owners should hear and it is just a question as to how long the government law hangs out. So far, it is standing pat."

"The government won't do us sell improved property," he said.

BULLET PIERCED HEAD THEN COAT

Witness Says LaFleur Appeared Nervous at Hospital

Hull, Que., Feb. 24—(CP)—A bullet found in the lining of the coat worn by Paul LaFleur, differed the car in which Armand Nadeau was shot to death in a holding back Detective Sergt. Wilfrid Tremblay, who was fired from the same gun, which brought death to the young bank accountant, according to expert testimony today at the trial of LaFleur and five others charged with Nadeau's murder.

Dr. Rosario Fontaine, Quebec medico-legal expert, said in his opinion the projectile found in the LaFleur's coat last week went through Nadeau's head before entering the overcoat and lodging in the lining.

Neither the bullet found in the coat nor the bullets found in Nadeau's head were fired from the revolver, which LaFleur carried, when he and the young accountant started on the fatal trip to the Ottawa Clearing House with $16,616 of bank money on Dec. 1, 1934, he said on later found in a Montreal mail box.

LaFleur Appeared Nervous

LaFleur accompanied Nadeau to hospital from the lonely wooded spot on the Gatineau road, where the two were held up and Nadeau killed. Nurse Alice Plouffe of the Sacred Heart Hospital said LaFleur was extremely nervous, when he arrived at the institution. He also expressed the wish he had half of Nadeau's wounds so his friend would have a better chance of living, the nurse testified.

Dr. J. L. Pitchette, who attended Sir Sydney Nadeau, told the jury the wounded man did not speak before he died.

GOVERNOR SAYS WHITED "LIED"

Hauptman Prosecution Witness Grilled by Hoffman

Trenton, N.J., Feb. 24 (AP)—Governor Harold G. Hoffman today declared Millard Whited, Scotland Mountain lumberjack and one of the State's chief witnesses against Bruno Richard Hauptmann, with "lying" a statement which might be the basis of perjury action against him.

The Governor, who questioned Whited at length Saturday, said the "printed and written record shows he was lying."

Whited was one of the two witnesses who placed Hauptmann near the Lindbergh estate at Hopewell about the time of the kidnapping, March 1, 1932.

Extradition Witness

The Scotland logger was the only witness Gov. Hoffman called at Hauptmann's extradition hearing in New York; he placed the Germanborn near the scene of the crime. Whited was also a witness Hauptmann prowling around the Lindbergh grounds on two occasions late in February, 1932. Hauptmann is now confined at the Flemington trial.

Governor Hoffman, both at the extradition hearing and as the trial, produced witnesses to attached Whited's credibility. Whited held to his identification and Saturday Governor Hoffman said he described the prowler to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh like the kidnapping.

Hoffman's Aim.

"In view of the fact there seems to be a studied effort to suppress from the public certain important information concerning the Hauptmann case, it is believed it is from the standpoint of seeing that final and complete justice is done in the case," the Governor said, "I wish to make this further statement concerning Millard Whited:

"I did not question this man upon whose identification Hauptmann was brought back from the Bronx to stand trial in New Jersey for murder. Whited is also testifying the truth, but because the printed and written records show that he was lying.

1932 Statement.

"On April 26, 1932, he gave to the state police a signed statement in which he said he had never seen my face or suspicious persons in the woods near the home of Col. Charles Lindbergh home. His next signed statement he said October 4, 1934, when after having been repeatedly shown photographs of Hauptmann and his automobile, Whited came along, and having been promised payment for his part of the report went to the Bronx County jail and identified Hauptmann as a man he had seen in the woods near the home of Lindbergh home prior to March 1, 1932."

Copies Are Issued.

The Governor said he had both signed statements in his possession. On Saturday he issued photostatic copies of the April 26, 1932 statement.

"The "alibi boys" may try to laugh this off but if these records and the signed statement of the attorney given by Whited at the Flemington trial are not significant," he said, "then I do not know just what is important in this case."

Prosecutor Anthony M. Huyck, Jr., of Hunterdon County, present when Whited was questioned Saturday, explained Whited had purposely lied to the two detectives who questioned him in 1932 because he did not know them and his suspicious nature moved him to tell untruths.

WINGS MOVE AHEAD

Despite Injuries Have Enough Power to Defeat Americans

Reinforced by Olympic farm talent, Detroit Red Wings moved steadily towards the National Hockey League finals today while the belief grew it would take an injury epidemic to stop the flying Redmen of Jack Adams. The Wings seem to mind broken bones, and such less than most teams.

Art Giroux and Wilf Starr, farm products on Detroit's International-American League Olympics, filled the shoes of maimed Larry Aurie and Herbie Lewis last night with chestnut success. The Wings are down New York Americans 4-3 and retained a three-point lead at the top of the American section over Chicago Black Hawks.

While the Hawks were trouncing Toronto Maple Leafs 5-1, preventing the Leafs from pulling ahead of the Montreal Maroons in the other group, Detroit's weakened forces made a surprisingly strong stand. They held the Rangers to a total of 3-0 and then managed to hold off the desperate Americans by the same two frames.

Starr and Giroux, filling in for two of hockey's flashiest wingmen, took part in the scoring of two goals. Following Starr, who started Detroit off, Giroux and Wally Kilrea relayed the puck to Dick Irvin for a second goal and Giroux had a head of seconds later in a tally scored by Scotty Bowman.

Schriner Held Scoreless.

Holding Sweeney Schriner's guns silent, the Wings rode in to victory despite an American drive in the third period. Lorne Chabot, Detroit goalie, was credited with 20 saves as the game's only goal in the second period and made Wilf Cude another up his sixth shutout of the season.

With ten games to go on the schedule, Americans had fallen astern in the Canadian group standing by a single point over the Montreal Maroons.

The Leaf-Maroon struggle for first place was decided, Conn Smythe rolling up to even terms with a 1-0 win over the Stanley Cup champions Saturday night. Both Kings of hockey shut ahead last night when they fell easy prey to the Black Hawks of Chicago.

Andy Blair, fast becoming a hero in Toronto, drove in the winning goal against Maroons in a third-period rush with Flash Hollett on last night's previous, "Handy Andy" rip-ped in the tally that enabled the Leafs to finish ahead of Canadiens by 3-1.

Sibley Fined.

The old rivals staged a colorful, bitter feud. A tangle along the boards involving Red Horner and Jimmy Ward resulted in a free-for-all fight in the Leaf brigade. Paul Thompson and Doc Romnes helped Chicago into a 5-0 lead in the first session's play. Thompson drove Thompson built the count to 4-0 in the second. Buzz Boll prevented goalie Mike Karakas from earning a shutout.

New York Rangers dropped Boston deeper into the American section cellar by scoring a surprising 4-3 victory last night on Boston ice. Rangers spotted the Bruins two early goals by Red Beattie and rallied to lead 3-2 in the final period. Alex Shibicky, Bill Cook and Fred Dillon did this important scoring.

After Chicago opened matters again in the second frame, Lyn Patrick sank a forward pass from Howie Morenz for the winner.

HOCKEY'S BIG SEVEN

Paul Thompson and Doc Romnes of Chicago Black Hawks were the only N.H.L. scoring leaders to make gains during the week-end, each accumulating three points last night against Toronto. Romnes went into "tie for second place in the "big seven" with Herbie Smith of Montreal, and Thompson was only a point behind.

Cecil Dillon's single goal last night when Rangers defeated Boston 4-3 left the New Yorkers tied for second circle, but Hinsh March of Chicago and Bill Thoms of Toronto's select were the point outside.

The standing:

PERCY BOTT WINS JR. SKI TITLE

Mother of Champion Was Resident of City

Toronto, Feb. (CP)—Champions of Canada's ski trails and jumps packed away their trophies today with three 1936 Dominion championships going to Montreal, two to Toronto and one to Sudbury.

Nineteen-year-old Percy "Punch" Bott of Montreal, holder of Quebec and Ontario titles, captured the National jumping championship at Thorncliffe ski jump here Saturday and Montrealers won two of the five major championships held yesterday at Fleeberton, 75 miles north of here. Bott also won the long distance jumping championship when he sailed 121 feet through the air to come within one foot of the Thornclifte record. Gunnar Omag, Chicago, did not arrive to defend his last year's title.

The combined jumping and cross-country championship was won by S. J. Ramah, McGill University ski team, Montreal. Ramah, captain of last year's Dartmouth College ski team, who sailed eighth in the jumping, finished in the three and a half mile cross-country grind, totalled 431.3 points to win a gruelling test that take the title. Doug. Mann, youthful Toronto ski club member, won the combined downhill and Slalom championship, sliding down 300 ft. in 51 3-5 seconds.

A. Sack, Sudbury, Ont., won the Dominion jumping title in 1926-28. H. Sommerfelt, Viking ski club, Montreal, annexed the downhill championship, when he went down the mile course in 1.08.4.

INTERNATIONAL STANDINGS SAME

Week-End Play Does Not Affect Position of Teams

(By The Canadian Press)

Week-end duelling in the International Hockey League left the standings of both the western and eastern sections unchanged today but gave Windsor Bulldogs hope of climbing past Cleveland Falcons into second place in the eastern section.

Falcons dropped a 4-2 decision to Rochester Cardinals Saturday night to make their two clashes with the latter the outstanding features of this week's schedule. They play in Windsor on Wednesday night and in Cleveland Saturday with Bulldogs sandwiching a game against London between the two clashes. Falcons' clean-up would give Windsor a two-point advantage and a game in hand over Falcons.

The fight was on and gave in which only five of the eight teams took part, saw Detroit Olympics beat Syracuse Stars 3-2 in overtime, a 7-3 decision to Syracuse Stars and the lowly Rochester Cardinals defeat Cleveland Falcons.

The all-star, first-string line of Syracuse, made up of Eddie Shore, flanked by Jack Markis and Jack Shill, paced the Stars' attack and accounted for victory over Olympics, well ahead in the western division. The trio got one goal and two assists each.

Used Only Ten Men

Olympics had only ten men against Syracuse and were forced to use seven of the starting stars. Markle, Shill and Burke all had a part in the two first-period goals and Eddie Convey offset "Mud" Brunetteau's second period tally for Olympics. Some 8,500 Syracuse fans also enlivened over scores deficiting between Vyvyan Archer and Fred Hergarty.

Detroit's Saturday night victory over Buffalo prevented Bisons moving into a second-place tie with Falcons in the eastern division. Bisons came behind from a 2-0 deficit in the 11 top early in the third period but Brunteau broke away from a Bison ganging attack for the winning goal.

Walter (Whitey) Farrant pushed Rochester two as Rochester, out of play-off contention, eased past the faltering Falcons. Nadine Smith and Roger Cormier for the other with Dutch" Schultz and Lloyd Cross counting for Cleveland.

Before the game, the teams traded goalkeepers, Bill Vaughan going to Rochester and Roy Roberts to Cleveland. Coach Eddie Gerard of Falcons had the home fans booing them in the second period.

CHABOT STOPS STEWART'S SHOT BUT SCORE ENDS 6-5—Lorne Chabot, a thorn in the side of many a goal-hunting forward is back in uniform, this time guarding the cage of Montreal Maroons. In this game, Maroons and New York Americans got their signals crossed and though they were coming a football score, the coach tallied eight times to register a tie. Chabot can be seen just blocking a shot from big Nels Stewart, (NO. 6) American centre. It was a free-swinging, free-scoring match and the score-keepers worked the hardest.

CHISHOLM'S RINK WINS 2 TROPHIES

Hector Cowan of Sarnia is Winner of Ontario Tankard

Toronto, Feb. 24 (CP)—Ability to finish strongly was chiefly all champions must have—is one of the most potent prescriptions Hector Cowan's Sarnia rink will carry into the Macdonald's Brier Trophy curling competition here early next month. The Sarnia clan, as the Ontario representative, will defend the Brier, emblematic of Dominion curling supremacy, with Jack Gordon Campbell's Hamilton Thistles last year.

The Cowan-skipped Sarnians earned the right to represent the Province of Ontario by the Ontario Silver Tankard here Saturday. They scored a five-end on the last end to do it. Their opponents were Andy Grant's Toronto Royal Canadians and the score was 11-6. The Tankard was played in connection with the Ontario annual bonspiel.

The Sarnia rink is made up of Skip Cowan, Lawson Hill, Arthur Glen Hays, Sarnia Imperial footballer and Dr. Ross Gordon. In winning the Tankard Cowan's men also scored a five-end in the 10th end, after trailing 9-3 at the end of the ninth.

Biggest surprise of Tankard play came Friday when Campbell's Hamilton Thistles were knocked from competition by Joe Bergin's Fergus rink. Bert Sadie kitchener crew captured the Burden Trophy with a 13-2 win over D. C. Thomson's Toronto rink. Sadie's rink today was open to runs, who had lost their first game to Harold Laing.

The Governor-in-General Trophy came to the Toronto club when Stewart Graham's quarter defeated Alphonse D. E. McFaull, 13-4. The Lieut.-Governor Empire Trophy went to W. H. Weiler's Hamilton Thistle rink when they defeated Gilbert Orillia four 12-5.

Feature of ninth annual Ontario spiel was the airing of victories compiled by the galaxy of Ontario rinks skipped by the veteran Hebert Chisholm. The Toronto curler is a straight game before they were beaten, then won three more to complete their string of victories reach 16. Besides winning the championship award, the rink, which entered the spiel "just for fun", captured the Birks-Ellis-Ryrie Trophy, the Ryrie Trophy, the lovely Rochester Cardinals defeat Cleveland Falcons.

The all-star, first-string line of Syracuse, made up of Eddie Shore, flanked by Jack Markis and Jack Shill, paced the Stars' attack and accounted for victory over Olympics, well ahead in the western division. The trio got one goal and two assists each.

Coin Toss for Johnson, Easy

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 24 (AP)—Regardless of what George Washington may have done, Walter Johnson has converted legend into actuality by throwing a dollar across the Rappahannock.

With a motion easier than that with which he used to send his old speed ball steaming down the groove to batters, the former strike-out champion sailed two coins across the river yesterday.

The official toss cleared the ice-studded river by thirty feet. Chief Judge H. J. Eckenrode, a Virginia historian estimated the distance of the throw at 317 feet.

Although he cleared the Rappahannock, Johnson's pitch was 1,100 feet short of what Representative Bloom of New York said the Washington toss would have been if he ever did it.

The New York representative claimed the river was 1,420 feet wide at Ferry Farm when Washington lived here.

Sam Richardson, Toronto Youth, Broad Jump Champ

New York, Feb. 24.—(CP)—A young Toronto jumper won the broad jump crown at Madison Square Garden today but a veteran of track competition from the same city was dethroned.

Victory of Sammy Richardson, British Empire champion, in the broad jump and disqualification of Harry "Hash" Cieman in the 1500 meter walk were two surprises at the 48th United States amateur athletic union indoor track championships Saturday night.

Gene George Cunningham, Pennsylvania's picture runner, ended any lingering doubt of his return to form by taking the 1500-metre run title and world record from the great Glen Cunningham. Both were under the old indoor mark as Vercils collared Cunningham in the stretch drive and won going away by two yards in the dazzling time of 3.49.2. Cunningham was clocked in 3.50.1, four-tenths under the record he set in the same event a year ago.

Richardson representing Archilles A. C. displayed his class with a jump of 24 ft. 3 inches.

Cleman, outstanding walker in North America, finished first in the heel and toe affair in 6.10. But the officials ruled his style was illegal and at the same time disqualified Lois Welch of the section A., who was second and William Blake, third. The honors went to Charles Reichbach of New York, who finished third in 6.18.1.

TOP ROW IS BEST AT SANTA ANITA

Claimed For $3,500 Earns $104,600 by Winning Handicap

(By Robert Myers Associated Press Sports Writer)

Los Angeles, Feb. 24 (AP)—Top Row, claimed for a paltry $3,500 in the handicap king today.

A. A. (Ben) Baroni's wiry brown giant killer, pounding down the stretch with the rear of his mount in his ears and a dollar brand on each hoof, won the Santa Anita Handicap Saturday and collected a prize of $104,600. Top Row won $7,500 bonus money for his trainer, also Baroni.

To date the horse he claimed for $2,500 two years ago has rendered his owner a conservative total income of $216,670.

Baroni's "tigress little" horse winner by half a length over Time Supply and a full length over Rosemont, turned back a field of American best handicap horses in the Saturday classic, in the seventh place, was Alfred G. Vanderbilt's great Discovery, the last handicap king.

The big handicap victory meant added fame and added money for Jockey Wayne Wright. He was behind to have a percentage of Top Row's win, and $17,500 bonus money from the track.

New York, Feb. 24.—(CP)—A young Toronto jumper won the broad jump crown at Madison Square Garden today but a veteran of track competition from the same city was dethroned.

Victory of Sammy Richardson, British Empire champion, in the broad jump and disqualification of Harry "Hash" Cieman in the 1500 meter walk were two surprises at the 48th United States amateur athletic union indoor track championships Saturday night.

AS ENGLAND STARTED CHAMPIONSHIP TRIAL—This picture shows the action which started England on the high road to an Olympic hockey championship—at the expense of Canada. The British pack chases can be seen sweeping in on the Swedish goal to score a lone tally in the first game, which they were able to take by the only counters in the waning of the game. Canada went on to win or beat all opposition and come out on top. Before they went on to the ice for the game pictured, the eligibility of Jimmy Foster and Alex Archer, both Canadians, had been questioned, but suspensions had been lifted to allow them to participate.

O.H.A. 2nd. ROUND PLAY-OFF WHITBY at BELLEVILLE FRIDAY NIGHT. Reserve Your Seats Early

"REDMEN" MEET WHITBY TUESDAY

Second Game in Third Round Will be Played Here Friday

The Belleville "Redmen" were drawn in the third round of the intermediate "B" series of the O.H.A. provincial play-downs against the Whitby Dunlops, intermediate "A" champion Whitby club, Manager Eddie Thomas revealed today after communications with Secretary W. A. Hewitt. Belleville completed their schedule as the toughest opposition they have so far contacted in their quest of O.H.A. honors. Whitby will enter the play-downs with one of the most outstanding records presented by any O.H.A. club, the 1935 champions only having lost two games in two consecutive seasons, one being in the intermediate O.H.A. semi-finals of 1933 after they had completed their season undefeated. They went on to win the provincial title in straight games in the finals, however. The first game in the Whitby series will be played on Tuesday and the second game here on Friday.

The Whitby squad is coached by that veteran professional puckster, Ken Randall, and are reputed to be a strong defensive team. Six brothers appear in the line-up as have Vipond brothers, the Conlins and the Slightholm pair. Seven splendid-looking boys. Whitby have also a trio-tried and proven net-minder in Percy Hunter of Oshawa, who is given splendid protection by L. Vipond and W. Conlin. It is reported that the forward line usually started by Whitby Dunlops is composed of Heard, Randall and P. Slightholm, while the alternate forwards are W. Slightholm and Percy Hunter. Conlin with Luther as the reserve defenceman, Vipond and Wright are right to continue into the O.H.A. play-downs by winning the Lake Shore group in the series with only outstaining one slight loss, Fort Hope winning a 6 to 5 decision over them in Fort Hope. Whitby went on to win the group play-off in straight games.

Knowing the stiff opposition that confronts his charges Manager Eddie Thomas gave the "Redmen" a light work-out on Saturday night and all reported in shlip-shape order and ready for the first game of the 1935 champions. The referee submitted the list of the opening game in Whitby was as follows: Belleville—Goal, Hunt; defence, L. Vipond and W. Conlin; centre, Heard; wings, Randall and Slightholm; subs, W. Vipond, E. Slightholm, D. Conlin and Luther.

N. H. L. STARS

The Blake, Rookie Canadien wingman, whose second-period goal gave the Frenchmen a 2-1 win over the New York Americans.

Paul Thompson, Toronto, who slapped in the only goal of the Leafs' game, this Whitby club may be up to and all of that, but they'll have to be a good team to beat our club because we're playing winning hockey, watch and see," predicted Manager Thomas.

The referee suggested by W. A. Hewitt of the O.H.A. were A. W. Armstrong, of Oshawa, to handle the ball in Whitby, and Doc Smith, of Kingston, for the return game in Belleville on Friday.

To-night, that it was at least possible, Walter Johnson, dean of the modern aces of big league baseball, successfully threw a silver dollar across the Rappahannock River, on Washington's birthday, Saturday much to the satisfaction

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

"In Whitby on Tuesday and back in Belleville next Friday with goals to count," the round," was the word received by Manager Thomas of the Belleville Redmen in relationship to the next round in the intermediate O.H.A. play-downs. Incidentally this series will mark the first time a Belleville hockey team has advanced to the third round play-offs in a good many years.

This series will be a tough one as the 1935 intermediate "B" champions, Whitby, if the boys can topple over the Whitby crowd, well, while spotsbon should witness the first O.H.A. final in exactly 26 years. Oshawa the Whitby squad enter into the series with a reputation second behind them. In winning the 1935 championship the Whitby aggregation did not lose a single game all season, except one game in the provincial semi-finals and then were in the finals in straight games. Coming into 1936 the Whitby crowd were the cream, the Lake Shore group, only switching one man, that at the hands of Port Hope. The is a splendid record we must admit, but the "Redmen" have something of a record for a "2" squad also behind them. The Belleville lads trimmed their own with the fast Peterboro' and Oshawa "A" squads and have won from the Whitby club entering in upon the "2" series play-downs.

Reports from Whitby and Oshawa are to the effect that the Whitby team depend more upon their defensive style of play and the scoring punch of Randall, Heard and Vipond to do it recently their offensive was bettled them a larger number of goals than but we are inclined to think that Hurst is little less than an individual star in the Whitby ranks and upon his shoulders rests the fate of the Whitby squad. Incidentally local hockey fans will well remember "Peg" Hurst, he is the scrappy little Whitby boy who recently carved about in centre field for the Oshawa C.O.B.L. squad in the warmer weather. We beat two good "2" teams in Napanee and also in Campbellford, "This Whitby club may be up to and all of that, but they'll have to be a good team to beat our club because we're playing winning hockey watch and see," predicted Manager Thomas.

The referee suggested by W. A. Hewitt of the O.H.A. were A. W. Armstrong, of Oshawa, to handle the ball in Whitby, and Doc Smith, of Kingston, for the return game in Belleville on Friday.

To-night, that it was at least possible, Walter Johnson, dean of the modern aces of big league baseball, successfully threw a silver dollar across the Rappahannock River, on Washington's birthday, Saturday much to the satisfaction of many of his fellow-countrymen. Johnson's first try resulted in the coin striking on the opposite river side of the river from Fredericksburg, but the next two silver coins were hurled 50 feet below the opposite shore from where Johnson stood. Of course Walter was not throwing his own money away as naturally he pitched coins, just as long as the free "chaser" was available.

Through Kiwanian Bill Coo convener of the juvenile section of the local K1-Y League, a Belleville Kiwanis juvenile team was entered in the Ontario Juvenile Hockey Association on Saturday. At the Convener Cook wired the local application to the sitting body in Brantford. An answer to the application is expected tomorrow, Team "Wright Bros." of Colville are entered in this Juvenile Association which takes care of players under 18 years of age. Incidentally the K1-Y League is trying a new wrinkle at its Area this week-end. The entire night will be devoted to K1-Y League hockey in all three series, midget, bantam and juvenile there is no admission.

In all probability the local Indoor Field Meet will be held on Thursday night this week, at which time President Jack Wilson's group will endeavour to determine which teams are eligible for the play-off series and which teams tied over to take place and three tied for second position for the present time.

When the B.G.I.V.A. senior girls' basket ball team lost to the Picton C. I. squad by the score of 28 to 15 last Friday night it was more than a surprise, being little less than an upset as the B.G.I. senior girls were picked as the class of their group. On the other hand however, Coach Allen Gilbert has showed a marked improvement in their play and won their game with the Picton junior girls by the score of 23 to 14. Coach George Laughlin's Junior B.G.I.V.S. boys continued their winning ways, however, in beat Picton 22 to 10, the locals outscoring the home team 12 to 3 in the last half. Coaches Martin and Wright were the chief point-gainers for the B.G.I. while Frasee notched six of Picton's ten points. All three Collegiate interscholastic cage teams were very much in the running for their respective group honors however.

Whether the final Senior Interscholastic play-off game between Albert College and the B. C. I. of K. will be played directly after school hours or at night has not been actually decided as yet, the Albert squad could not to a team for Monday, while the "Collegiate" were in the same box for Tuesday, so the next best thing was a Wednesday date for the final Senior Interscholastic play-off game.

EDUCATIONAL TRENDS

Education went is at present in full swing under the sponsorship of the Canadian Teachers' Federation, featuring a program of radio addresses on a national hook-up with the speakers Her Excellency, Lady Tweedsmuir and the Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Labor. The aim of the week is to make the people education conscious.

Education, the federation and other thinkers realise must move forward, since the world still is to-ward. Changes are looked forward to in at least two directions, a curriculum in the secondary schools which it is hoped will be better adapted to individual needs and a system of administration and finance which will help to equalize educational advantages and opportunities for every boy and girl in Ontario.

The Department of Education is working on a revision of the curriculum of the schools in an effort to bring it into line with modern trends of thought, towards which much effort has been expended over many months of voluntary labor by a committee of teachers and others. Dr. McArthur and the members of the commission of all summer received briefs from interested groups including a 35-page pamphlet outlining the systems of financing education in English-speaking countries and in all the province of Canada with concrete proposals for reforms in Ontario based upon what is considered the best in other countries and adapted to the conditions in Ontario. This brief was prepared by a committee of teachers of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation working voluntarily and at their own expense.

Some of the new problems include:

Ontario has approximately 6,600 administrative units operating schools. England and Wales with twelve times the Ontario population has only 317 school authorities or boards and Scotland has but 35.

In no other English-speaking country except Canada and the United States is the educational unit smaller than the county or large city.

English speaking countries except the two above contribute at least half and often the whole cost of education from the central treasury.

Government grants in Ontario average only 13.5 per cent of the total cost of schools; Quebec 6.8 per cent; Nova Scotia 18.1 per cent; New Brunswick 14.7 per cent; Manitoba 13.5 per cent; Saskatchewan 17.6 per cent; only British Columbia and Prince Edward Island approach other systems with state support at 32.9 per cent and 59.1 per cent respectively.

In England and Wales over 50 per cent of school costs is borne by the national treasury with special aid to needy areas, in Scotland the state share is 57 per cent; Northern Ireland 64 per cent; Eire 80 per cent; Irish Free State about 80 per cent; South Africa about 75 per cent by the Union, 25 per cent by the provinces and no local taxation; New Zealand and Australia have a centralized administration with 100 per cent support from the national or provincial treasury.

Today boys and girls from poorer municipalities are entitled to the same opportunities for higher education. As things are today only the children of the well-to-do in Ontario plus a mere handful who win the few available scholarships go to a university. Not a single provincial government nor the national government has ever made any attempt to follow the example of the other self-governing dominions of the Empire to ensure that students of marked ability are able to develop their talents after leaving school. New Zealand with a population of one seventh of Canada's spends as much money as Canadians do on matriculation scholarships. Australia, Scotland, England and Wales, likewise spend a great deal more than Canada on scholarship and maintenance allowances. It is estimated that the British Government in 1934 assisted over 140,000 students of ability and promise who otherwise would have been unable to complete their education.

Consolidation is being discussed in every province of Canada. Alberta has a plan which will likely be the first to become operative, whereby advisory committees would be substituted for 3525 rural school boards now in existence, but all rural schools would be grouped in 45 or 45 administrative divisions, with five directors elected by the ratepayers in each division.

These are some of the problems of which the people will hear more.

THE KING AND COMMERCE

His Majesty King Edward Eighth visited the British Industries Fair at Olympia, and at White City the other day, stopped at a dozen stands and conversed with the exhibitors. It was the visit of a very democratic monarch, in a world in which trade spells prosperity. He asked everywhere "How is trade improving?" "How are conditions?". Everywhere he went he learned of recovery and progress, and he revealed his close knowledge of the facts regarding the different industries.

And humorously the king asked if the paper shirts he saw would wash.

AND I HAVE LOVED

And I have loved this life—its joys, its fears,
Its hopes, its disappointments, through the years;
The little tragedies of infant days.
The withheld kiss—or lack of praise,
The joy complete in knowing loved one near,
The smile that ofttimes formed within a tear.
The youthful hopes, eternal joy of spring,
The world of days—to me an offering;
Desires—some unfulfilled and some regret,
The smiling through—though eyes were ofttimes wet,
The castles that were builded in the air,
The world of love and sunshine and of care.

And then the sober years—so much to do,
Scarce time to learn of friendships, false or true;
The strife for earthly things of gold or power,
The months—ah! yes, the years—lived in the hour.
The castles never finished, scarce begun,
The races, many started, few e'er won.

And now the greying twilight near the end,
The road, once straight before me, nears the bend;
The footsteps that once sped stop off to rest,
The crimson fast is fading in the west;
The bird, that soared so high in morning sun,
Sinks gladly to the earth when day is done.

And I have loved this life, p'rhaps Death the more,
Who wipes from life's soiled slate the doubtful score;
Who, though the task unfinished, takes away
The little blocks half-builded where we play;
Comes when the Soul is straining 'gainst the bars
To find its goal—companionship with stars.

"BRINGING UP FATHER", comic strip created by that famous cartoonist George McManus, with day by day illustrations of the life of the Jiggs family. Jiggs being one of those sons of honest toil who has come up through the ranks from the pick axe period to the nineteenth hole bogey without losing his liking for cornbeef and cabbage and old pals whose fortunes have remained stationary. Maggie, Jiggs' life partner, is different, she wants to get away from the rough stuff and shine in "society," and the conflicting desires of Jiggs and Maggie and daughter make many laughable incidents. Sidelight Fan writes that Friday's episode of Jiggs and Maggie would make a heathen idol made of mud laugh. The other comic strips, she says, are also worth daily perusal. The same correspondent wonders if other readers get the same kick out of the paper that she does. For instance she says, I read every adv. and do I save money in special values advertised? Gives me material for intelligent shopping, says she. And do you know, says this Sidelight Fan, I find value and entertainment in the daily reading of the want advs. F'r instance I saw where someone wanted to buy a hospital bed—another advertiser wanted to purchase a presumably used copy of "Pioneer Life on the Bay of Quinte" which we understand is out of print, Other want advs. offered a White sewing machine for sale, wicker carriage and go-cart, also a Ford V-8 coach. Another adv. which intrigued our correspondent was one which offered two grade Jersey and Ayreshire young cows for sale "or will exchange for pigs". That's the spirit, sell or exchange, keep things moving, the spirit of trade that keeps the world from going stale. Says this correspondent ,do like I do, read the classified advs. on page 7 every day—always interesting reading and generally a surprise or two of exceptional interest. Remember there's more to your local newspaper than the Front Page, Local Page, Sporting Page, Women's Page, Editorial Page. Read your paper carefully so as to get the most good out of it. Remember the daily newspaper of today is the creation of many minds, of many talents, and wonderful machinery bringing you the very latest news of the whole world in word and picture every day.

HUGE GERMAN ZEPPELIN NEARING COMPLETION—The newest German zeppelin, the LZ 130, is pictured in the huge construction hangar at Friedrichshafen, Germany, with the fabric bag being smoothed over its framework of duralumium. When completed and launched this summer, the craft will accommodate a north-Atlantic passenger and mail service between Germany and New York City. Similar in construction to its "smaller sister" the Graf Zeppelin, LZ 129 is almost twice as large as the Graf, being 814 feet long and measuring 135 feet in diameter. The zeppelin will be powered by four motors which will give it a speed of 85 miles an hour and will have luxurious accommodations for 50 passengers, as witnessed by the architect's drawing (above) of the luxurious dining and reading room on A-deck of the nearly-completed zeppelin.

HANDSHAKE ENDS CHACO DISPUTE—With the order "Cease firing" in June, 1935, after three years of bloodshed, Paraguay and Bolivia started a series of diplomatic battles which, for a while threatened the truce. On Feb. 13 Paraguay surrendered the last of her many thousands of Bolivian prisoners, and the peace was made secure at last. On the Paraguay Chaco (the "green belt" that was the bone of contention), the two military leaders are meeting and shaking hands —one momentous occasion in South American history. On the LEFT is Jose Bestigarribia, head of the Paraguayan forces. On the RIGHT is Gen. Enrique Penaranda del Castillo of the Bolivian forces. The war, which cost 100,000 lives, contained some of the bloodiest battles since Gettysburg in the percentage of lives lost. Bolivia, the stronger nation, had many men to the front, strategic moves of the foe, and was forced to grant concessions at the termination of the war.

50TH ANNIVERSARY OF PLEVNA CHURCH

Holy Trinity Church One of Oldest in North Frontenac

Plevna, Feb. 22 Special—Probably one of the oldest churches in the north of Frontenac County is Holy Trinity Church, Plevna, which this year is celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of its opening which took place at its first service, St. Sunday, Feb. 9, 1886.

In the early pioneer days the administration of the church reached those parts only occasionally through the efforts of some devoted, missionary. Then in 1885 it was decided to build a church and soon this was achieved by a body of zealous and enthusiastic church people, led by the late Mr. Frank Edmiston and Mr. G. W. Dawson (afterwards M.P.) now residing at Ottawa.

Opened in Feb. 1886

The building complete it was opened for public worship on Feb. 9, 1886, the service being conducted by the Rev. Mr. Taylor, and the sermon preached by the Rev. C. B. S. Radcliffe.

The worship and work of the church so zealously begun by these pioneers has been faithfully and steadily continued by their successors, toiling together with a succession of many clergymen among whom is named the present Bishop of Kingston, the Rt. Rev. J. Lyons, D.D.

In the coming June this great occasion, the fiftieth anniversary, is to be marked with fitting solemnity by a week of solemn Thanksgiving, arrangements for which are now being made by the Incumbent, Rev. C. E. Newlyn Humphreys and Church Wardens Mr. Ch. Gay and Mr. Acton this was achieved by a strong Church people.

The following gentlemen are expected to take part in the anniversary services—the Rt. Rev. J. Lyons, D.D., the Rev. H. Pringle, the Rev. Doctor Symonds, Toronto, the Rev. A. S. McConnell, the Rev. A. E. Smith and the Rev. A. F. Dowdall and others.

ITALO-GERMANY PACT LINES UP NATIONS OF EUROPE—With the new treaty rumored signed between Italy and Germany, along with Austria, Hungary and Jugoslavia, the map of Europe's forces are gradually aligning for a coming war. The war would seem to resolve itself into a struggle of Fascism vs. the forces of democracy and Communist nation, lined up on the side of liberal democracy. The line-up now is Germany, Italy, Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria and probably Greece against France, Russia, the Little Entente (Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia and Roumania), Belgium and probably Britain. Germany has taken the lead in this alignment, having signed pacts with Poland and now Italy for the express purpose of a "defence against Communism." The map above indicates how the nations are lined up. Spain, with its new left-wing coalition government in power, will likely fall in behind France and Russia.

PLAINFIELD

Plainfield—One of the finest concert programs ever given in a Plainfield audience was rendered on Thursday evening in the United Church, by the Carolina Jubilee Singers, composed of three ladies and three gentlemen all from Chicago and distinguished graduates of Coked universities. This was the first appearance of such a troop in Plainfield and many complimentary remarks were heard from the listeners, most of whom considered it a privilege, that they were permitted to hear such talented artists in their own district.

The program was superior from the standpoint that almost every number of the many selections given contained some moral, that was helpful, being inspirational and entertaining, a rare treat especially to lovers of good singing. The seven numbers with which the program opened were negro spirituals and gave evidence of the natural gifts and perfect training of the artists. Some of these were familiar but rendered with a correctness that made you persons fully acquainted with Darky life and customs could accomplish.

James Shaver, the Secretary of the group, favored himself a master reader in his selection "The Rivals" which was a story of two young men in the quickest ever who should be the sweetheart of a certain young lady and while they tried to settle their differences a third young man came along and stole her heart away.

The selections were such that not only was the ability of the singer evident but the traits and character of the black race were made manifest. The last part of the program took the listener into the home and family life and thereby wonderfully enriched his knowledge concerning Darky life. The last number, previous to singing the National Anthem, "That's Why Darkies Were Born" proved a wonderful climax to a well arranged and highly pleasing entertainment.

The troop while in Plainfield, were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Hagerman, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Parks, Mr. and Mrs. Everson and Mr. and Mrs. George Collins.

Marmora and District

Marmora—A remarkably fine musical program delighted, music-lovers in Marmora on Wednesday evening, when the Carolina Jubilee Singers gave a recital in St. Andrew's United Church under the auspices of St. Andrew's Women's Association. Due to the severe cold the attendance was not as large as it should have been, but the selections were well applauded. The Jubilee Singers are touring Canada from Ontario to the West this year and have been asked for return engagements each place they have given a concert so outstanding is their program.

The recital opened with a number of well-rendered negro spirituals in which the voices of the five artists were combined. These revealed the outstanding training of voice on the part of each member of the group. The second part of the program was opened with the recitation of two excerpts from the great negro poet Dunbars works by the manager and first tenor, James A. Shaver. This was followed by individual efforts on the part of the artists. William Butler, tenor was enthusiastically applauded by the audience with his rendering of "Sweetest Flower That Blooms." His voice had a remarkable sweetness, notwithstanding its great power. Shaver was greatly appreciated by the music-lovers in the audience. J. H. Stallworth, bass soloist, who sang in three octaves rendered some fine numbers in the negro cadence and Miss Idelle Pemberton, soprano was the hearts of her audience with her solos. Both of these artists had a varied repertoire that delight their listeners. Miss Idelle Melrose, contralto and Miss Theodora Wash, accompanist and pianist, completed the group. For their closing numbers, the sextette rendered in the plantation costume and sang the songs reminiscent of the old southland including "Mama's In De Cold, Cold Ground" and "The Holy Babe Was Born" rendered in a powerful and effective manner and which the audience with the sense of being very much entertained by the evening's entertainment.

AIRCRAFT CONTROL PLANS COMPLETE

British Government Will Ensure Steady Make in Time of War

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 22 (CP Cable) — Government plans for far-reaching control of the aircraft industry are near completion. For the time past, an advisory committee of business men has had the matter in hand.

The object of the plans are two-fold:

1. To ensure a steady flow of aircraft from factories in the event of war; and

2. Limitation of profits.

The 'lifter' may be carried out by a profit per centage of from five to 15 per cent being added to the agreed costs over and above which the industries would receive nothing.

The aircraft industry plans are a part of a general scheme for mobilizing industry for war time production if the need arises.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.

Facts — Authority on Health and Psychology

Copyright, 1936, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Paralysis agitans, by no means an uncommon disease, an affection of the nervous system, is chronic and progressive in character, and may be looked upon as an early and premature senility.

The main symptoms consist of tremor, muscular rigidity and muscular weakness. It is rare under forty years of age and most of the cases are between the ages of fifty and seventy.

When it does develop, it comes on very slowly. Occasionally however, symptoms develop quickly, often because of fright, shock or injury. Those suffering from paralysis agitans present a very typical picture in the way they look and walk. The face, markedly expressionless, looks like a mask. There is very little play in the face muscles, registering shades of emotion. The eyes are staring and lifeless.

In standing and walking, these patients have the head bent forward, and the arms are held somewhat clear of the elbows. They give the impression or wanting to run or fall forward. In fact, they have the desire to run and find they can do this more easily than they can walk.

The tremor of fine shaking usually begins in the hands. Often there is more or less constant movement of the thumb and forefinger, as though the patient were in the act of rolling a pill. The legs become affected at some later stage. Occasional movement is sometimes seen noticeable at the ankles.

When the tremor affects the head, the motion is up and down in a vertical plane and not from side to side.

Muscular rigidity is shown by stiffness in the neck, also of many of the back muscles. This makes the patient awkward in all his movements.

Not only is muscular movement slow, it is also markedly weak. Usually the weakness is greatest in the part where there is the most tremor.

Paralysis agitans is really differentiated as a distinct disease apart from other tremors by Dr. Kinnier Wilson. That is why this condition is often called Parkinson's disease.

The cause is organic, certain degenerative changes taking place in the nerves in the gray matter of the brain. The disease is not curable, but the progress may be stopped or the progress may be somewhat arrested.

Many patients do best in dry sunny climates. It is important that they get plenty of rest, sleep and weather. It is likewise best that they be protected as much as possible from excitement, fright or any emotional disturbance.

Tuberculous meningitis is not the same as ordinary meningitis. It is much more serious. In all forms of meningitis, there is an inflammation of the membranes of the brain. In the ordinary form — which is the least serious form of meningitis, involving the membranes of the spinal cord as well as the brain — the disease usually is produced by a germ known as the meningococcus.

In tuberculous meningitis, the offending organism is the tubercle bacillus germ, which, when present in the lungs, causes pneumonia; when in the bones, causes inflammation of the brain coverings more than the spinal cord.

The tubercle bacillus, you see, may cause trouble in any part of the body in which it happens to flourish. If in the bones or joints, it produces tuberculosis in those regions; if in the intestines, it causes inflammation of the intestines; if in the kidneys, a tuberculous infection of the kidneys.

The symptoms and the progress of tuberculous meningitis are not the same as those in the acute ordinary meningitis. In the latter, Flexner's serum has been effective. A definite diagnosis has been made often yields remarkably good results. But it is the only form of treatment that holds out hope for cures to date.

In tuberculous meningitis, however, the disease is more grave and some doctors claim that recovery is impossible. At any rate, it is a disease of long standing, the first symptoms of this disease is in the form of many persistent neglect tuberculosis in the body elsewhere than in the lungs.

I do not mean to imply that every individual who has pain in the neck or stiffness in the neck has meningitis or even that there is a probability that he has. I want you to know, however, that ordinarily tuberculosis can be arrested, if it is properly treated. And we know further that there is always a possibility of cases of this kind which are neglected.

Children are even more prone to develop tuberculous meningitis than are adults. There are cases, indeed, when the disease is primarily manifesting exhibited any signs or symptoms of tuberculosis elsewhere in the system.

Often there is a preliminary stage of generally failing health which lasts for weeks. The child becomes nervous, irritable, peevish and restless. Perhaps such an apparently harmless disorder like whooping-cough or measles precedes, while the child is still in the convalescent stage.

Then definite symptoms of brain disorder appear. There may be convulsions. Usually, however, there are first headaches, vomiting and a slight fever of about 102 or 103.

The pain in the head and back of the neck is severe, and the child cries and often screams. There may be muscular twitching of the limbs. The whole body becomes rigid which might be termed "brain irritation."

Following this stage, the headaches lessen, also the vomiting and, in general, the patient becomes somewhat comatose. Finally this apathetic, unconscious state deepens, and the patient dies from the concentrations of the back and neck muscles and general paralysis.

Adults may become affected as well as children. The disease may run a course of from two to four weeks.

Influenza is one of those conditions which spreads from one person to another. It also attacks rapidly, and, before one is aware of it, there are the perceptions of an epidemic.

One can never be absolutely certain when an influenza is going to be next. And, of course, the reason is that we do not know exactly what the cause may be. Apparently different types of germs may cause influenza.

The diagnosis of influenza often depends a great deal upon the point of view of the physician in charge. In one epidemic, for instance, whereas one physician may call many of the cases, consisting each cough a mere "cold," another calls it an influenza. Therefore, to be on the safe side, however, it is best to look upon all epidemics of colds as being influenza and to take the proper precautions.

Since influenza undoubtedly is transmitted from one person to another, it would be wise, in quarantine all cases, but this seems to be impossible, especially since in many instances the disease is so low and the number of persons affected is quite large. Nevertheless, it has happened frequently that factories, stores, offices and other industries and commerces have been injured because of the lack of employees.

At any rate, the affected individual himself should be isolated from others as much as possible. All discharges from the nose and all material that is expectorated should be burned. Contact with other individuals should be avoided as much as possible. During the course of the disease, it is wise for the patient to stay at home and in bed.

The danger in influenza is that it is apt to be a way of recurring even in the same individual, and therefore the patient should not get up until he takes no chances. At least two days after the temperature has been in conditions where there is no real fever. To get up too soon, or to overdo high, the individual should not get out of bed until the evening of the second day after the fever has gone.

Neither should he feel safe in getting out of bed if any other symptoms have disappeared, until the evening following the day he maintained below 100 degrees for two days. During the course of the disease, the temperature rises, but if the temperature is around 103 or special attention to the bowels is indicated.

Constipation should be given to the bowels. They should be kept open with cathartics that are not too drastic and therefore will not weakening in their effects.

Various remedies for influenza have been suggested and are used for the disease. Personally, I do not believe, however, that there is no special drug for the condition; that other words, the drugs which control the influenza and nothing else.

Hygienic and dietetic opinion as to the best drugs to be used, and many of these are probably more helpful than most. When it comes to drugging, it is certainly wisest to leave it entirely to the doctor. He ought to prescribe for himself.

Even though there is only a physician who can tell whether symptoms neglect indicate something whether they be of the cure, drugs or the digestive tract, and a physician knows what is best to do.

Mrs. P. Longeway, Guelph, says, "For many years I suffered from severe headaches and constipation. Then I tried Fruit-a-tives. They brought me quick relief and I have never been bothered since."

Prepared by a prominent Canadian physician, Fruit-a-tives contains concentrated extracts of ORANGES, BANANES, FIGS, PRUNES and HERBS. Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

Wants to Keep "Steady" Company

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been dating a certain girl for the past six months, and I think she is very lovely. How can I bring up the subject of keeping "steady" company with her?

J.S.R.

Just tell her you are very interested in her then in so many other girls with whom you are acquainted, and that you would like to keep "steady company". Don't be so shy. Even if the girl turns you down, nothing is more flattering than such a request.

He Seems to Have a "Crush" on Himself

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Please have all told me that he has a "crush" on himself, because I have a young man who he is good-looking and has a fine personality. He is very popular, but find it impossible. Should I call him up?

Anxious.

Forewarned is forearmed, as the Gallinde tells us, and if you know this young man has a "crush" on himself, do not be too eager in letting him that you, too, have a "crush" on him.

Shall She Go With an Engaged Man?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We work together at the same place of business, but I knew he was engaged. I tried not to think of him. A little while ago I was laid off, and I missed this young man greatly.

One night he came to visit me. We went for a long motor ride. Before he left he asked me to go out again, and I consented.

Do you think I am doing the right thing in going with a young man who is engaged? The rumor is he is trying to break his engagement.

"Just Afraid".

Three days, my dear, young people do not sacrifice themselves on the altar of mistaken love affairs, as they once did. There was a time when marriages were almost as binding as marriages, and people when they ceased to love their affianced partners or not. Happily, that day is past, and people do not marry unless they are in love or have some ambitious or financial reason.

I do not think you would be breaking any commandment if you go out with this young man.

MOIRA W. A.

The February meeting of the Moira W. A. was held at the spacious home of Mrs. John Morton. The weather was very cold and the roads were bad, but a good number gathered to spend the evening. After every one had shared in the cafeteria supper, the president took the drawing room for the programme. This was Aunt's night and the following programme was given by the men with Mr. Ross Ketchenson acting as chairman. The opening hymn was sung with Miss Norma Ketchenson as pianist. It was followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison, Mr. Gardiner Welsh read the Scripture lesson taken from 13th chapter of 1st Corinthians. We were then favored with a duet by Mr. Charlie Ketchenson, Mr. Milton Vandervoort and Mr. Jay Williams. Mr. Mott gave a talk on sickle and its origin which was very interesting and educational. A song was then given by Master Glen Williams which everyone enjoyed. Three minute talks were given by four of the men, James Vandervoort on "What I Am Thankful For", Mr. John Morton a a trip in an airplane, Mr. Benny Emerson on "My Best Way to Spend $100,000", and Mr. Blake Ketchenson on "The Cyclone of 1866". These short talks were very interesting and amusing. Another trio by Charlie Ketchenson, Joe Williams and Milton Vandervoort was given. A game contest brought this meeting to a close. Collection for the evening was $5.00.

RETURNING THE GIFTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our church recently you explained that in a case of "broken engagement" all expensive gifts are returned. I hope check or engagement ring should by all means be returned.

I am somewhat puzzled about my case. I am not engaged but I have been going with a young man for about four years, although not steadily. It just happened that about a month before Christmas I started seeing him again. I received a beautiful gift from him for Christmas, and in return I gave him quite an expensive gift, too. Unfortunately, we broke off a few days before the New Year. I am not in the habit of accepting gifts of this sort, and I would appreciate it very much if you will help me out of my difficulty by giving me advice as to whether I should return the gift or not? I feel that it would be improper, and that a gift given as a "present" at Christmas or on one's birthday should not be returned, although I would much rather do so. I have not seen him since and my gift has not been returned.

Reader.

There isn't any rule about the returning of such gifts. The rule that applies to this is the rule that governs the gift of flowers. An expensive gifts from a man unless she is engaged to him. In other words is engaged to him. In other words, "expensive" prevents not "cure". This rule was suggested, in this case, to prevent just such regret as you now have. When we have once consider to this rule, then all we can do is to use our good judgment and choice.

Should you especially wish to return the gift, this is the thing for you to do. Your note accompanying it will be, of course, a gracious one, with no reference to unfriendliness of expression. The fact that the young man hadn't returned your gift doesn't affect this matter of yours, since naturally he would hesitate to do this until you have made it clear.

Groom's Gifts to Attendants

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My brother is to be married soon and he would like to give gifts to the attendants. Will you please give me some suggestions so that I will be able to pass the information on to him?

Sister.

The following are appropriate gifts for the groom to give to his best man and ushers:—Cigarette case, gold, silver, leather, black morocco, or with gold initial; pocket watch or wrist watch; gold or silver pencil; gold or silver fountain pen; gold or silver knife; cuff links; watch chain; short gold keychain with gold tag for the monogram; gold key-case and key; gold key ring; long silver key chain; walking stick; match-case, silver or gold; black morocco silk "evening set" consisting of cigarette case, matchcase and walle; cigarette-holder; cane.

Sometimes the groom makes a distinction between the presents he chooses for his best man and those he gives to his ushers. Since the best man holds the position of greater honor in the wedding party he is often given a handsomer or more considerable gift. The gifts are usually given to the attendants at the bachelor dinner which the groom gives to his attendants, but in any rule they are given as some time before the wedding.

Also the groom usually provides the ties, gloves and boutonniers for his best man and ushers. He usually buys the ties and the gloves to their home, and the boutonnieres are sent to the home of the girl the best man and ushers receive them.

PADRE OF THE POOR" 72 IS TEARS OLD—The Right Rev. Mgr. Nelson H. Baker the "Padre of the Poor", whose charities have made his name known throughout the Catholic world, is aided by two of his little orphans in celebrating his seventy-second birthday. Mgr. Baker, was believed to be only 94 years old, but the chancellor of the Diocese of Buffalo came upon the baptismal records only a few days ago and added another year. Advancing age has sapped the strength of Mgr. Baker and he no longer manages the "second boy city," which he built at Lackawanna, N.Y. It is a $2,000,000 group of buildings devoted to the sick, the needy and orphans. In two generations more than 26,000 orphan and homeless boys have found shelter there.

Fashion Flashes

A GOOD FRIEND for the southern wardrobe is a two-piece dress of white wool jersey with a detachable navy blue gilet with white shantung collar and cuffs.

MATTE it isn't strictly a fashion then, but just the same, we can't help reporting on the charm of a trunk the inside of which fly open to reveal drawers that carry hats in tender firmness not to spoil, and sixteen pairs of shoes in padded luxury. The trunk, which looks like a small low chest, is of striped duck.

DON'T MIND bad weather when going out at night. There are many gay vintage hats of velvet in furry trimming. These come in all sorts of pastels, as well as white, and have an invisible fastener. They are wool-lined and fit a three-inch heel.

DRESSING UP simple sports frocks is easy if one has a good collection of hats. Most useful is a belt of red, black, white and yellow patent ribbon fastened with wooden frogs.

A REAL BOON long awaited is the hat of white pique or linen or fabric fabric to wear with one's back. The bat can be unbuttoned, folded flat and stowed away, then popped back on the head again. A hit for the tennis court and a sure hit at home next Summer.

COLD NIGHTS down south bring out charming fashions. One woman wears a dinner dress of thin white woolen, with jacket buttoned high on the neck and worn over a pleated white chiffon blouse. Over this she wears a long cape of white caracul.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

During the fall and winter months, when the amount of sunshine from air and exercise we get is necessarily less than in the summer, we must vitamins all the more to make up this deficiency. Our daily diet, therefore, should include some milk, at least one egg, fresh vegetables and fruit in season and either orange or lemon juice.

Weddings

RICKETTS—MATTHEWS

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday, February 22nd, at seven p.m. at the residence of the officiating minister, the Rev. R. E. Newman, 44 Hillside Street, when Ethel Dorotha, daughter of Mr. Albert Matthews and the late Mrs. Matthews, was united in marriage with Eric Warren Ricketts, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Ricketts.

The bride was gowned in navy silk crepe and matching accessories and wore a corsage of Premier roses.

Miss Evelyn Matthews was her sister's bridesmaid, also wearing navy crepe and hat. Her corsage was of daffodils and mauve sweet peas.

Mr. Arthur Angell ably supported the groom.

After a honeymoon trip, Mr. and Mrs. Ricketts will reside at 53 Ontario Street.

SHORT—BOUNTON

St. Matthias' Anglican Church, Toronto, was the setting for an interesting wedding Saturday when Edith Marion, daughter of Charles H. Horton and the late Mrs. Horton, became the bride of Sydney Short, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Short, Ber. Canon F. H. Hartley officiating. Spring flowers decorated the church and Mr. J. Hopkirk played the wedding music. The bride, given away by her father, wore a becoming gown of powder blue suede lace with matching hat and powder blue accessories. She carried Johanna Hill roses and freesia. Miss Alice Horton attended her sister in a frock of peach suede lace, matching hat and powder blue accessories, she carried Talisman roses. Mr. Ernest A. Harman of St. Thomas was best man and the ushers were Mr. Arthur E. Bounton, brother of the bridegroom. After the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home where the bride's aunt received in a gown of navy blue flat crepe, navy accessories and corsage of pink roses and white freesia. The groom's mother wore a gown of midnight blue georgette with black accessories and corsage of orchids and lilies of the valley. Later the bridal pair left for the United States, the bride travelling in a three piece suit of tailored crepe and black accessories. On their return they will reside on Bleecker Avenue, Belleville.

REARM EMPIRE AS SINGLE UNIT

Cost Will Aggregate Billion "And Half" Dollars

London, Feb. 24 (CP)—Britain's bill for armaments (even higher than Chancellor Neville Chamberlain's budget estimate of $1,000,000,000) forecasts it will be larger and more costly than even the staffs of the nation first anticipated.

That "the Empire be treated as one unit and be rearmed accordingly" the Express adds that the Committee of Imperial Defence and Trades Unions in the next few weeks to propose a three-year long-term programme to which industrial can concentrate on the rush to put Britain's defences in order against quick-firing guns.

The Mail attacks today "our screaming sanctionists" who "are demanding punitive measures against Italy that would bring the rearmament in Britain." The "simple lads" prevailing in the government adds the Daily Mail, "comes with the crises that have arisen which has throughout history enriched its empire by methods which the virtuous governments have not hesitated to stigmatize as aggressive—from the conquest of Egypt, the conquest of the Boer Republics".

Emeralds Play "Inspired Hockey Trying to Reach Playoffs

Ottawa, Feb. 24 (CP)—LaSalle defeated Royal Canadian Air Force 5-4 Saturday night to capture the final game in the two-out-of-three semi-finals series in the Ottawa Senior City Hockey League.

Playing overtime LaSalle's goal was the scoring early in the first period when Eddie Coulter shot from behind the line for the most surprising counter of the game. Two minutes later Coulter got on which the Flyers' goalie, Louis St. Denis, looked after form the game's first three-goal lead when play entered the middle period. The teams scored two goals each in the third period and R.C.A.F. outscored its rivals 1-0 in the fifth session.

Although three easy goals were scored in the first period, play phased brilliantly in the last two periods. He outgossed LaSalle forwards and defence but in the end when they had no one but him to work with. Jimmy Ward, with the A. F. squad up the ice on gang plays, but Coulter was the only one able to get into the playoffs for the Ottawa Senior City League Hockey championship. Emerald Brockville Macdonas 8-4 in overtime here Saturday night. It was the first defeat of the locals on home ice this season.

The Emeralds made Brockville look poor with their determined back checking which broke up the muchvaunted combination of the Macdonas on many occasions and tradition of goal for goal with them throughout the game.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied by Bigger and Crawford by Financial Service.

Read Ambitor

Although the shares of Read-Ambitor have had a very appreciable advance since last summer, the stock is holding very steady above the $1.75 level.

The asset value of the stock is still well above the current market value so may be seen in the following tabulation:

	Approx. Value Market	Today
980,000 shares Lamaque	$ 2.40	$2,360,000
1,450,000 shares Sigma Mines	2.00	2,900,000
100,000 shares Pit Sigma	30.00	30,000
Cash and Govt. Bonds		15,000
Totals		$5,965,000

Latest reports indicate only 1,720,-681 shares of Read-Ambitor outstanding (authorized 2,000,000 shares of $1 par value) Ambitor are in approximately $2.25 a share. Liabilities are very negligible.

It has been definitely declared that no options are outstanding on the unissued shares of Read-Ambitor.

Nu Sigma

This company is still in the Syndicate stage with the price of the shares having recently advanced from about $30 to $80. The Company is proceeding with a programme of diamond drilling and to date has given very encouraging results.

There was rumour recently to the effect that the Company was negotiating with McIntyre Porcupine for the amalgamation but this has been denied by the Read-Ambitor management so new company would be formed and Read-Ambitor would retain a large interest in it. There are thus prospects that in the near future Read-Ambitor may own a large block of shares in a new company which should be developing a promising prospect adjoining Sigma Mines. It is difficult to judge the merits of the potential value of this asset, but it is very likely that if a well-known mining financier such as McIntyre, Dome, etc., takes control under an option agreement of the new company, the shares would immediately command a premium, as is always the case under such circumstances. The result would be an important increase in the asset-value of Read-Ambitor holdings.

Brokers report to Financial Service that although there has been a considerable amount of profit-taking in Read-Ambitor shares lately the buying has been of a high calibre.

McIntyre

According to recent statements, which have not been denied, McIntyre Porcupine Mines holds 100,000 shares of International Nickel at a cost of about $3 a share. With Nickel selling at $3, the appreciation in the McIntyre holding in Nickel is $3,000,000, or the equivalent of close to $3.00 a share on the issued capital of McIntyre-Porcupine.

The market last week was a very active one after which there was a high recorded on heavy volume. We are presently in the midst of the largest bull market since the boom summer of 1933 and prevailing conditions are reminiscent of the bull days of 1928 and 1929. Although there is nothing on the immediate horizon to indicate that the present buoyancy, reactions from time to time should be anticipated.

The character of stock market movements has undergone numerous changes during the past seven years—as witness the almost unprecedented price rise which now persisted for nearly a year in Wall Street. Nevertheless minor reactions are likely to occur at any time and investors should be prepared for such intervening periods. Over advance, however, would present opportunities for additional acquisitions at lower prevailing prices. It may now appear temporarily to have outstripped prospects. Eventually the good grade bonds as part of one's total holdings is fully justified in terms of special investment objectives, but for the average investor the emphasis on selected common stock appears to be an intelligent course.

The equipment stocks were strong on the theory that Canadian Car common and preferred selling up to new highs. After a lapse of nearly five years, the prospect is for them to participate in the considerable boom forecasted in the current year, while the profits accruing from the orders received in 1935 will be reflected in this year's annual statement. The same applies to Canadian Steel Foundries common.

Nevada Comes To Life

One of the amazing mining romances of the past few years has been Nevada Mines Limited which is an outstanding example of gold mining in Canada. Nevada has a controlling interest in other properties which are busy looking very promising. Revenue from sources should be substantial from now on.

The shares of this company were listed on the London Stock Exchange on January 22nd last but owing to the time or writing only a nominal interest has appeared in the issue. Without sponsorship no issue can go very far but in this connection, it is understood that Horsley & Co. will be piloted in London. If so, the stock should build up a large following over the course of time.

Some people are wondering for how much longer International Nickel has scored such a sensational recovery. The stock in 1935 touched $43.50 and in 1929 it reached $92 and 1937 were at the highest level in the history of the company and while admittedly consumption for armament purposes will be a tremendous responsible, the peace-time demand is steadily gaining. In January 1935 consumption in Canada amounted to 972,944. In January of this year, the figure had risen to 3,541,182, or about five times as much as four years ago. In fact, the consumption of nickel last month were more than $1,000,000 ahead of 1935. Production for a continuation of the earnings progress by the company in 1936.

Packard's success marketwise lately has inspired bulls on Studebaker. The former, of course, has established a formidable position for its lower-priced car whereas Studebaker is still struggling to make a comeback. But the latter is selling at a fraction of the former's market appraisal. Packard at around 13 is selling for about $180,000,000 while Studebaker at 3¾ is capitalized at all its debentures are converted at $40,000,000. Cram's figures for the first week ended February 15th indicated 2,710 cars against 1,500 for Packard.

Health Minister Leaves Matter to Solicitor

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 24 (CP)—The Ontario Department of Health is leaving it up to make a ruling regarding the legality of Windsor's Clinic, Dr. Charles Brown, Health Council is notified in a letter received today from Health Minister Faulkner.

Council several months ago received a grant from the Provincial Health League, operating a birth control clinic in the city for some time, for a period of six months.

The request won support in Council, but aroused a storm of protest from several Roman Catholic organizations in the city, particularly the Catholic Women's League and Knights of Columbus.

No action was taken on the request Council deciding to ask the Government of Ontario for a ruling on the legality of the Clinic. Dr. Faulkner's letter said it was a matter for the City Solicitor to decide.

NIGHT SESSION TO DISCUSS BILL

Government Will Also Discuss School Grant in Cabinet

Toronto, Feb. 24 (CP)—Committee discussion of the bill to levy Ontario's first province-wide income tax chiefly on the shoulders of the legislature today as members returned after the week-end adjournment.

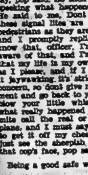
The House went into committee on the bill Wednesday night after it received second reading and started work on it again Friday. If necessary, a night session will take place tonight as the government wants the bill on the statute books as quickly as possible.

Details of the bill to grant Separate Schools a larger share of corporation taxes will be discussed at a government caucus tomorrow. It is not known, when the measure will be introduced in the legislature.

Other legislation to be brought in includes bills to amend the Corporations Tax Act and the Succession Duties Act. These measures were discussed Saturday at a highly secret meeting called to review legislation.

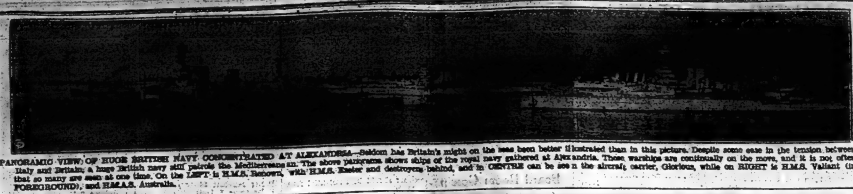
Premier Hepburn said the object of the Succession Duties Act amendment was to tighten up the act and eliminate present loopholes in it.

Little Benny's Note Book



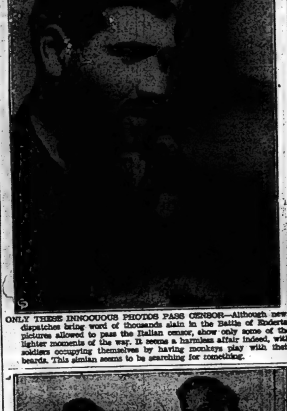
Me and pop was taking a walk and we was just starting to go across a street and there was a fireman whistle, being a traffic cop blowing and waving us to go back to the curb again with the other people that was standing there waiting, and the traffic cop wasn't so over to pop with his arms crossed and his chin sticking out even more than it stuck out usual, saying, Dont you know these signal lites are as much for pedestrians as they are for drivers?

Why, pop said, and the traffic cop said, Dont give me no argyments, you're the instigater before the crime, that's what you are. The first thing you know some more people would be following you and there would be an accident to somebody and you'd disgreece like a thief in the nite. Try to get that through your head and remember it in future, will you? he said.

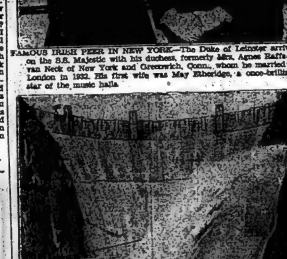


Yes, officer, pop said, and the cop blew his whistle and everybody waited over including me and pop, pop saying I feel like a deliberate criminal. I feel like a squished worm. In front of all those people, yes sode. There's only one thing can make me feel better, he said, and I said, O, pop, what?

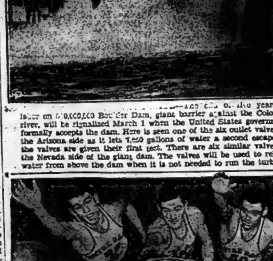
I've got to say what I would of said to that cop if I had said what a man of my force of character would really of been expected to say, pop said. He then theoretically speaking what happened was this. He said to me, Don't you know these signal lites are as much for pedestrians as they are for drivers? and I promptly replied, Yes, I know that, officer, I'm quite well aware of that, and I'm also aware that my life is my own to do with as I please, and if I care to risk it anywalking it's strickly my own concern, so dont give me any argyment and go back to your post and blow your little whistle. That's what really happened on what you mite call the real or subconscious plane, and I must say I'm relieved to get it off my chest, and I can just see the sheepish silly look on that cops face, pop said



Being a good safe way to see it.

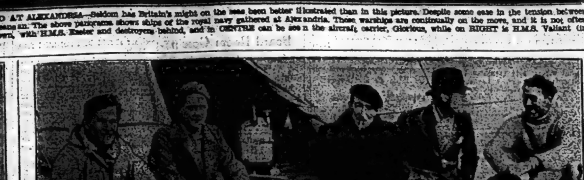


"GREASED PALMS"—Captain John Hall, director of the Sperry Armaments Company, Ltd., testified recently before the royal commission which is inquiring into the private armaments industry in Great Britain. The British inquiry is being held while the U. S. senate munitions committee is probing the same business in the United States. During his testimony, Captain Hall admitted that "palm greasing" was frequent in consummating sales of arms, saying "People are not going to do anything for nothing." Captain Hall had boasted in a letter read at the Washington munitions inquiry, that his firm could sell enough surplus rifles from the stocks of the British war office "to alter the political balance of power of smaller states."



PANORAMIC VIEW OF HUGE BRITISH NAVY CONCENTRATED AT ALEXANDRIA—Seldom has Britain's might on the seas been better illustrated than in this picture. Despite some ease in the tension between Italy and Britain, a huge British navy still patrols the Mediterranean. The above panorama shows ships of the royal navy gathered at Alexandria. These warships are continually on the move, and it is not often that so many are seen at one time. On the LEFT is H.M.S. Resown, with H.M.S. Exeter and destroyers behind, and in CENTRE can be seen in the distant, carrier, Glorious, while on RIGHT is H.M.S. Valiant (in FOREGROUND), and H.M.S. Australia.

ONLY THESE INNOCUOUS PHOTOS PASS CENSOR—Although news dispatches bring word of thousands slain in the Battle of Enderta, pictures allowed to pass the Italian censor, show only some of the lighter moments of the war. It seems a harmless affair indeed, with soldiers occupying themselves by having monkeys play with their beards. This similar scene is by searching for something.



FAMOUS RUSH FEED IN NEW YORK—The Duke of Leinster arrives on the S.S. Majestic with his duchess, formerly Mrs. Agnes Raffalsi van Neck of New York and Greenwich, Conn., when he married in London in 1922. The first wife was May Etheridge, a once-brilliant star of the music halls.

[illegible] on Niagara river, years of age, will be [illegible] March 1 when the United States government formally accepts the dam. Here is seen one of the six outlet valves on the Ontario side as it lets 7,000 gallons of water a second escape, as the valves are given their first test. There are six similar valves on the Niagara side of the giant dam. The valves will be used to release water from above the dam when it is not needed to run the turbines.

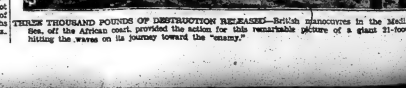
"CANADIAN GUNBOAT"—Charges and counter-charges of graft and "tar" in the buying of a gunboat from Canada for Brazilian revolutionists in 1932 flew back and forth at the senate munitions committee hearing in Washington in which Jose Candido de Pinedo, above, a New York city munitions exporter, and F. S. Zimmerman, a broker, disguised as to who got the commission for selling the cutter.



ONTARIO RINKS CURLING IN ANNUAL BONSPIEL—Ontario's ninth annual curling bonspiel—an event always popular among wielders of the broom—drew a huge entry of rinks to Toronto for some of the most closely contested games in the history of the meet. Three of the quartets still busy with the stones after nearly four days of curling were over, are shown here. At the top W. J. Drysdale's rink from Kinnston appear. The members are W. J. Drysdale, skip; G. R. Gales, vice; Herb Johnston, getting away his shot, and S. Craig. The Lindsay four, skipped by A. H. Everson, are shown in the panels, with R. Greenhalgh and W. Langdon in the left square, and Everson and R. Burke, vice, at the right. Port Carling's entry of A. Stephen, R. Obbs, I. Leash and D. Brooks are seen across the bottom. Mr. Stephen is the "big chief" for this quartet.

STONE CAESAR—As mighty as the Caesar, as immobile as the Sphinx is this powerful head of Dictator Mussolini of Italy, shown after it had been carved from the living rock outside Adowa, Ethiopia. The majestic head is fifteen feet high and was erected to mark the spot where Italy revenged its defeat of 1896, as one of its first triumphs in the conquering of Haili Selassie's kingdom.

TERSE THOUSAND POUNDS OF DESTRUCTION RELEASED—British manoeuvres in the Mediterranean Sea, off the African coast, provided the action for this remarkable picture of a giant 21-foot torpedo hitting the waves on its journey toward the "enemy."

With the Boy Scouts

A Scout smiles and whistles under all difficulties — 8th Scout Law.

We regret that news items of local interest are scarce this week but all Troops are carrying out their Winter training at their weekly meetings. The new Cub Pack (Junior Scouts) is flourishing under the leadership of James Allison. We have a report that twelve of his boys have passed their first Star Tests.

World Briefs

130 Toronto churches support Boy Scout troops: Anglican 31; United, 34; Presbyterian, 30; Roman Catholic, 8; Baptist, 4; Jewish, 3.

Scout's Quickness Saves His Father — A towel and a bathroom plumber were successfully used by a Prince Edward Island Scout for a tourniquet and tightener when a speedike piece of glass severed an artery in his father's leg. Because of the depth of the cut and the rapid bleeding, the lad's prompt efficiency was credited by the doctor with saving his father's life.

250 Trucks for Scout Relief Work —In response to an appeal of the late Queen of the Belgians for clothing for the needy, the Boy Scouts of Brussels organized a "Journee de l'Habit-Ade." They borrowed 250 lorries, equipped them with posters and loud speakers, and made a house-to-house collection with such success that a second depot had to be opened.

There were 30,801 Boy Scouts and leaders in Canada at the end of 1935. This was an increase during the year of 22.4 per cent.

Scouts Doing Their Relief Work "BIT"—Reports from such widely separated points as Midland, Ont., and Wetaskiwin, Alta., reflect the Dominion-wide extent of Boy Scout contributions to relief work. On the same Saturday the Midland Scouts were making a house-to-house canvass for clothing for the Red Cross, and the Wetaskiwin boys for the local Welfare League.

Dominion Safe with Ontario Youth—"Often when a man builds a house and creates an estate his son destroys his work. This is indeed discouraging; but to us adults of this generation who have done our part toward building Canada it is a happy thought that when we are gone you boys, the coming generation, will take care of and further our Dominion. I love Canada; and I know she is safe in your hands." — Ven. Archdeacon John L. Almond, to Trinity Memorial Scouts, Montreal.

V. C.'s become "Boy Scouts" — Two distinguished army heroes, "V. C.'s" repeating the obligations of a great world-brotherhood and friendship holy was a recent unique Ottawa happening. The officers, Col. G. R. Pearkes, V. C., D. S. O., M. C., and Major M. F. Gregg, V. C., M.C., stood in a horseshoe of Boy Scouts of the Ottawa Legion Troop, and took the Scout Promise of loyalty, service and good world-brotherhood. The two officers are actively associated with the doings of the troop, the boys of which are also sons of ex-service men.

Dale Plays The Game

BY

Ann Forester

He recalled the white fury of her face the day she had told him she loved me, her rival. He was absorbed in himself then and in his own disappointment over Mimi. He hadn't fathomed that thought.....

But now he came to think of it it was strange, a girl with a face like Dale's being in that dreary old town. Just being tired of the stage didn't explain it. Must have been something concrete—some special jolt which had thrown her out of her orbit—flung her into the inconspicuous surroundings where he had found her. And a jolt to a pretty girl always meant a man.....

Suddenly a jealous fancy was playing in Brant's heart and he found himself scowling at the head of golden head of his wife as she sat making the fourth at the bridge table. As soon as he recognized it he strove to combat it. Jealous of Dale because she had known other men before he met her? Oh, ridiculous! He wasn't that small, he honestly did. Look at the girls he'd known in college days—show girls, debutantes he'd taken to the dances—football games. Look at Mimi.....

But logic failed to quench the heart-burning. Brant drenched the flame in cold humor—he scorched it in self scorn. He ignored it—pretending it had never been. But it remained burning like a dull red coal far down in his heart.

And Dale knew it was there; knew it and resented it; now warm with anger, now cold with fear. She loved Brant. She knew he loved her—yet everything they did helped to build this wall of misunderstanding between them.

And Mimi knew it was there. Mimi understanding—undermining.....

The long eye stole to Brant brooding in the armchair; then over on Dale's bent head and a faint smile of satisfaction. Like a small cruel flame played around Mimi's lips.

That night, when they were alone Dale made another effort to break through the riding wall. Tearing one finger solemnly down Brant's nose in an old playful trick she said earnestly: "Darling, why can't we run on our own this year and visit the family? I'm just hungry for the sight of Pa and Honey....."

Brant smiled and moved his head gently from the tormenting finger. His eyes met hers but the old warm understanding did not flash between them.

"If I can see my way clear we'll find out," he said and there was a lonely echo in his voice. "I'd like to see the old place again. We were happy then....."

We were happy—then! The words went ringing through Dale's head as she lay wide eyed in the dark. If she could only crawl into Brant's mind—know what he thought! He had been growing away from her in the past few months. No longer companions—they were a unit. Tonight there had been a look in his eyes which she had not seen since the first days of their acquaintance—bleak—unforgiven. His pride was so quick . . . Brant—why, it was almost as though he had vanished . . . as though the man she knew and loved had never existed . . .

CHAPTER 49

ONE RAINY DAY

Now Dale began to be aware of the fog of the undertow. Beneath the apparent serenity of the days flowed the current cross currents—undercurrents. Somehow a hidden antagonism—Brant's growing aloofness . . . And now Phil's unexplaining reappearance in her life.

Was it all chance—or was there a lowering hand involved pattern? Could she guide it by being frank—or could she stop it by pretense? Unhappily Dale asked herself this and received as no conclusion. She tried to guide it by begging Brant again for a home of their own. It led to a quarrel—not violent but filled with bitter exasperation. Irritable from the worries of a business which he was secretly fearful about, Brant scorned her offer of economy and hindrance. Dale bitterly defended herself. Finally Brant stalked out, which left them in each other's arms but miles apart in thought.

Bitter drift—though they did gradually draw in, like carry it where it would, and Phil came to see her.

Dale received him in the little alcove off the library; that was the best place because it was remote and seclusion from any one descending the stairs or passing along the hall. She didn't want Mimi in or out. She found herself sitting in a deep chair across from Phil, the tea table between to be a safe table.

Grey rain laced the windows and a small fatish fire crackled in the grate and reflected itself in the polished black surface of the teak wood screen. It created an air of intimacy which she wished to avoid.

When she first heard of Phil's arrival she had been dismayed even affronted. It must be rather modestly as Erica Sanford's tea was one thing. To have him seek her out in her own home was quite another. Who but Phil would jilt a girl and then casually call upon her! Dale thought with an angry little laugh. But the anger wasn't there. After all, it was rather ridiculous under the circumstances. The time to have been cool to have snubbed him was the other day at the tea. And anyway, Phil meant nothing to her any more; Dale told herself. The very fact that she felt no resentment toward him proved this, didn't it?

Besides, she didn't want to snub him. People weren't mid-Victorian now a days. If you were jilted today you got over it and married someone else or else you didn't. The next saw the gay deceiver you treated him with the same brisk off hand friendliness you would use toward any other chance acquaintance you met. Or so you knew.

So Dale was bright and impersonal as she greeted Phil. She had the butler set out the tea and she would have been more than human had she not felt the little glow of pride as she handled the egg shell china and the gleaming silver—moving her hands deftly above the gate-legged table. And as she demurely poured the tea, she wondered if Phil too was thinking of the times she had poured tea for him on an alcohol stove in the tray of her trunk. Tea and cheese and crackers—their meals during the days when they made .....

They talked, nervously alert lest silence fall between them. Phil sketched the past two years. The Princess Bride had come to a painful end in Kansas City, . . . By using Delorme's influence, Phil got a screen test in Hollywood. He filmed well and was cast opposite a female star. But nothing much had come of it. Back again into Broadway in the middle west with bungling yes set on the big time in the east, a meeting with Erma Hanford—"And here I am.

Dale was interested in playing this little game. Idle women, more than Dale had ever been, meet attractive men in their spare time—

She watched Phil with earnest eyes as he talked and her quick mind filled in the gaps. Life Delorme had been thrown over when Phil served her usefulness . . . She had served her purpose as Phil had thrown her over . . . just as he would throw Erma She shouldn't tolerate him—Brant would pitch him out of the house—

But it was hard to think he was a roller . . . as he sat there, alien and handsome, bases eyes burning un-

There's a Little Nikina scrambled quickly over the bodies of the kneeling blacks and leaped to Tarzan's shoulder, where he clung about his neck. "You have done well, Muviro," said Tarzan to the Waziri leader who had fought for him in many grim campaigns. And also little Nkima."

"We have always kept a day's march ahead of the savages, Bwana," replied Muviro, "scattering on the trail that they might not discover our fresh camp sites and become suspicious. But now your presence," said Tarman.

"I heard their talk."

"Where the dirt of the trail was soft, a warrior who wounded at the war brushed away the traces of our spoor with a leafy bough," explained Muviro. "However we shall veil here for them!" said Tarzan, "and tonight you shall listen while I tell you our plans" . . .

AT THE CAPITOL

"Bird Lady"

Perfect Crime Attempted in New Mystery

The most breathless suspense and romance mingle in an exciting detective story in "Bird Lady," Edgar Wallace's latest transcription at Trenton Capitol's story, now showing at the Capitol theatre.

It belongs to the screen's new and outstanding team in Allan Mowbray, the publicity Aunt Lily of "Life, Wilderness!", and Basil Rathbone, sinister Mundissoro of "David Copperfield," in a mighty story with a surprising dramatic twist, evolved as only powerful Wallace plots can.

Miss Mowbray, as Mary Herries, wealthy bird-fancier recluse, and Rathbone the sinister Sherry Abbott, who posed a "Perfect Crime" to rob and do away with Mary. When she tries to befriend him, through a series of carefully calculated circumstances he gets into her household, and subsequently sets out to drive her mad, until, through an ingenious dramatic twist, Scotland Yard comes to the rescue.

Miss Mowbray gives a powerful dramatic performance as the persecuted woman, and Rathbone is at his best in silken villainy. Romance is injected into the plot by Frank Albertson and Mary Carlisle as the young lovers. The cast includes Doris Lloyd, Dudley Digges, Murray Kinnell, Frank Reicher, Donald Meek, Nola Luxford, Ely Malyon and two of the original New York stage cast — Justine Chase and Sarah Shields.

George Seitz directed from Samuel Scribner's screen dramatization of the Edgar Wallace stage version, and Lucien Hubbard produced.

Both human touches and comedy moments, and a bit of spectacle in the reproduction of the King's garden party in Buckingham Palace are said to be among the mystery of London of today.

If you have already started collecting the new "Jigsaw Jewelry" set, shoppers at Trenton theatre on Monday or Tuesday and receive absolutely free a piece of this beautiful practical costume jewelry.

AT THE REGENT

"Strike Me Pink"

A Riot of Fun, Music and Pulchritude Rules

Eddie Cantor kept the Belle Theatre audiences in gales of laughter on Saturday as the pathetic little product of a comedian's genius in which his personality dominates, in "Strike Me Pink", his new Samuel Goldwyn screen musical in which he is supported by Parkyakarkus, Ida Gruen, "second" of radio fame, and Tamales then on the air, Sally Eilers, Ethel Merman, William Frawley and a surprising new crop of Goldwyn Girls.

Eddie is a timid Little Caspar Milquetoast who adores Joyce Lamont (Ethel Merman), a glamorous night club singer. Through a jaunt at Sale he becomes manager of Dreamland Amusement Park and gets mixed up with a ruthless gang of crooked slot machine racketeers, upon whom he uses his magazine finger, super-concentrating, and, with the aid of dozens of comedy gags, he wins.

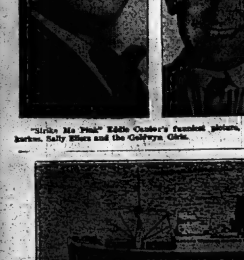
Helena Fee

Ethel Merman is grand and puts over some of the film's small Harold Arlen-Lew Brown song hits in her inimitable style. You'll be reminded of "Print You Blow Me High, Then You Have Me low"; "Calabash Pipe" and "The Lady Dances." Sally Eilers is delightful as Claribel, Helen Lowell, Cora Witherspoon, Nick Dunlevy, Jack Lailan, Sunnie O'Dea, and Edward Brophy also shine.



Handsomely mounted and studded with side-splitting gags and some good songs, "Strike Me Pink" is a riot of fun that moves at rollercoaster pace. Eddie Cantor and Parkyakarkus at their hilarious best.... and that's plenty funny.

Next attraction at the "The Adventures of Poppye", the Belle Lodeo World Famous Rodeo parade the exhibition of the feature attraction. . . .

A entire program will be repeated again tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday, matinee and evening. Our advice is don't miss this outstanding show.

MEDWOLED CANADIAN—Spectators at the Olympic games in Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, gaped when Mrs. Diane Gordon-Lennox appeared on the ski courses as a member of the Canadian women's ski team, sporting a monocle. They cheered her to the echo however as she took the difficult course, wearing the eyeglass, despite the handicap of a fractured arm suffered during practice meets in Switzerland. Mrs. Gordon-Lennox, shown above at the scene is a daughter of Lady Elizabeth of Ottawa and the late Admiral Sir Charles Kingsmill.

BOXER SUCCUMBS AFTER OPERATION INQUEST ORDERED

Enquiry Will be Delayed Ten Days Pending Autopsy

OPPONENT NOT HELD

Fred Matthews Knocked Out in "White Hope" Tourney

Toronto, Feb. 24 (CP)—Inquest into the death of Fred Matthews in a hospital here over the week-end will be delayed pending an autopsy on the 22-year-old boxer from Armfield in the Rosyn mining district of Quebec. Knocked out by Pat Flanagan, of London, Ont., in a heavyweight elimination tournament here last week, the rugged young miner was carried from the ring unconscious and died Saturday of a brain hemorrhage.

The 207-pound Matthews never recovered consciousness after Flanagan's flailing glove struck him behind the ear. An operation was performed Saturday in an effort to relieve the flooded brain but Matthews died a few hours later.

Mrs. Charles Karas of Noranda, his sister, reported the young athlete was operated upon eight years ago for a mastoid. Dan Matthews, his brother, and Mrs. Alice Soloby of Timmins, another sister, said Fred always wished a ring career and had high hopes of money in the heavyweight division. Fred, one of many elimination tourneys under sponsorship of Jack Dempsey, to choose a White Hope to meet Max Baer here against Joe Louis, the Brown Bomber of Detroit.

The young miner saved $70 and entered the tourney. Awkward in style, he won a decision in five rounds from Alex Rennis and then knocked out Ale Alewaid of North Bay. His next opponent was Flanagan. Flahagan toppled Matthews in the first round and 13,000 watching in the monotonous youth was carried from the ring. When he failed to revive in the dressing rooms he was sent to hospital. An X-ray showed no fracture of the skull.

Drained Blood.

Dr. David Frazil drained blood from the brain Saturday and the stricken youth showed some improvement but relapsed and died at 5 p.m.

Dr. W. L. Robinson, pathologist, will present a report to the coroner on the autopsy.

Sgt. Albert Johns, city detective, interviewed Flanagan but did not detain him. Flanagan later was reinstated from the tournament won by Phil Munroe of Toronto.

Daniel Matthews said he was told his brother complained of a headache and stomach trouble between bouts. "I don't know why he was allowed to continue," he said.

Dr. James A. Faulkner, Provincial Minister of Health, said the Ontario Athletic Commission of which he is chairman will meet immediately to decide what action should be taken.

Playfair Brown, one of the promoters, said Matthews had not complained of any illness to the two doctors present at the bouts. The promoter said he and his colleagues would pay funeral expenses and the hotel and hotel expenses of the two sisters, brother and brother-in-law from the north.

His father and mother, another sister and another brother live in Gilbert Plains, Man., it was reported.

Two Bouts End Fatally.

Burnaby, B.C., Feb. 24 (CP)—The death of Fred Matthews in Toronto from injuries suffered in the ring recalled to Constable Harry Twist of the British Columbia Provincial Police today two fights which ended fatally for his opponents when he was known as Harry "Young" Nanconny, a contender for the Canadian middleweight crown.

Runnorn knocked out Weldon Chamberlayne Howard of Winnipeg in Moose Jaw, Sask., the night of Mar. 15, 1922. Howard died Sept. 1 and died the next morning in hospital. His skull was fractured.

Runnorn won a decision from Jimmy Plaine in 10 rounds at Assiniboia, Sask., Jan. 1924. Plaine's jaw was knocked down several times. Plaine died two days later in hospital from over-exertion.

Killed At Calgary.

Calgary, Feb. 24 (CP) — Luther McCarthy, a United States heavyweight, was killed in a professional boxing bout in Calgary, May 24, 1913, it was recalled today when it was learned Fred Matthews of Armfield, Que., had died in a Toronto hospital from injuries suffered in his boxing ring.

McCarthy suffered a fractured vertebra in the neck after about two minutes of the first round of a bout with Arthur Pelkey, a French-Canadian from Ontario. Eyewitnesses said there seemed to be only two solid blows hit. Pelkey hit McCarthy on the jaw and over the heart a fraction of a second later. McCarthy collapsed and was dead when attendants reached him.

Pelkey was acquitted on a charge of manslaughter after a trial before a supreme court judge and jury.

It was stated McCarthy had hit his head on bottom in a dive while swimming two days before the bout. It was believed the vertebra was broken then and Pelkey's punch knocked the bone out of place.

Tonny Bill Hall of Ottawa, formerly of Hamilton, died here in 1930 from injuries received during a tournament between Queen's University and Ottawa Y.M.C.A. boxers.

Paul Vaillancourt fighting against Wolley of Kingston and received several stunning blows. He fell to the canvas. He was lifted to his corner when he did not regain consciousness he was removed to hospital and died from what was believed to be a fractured skull.

'PLAY THE GAME' SCHOLARS ADVISED

Rev. Archer Wallace Preaches at Bridge Street S. S. Anniversary

Preaching to the boys and girls on Sunday morning at the anniversary of the Bridge Street United Church Sunday School, Rev. Archer Wallace of Toronto, editor of the "Onward" and "The Canadian Boy" and other publications of the United Church, held before them as the ideal of "playing the game". Mr. Wallace illustrated his message by numerous stories of particular appeal to the young.

He recited the discovery made by Admiral Peary 100 miles from the North Pole, of a group of 207 Eskimos who had never seen white men or instrument, they had a sort of religious service, to placate or appease the spirits, when for instance they believed that in the storm God was angry, and they went on with the ice every night and played a game like football.

Love of Sport God-Given

This love of sport like the love of music and the need for religion came from God, affirmed the preacher. "I have no belief that this love of playing games is not of God, as much as the love of music, citing the records of Jesus' life as a boy, the children playing in the market place with their weird marriages and processions.

"Because we have to play the game," Mr. Wallace continued. "We should try to be more perfect, early at home where perhaps it is harder to play.

"A few weeks ago he saw a colored porter on the train reading a Latin grammar and a few spare minutes he had and when the porter was asked how he came to be reading it, the reply came that in Little Rock there was the only colored girl in a class of 42 in a school in Montreal and she was studying Latin. She found it difficult and she felt, badly that she was the only one colored in the class. She found that parents of other scholars were assisting them with their studies. As a consequence he took to the study of Latin in order to be able to assist his daughter when he was home at the week-end. With her father's help in Latin she climbed to third place at the Christmas examination. "That is what parents are doing all the time for their children," commented the preacher.

Duty of Children

As an example of a devoted son Lord Haldane of Great Britain was noted. Leaving home at 20, for 47 years he had written every night to his mother, and no one ever did he miss. Such is an ideal which every boy and girl ought to follow.

Dr. Archer told a ring that there are girls that Euclid, the famous mathematician, told a king that there is no royal road to learning, and that even the king's son if he wanted to learn must work as hard as the poorest boy in the land. "Your public school teachers are among the best friends you have" the children were advised. Mr. Wallace related how a young man who had to labor hard was forced to refuse a light but important forenamable job at a great increase in salary on railway construction because he could not read or write.

It was emphasized that the superintendent and officers and teachers of the Sunday School are busy and they take time to instruct the young.

Something For Somebody

Mr. Wallace urged the boys and girls to do something for somebody else.

Rev. Dr. J. Semple, the minister, introduced Mr. Wallace as a minister, author, lecturer, and scholar as well as a leader of the young.

Mr. J. Hurd, superintendent of the Sunday School and Mr. Burr, assistant superintendent assisted in the service.

Rev. Mr. Wallace addressed the Sunday School in the afternoon.

Picture Found To be "Fake" Is Allegation

Toronto, Feb. 24 (CP)—A solution was sought today to the mystery surrounding the painting of Laura Secord, heroine of Canada's most famous heroines, which hangs in the Hall of Fame at the Ontario Legislative Buildings.

Ever since the painting was purchased by the government three decades ago, a story appeared at frequency intervals that the painting was really the disguised likeness of former Premier George W. Ross.

When the strange tale made its most recent appearance Saturday, Frank Worth, Toronto art expert, took the sombre portraits from its dark-hallowed throne to make an X-ray examination. He declined to reveal his findings.

From an authoritative source, however, came the declaration the picture had been found to be a "fake" so far as it represented the woman who found a place in history following a 21-mile walk behind a cow to warn the British forces during the War of 1812-14.

Painted By Woman.

The Laura Secord picture was painted by Mildred Peel, sister of Paul Peel, a well-known artist, and purchased for $500.

It hangs in a heavy gilt frame between the paintings of Sir Isaac Brock, British General killed at the Battle of Queenston Heights during the War of 1812-14, and George Brown, one of the Fathers of Confederation.

The canvas, gleaming with countless coats of varnish, shows a woman in dark dress and white hood sitting on a high-backed chair. The features are harsh. Her hands are lit with long fingers. A Turnbull silhouette declaration the hands looked more like those of a man caused the legend to be revived.

Mr. Worrall viewed the portrait Saturday and said he could see no other chair besides the one on which the woman sat. Close scrutiny disclosed the outline of a low chair on which the woman obviously was not sitting.

Premier Hepburn says the late Victor Ross, former Toronto Globe reporter and later an oil company executive, told him the government refused to pay Miss Peel for the picture and suggested an historical subject so she painted one of Laura Secord. The Ross portrait, put on a hood, and had it accepted.

LENGTHY DEBATE

Minister Not in Favor of a Socialistic State

Ottawa, Feb. 25 (CP)—Satisfaction of the Canada-United States trade agreement will be moved in the House of Commons today by Prime Minister King. When Mr. Mackenzie King moves for approval of the treaty he will state one of the most important debates of the session, one which will run between the whole field of Canada's trade relations with other countries.

The treaty has been in operation since January 1, but it still requires Parliamentary approval. Conservative Leader Bennett has intimated individual his party will oppose the trade pact on the ground it is unfair to Canada, and the government obtained full short of the concessions granted.

Yesterday the House debated the merits and demerits of the capitalistic system and the country's jurisdiction favoring socialization of industrial, commercial and financial organizations and undertakings and failing to function in the general interest. There was a close but did not reach a vote as the C.C.F. made clear a few weeks ago to add when the resolution is called again.

Would Not Hesitate

Hon. W. D. Euler, Minister of Trade and Commerce, replied to the minister to take part in the discussion. He assured the House that the government would not hesitate to intervene in business if it found working conditions unsatisfactory or exploited by large or monopolistic concerns.

While Mr. Euler said he was a believer in public ownership of monopolistic undertakings, he declared he was not in favor of a socialistic state or of government ownership of all business.

He could picture a case where the government would be justified in taking over a particular concern temporarily but could see no merit in permanent government operation. If a company was threatening an unfair advantage by charging excessive profits and threatening an unfair lockout or demanding an unstrict unduly the sale of its products, the government had a duty to protect the employees and the public.

Canada Not Ready For More

Government intervention in business was necessary, said Mr. Euler. The Canadian people were not, however, for a socialistic state, although if governments failed in their duty, the number of people favoring socialism would increase. The present government had no intention of altering its duty.

It was a strong thing, said M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F., Rosetown-Biggar), that Sweden, with less resources than Canada with almost a whole land, could support a population as great as Canada's without any large element in the population suffering hardship.

Sweden had taken steps such as the resolution proposed. The government had taken over the financial system and a number of the large industries, which had become monopolistic in character.

Opposed to Mergers

J. R. MacNicol (Cons. Toronto-Davenport) said he was just as opposed to mergers as the C.C.F. leader but the fact remained the biggest merger was in Soviet Russia, where everything was placed under the control of the State.

The previous speaker said he knew of many industries, that had operated at a loss in the last four or five years and at the expense of company officers. Many of these were failing to function, not because of the stress of conditions but would be willing to sell out to the government or anyone else who would pay them.

Mr. MacNicol read from statements of communistic policy published by the Communist Party of Canada, an organization, which functioned during the recent election, he said.

Mr. Woodsworth interrupted to say the C.C.F. had repudiated the United Front and turned down its offers.

"Your candidate in London had the full support of the Communists," said Mr. MacNicol.

Angus Alliston

"I deny any alliance and I don't believe that is true," said Mr. Woodsworth.

Miss Agnes Macphail (UFO-Lab. Grey-Bruce) said the resolution was HIGH SNOWDRIFTS BECOME WATER

Motorists Are Bogged in Muddy Country Roads

Ontario thawed out today. Huge snowdrifts melted and the soft ground throughout the province, the Lake Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission reported, absorbed the warmth and sent rivers of water coursing over roads. Motorists with snow or ice tires on, made the chill of winter left the air.

Mild as the temperature soared far above freezing in most of the province, the thermometer pedestal was slithered over ice-coated streets yesterday to plague motorists by the water.

Many flooded cellars were reported to Galt and Brantford. Brantford's engineering department checked cellars after drenching and sanding stores for a possible breakup of the Grand River. Paris, where streams were swilling with melted snow but no immediate flood was feared.

The thaw was not expected to last long. Colder weather was forecast and tomorrow was forecast through Wednesday to check some of the last few weeks was in prospect.

Most spots could afford a cooling off. At Toronto the mercury yesterday, Toronto's temperature was 44 above; Hamilton had two degrees colder and Kingston and Ottawa both registered 36 at eight o'clock.

Slush and melting snow hindered Stratford traffic. Once a car leaves the centre of the road it is mired and hundreds of Stratford motorists had to dig their cars from their garages. No flood danger is apparent.

not unduly radical. She was particularly in favor of the development of large enterprises by co-operation. No one could deny the present unsatisfactory state of employer and ship and slavery.

The people of Canada were not yet ready to adopt the views of Mr. Woodsworth, she said. Mr. Euler said. He did not think they would be for a long time, although those problems were also facing increasing support if governments did not take steps to perform the duty of protecting the public from abuses or the exploitation of large financial interests

Control Policy

C. E. Johnston (SC-Bow River) said his group did not favor state socialization of industry. The Conservative was not lack of industrial outlets for Canada's products. There should be government control of industry but not to the extent where prices were fair and profits just. But to do that the government did not have to take over industry. There should be control of policy, not production.

O. E. Wood (Lib. Brant) said the C.C.F. resolution was a complete denial of its nationalization program. Any program which would destroy private business was heading for disaster.

The Brant member said if Canada as a whole failed level with its means in years gone by conditions would be worse than the acute. There had been too much extravagance, public and private, and today this was weighing down farmers and other producers in industry.

Canada, said Mr. Wood, would not prosper under socialism any more whole financial load fell back on the farmer.

STORY OF BLOW

Doctor Says Mastoid Operation Did Not Cause Death

Toronto, Feb. 25 (CP)—One of the pallbearers at the funeral today of Fred Matthews, Canadian, who, boxer, fatally injured in last Wednesday's "white hope" tournament, was Pat Flanagan, the man who knocked out Matthews.

Flanagan, freckled-hearted over this affair, was asked by the tournament promoters to be one of the pallbearers and immediately consented.

"I think the boxers should have been pallbearers after every fight," Flanagan said today. "I know I was all broken up when I saw Matthews fall. Even Jimmy Ertle, manager of Ertle Jefferson of Woodbridge, Ont.), that I eventually went to see him and talked about it afterwards and he just told me to forget the sore places with cold water."

Native of London.

Flanagan, born in London, Ont., has moved from there when a boy, said there did not seem to be anything wrong with Matthews when they left Maple Leaf Gardens after the ring.

"He came out of his corner smiling to shake hands," said Flanagan. "He said, 'well fight, Patsmack'. He said 'sure we'll make it a good fight, and we went to it.

"After a few rounds I hit him with a left hook to the jaw and he went down and out. That is all there was dazed, I'm sure.

"After he got up I hit him on the jaw and then knocked him out with another left hook to the jaw. They said he hasn't been conscious about that. They would have to Dallas Smith down a big boy like Matthews. I know my hands were sore from the punches but they were never injured. I'm fairly hurt."

Matthews Weighs 205

Flanagan is one year older than Matthews but weighed only 185 to the latter's 205 lbs. He works in the Queen's quay a hotel and entered the tournament with the idea of "having a little fun."

Dan Matiesho, of Armfield, brother of the late Fred Matthews the name Matthews, and Charles Karas, of Searn, Que., brother-in-law, assisted in Toronto for the funeral by their wives.

Matthews said he was glad to learn Mrs. Karas held no resentment against him. He said he had had enough now without feeling you people are down on me.

Dr. W. J. Robinson, pathologist, who performed the autopsy said a mastoid operation three years ago had nothing to do with Matthews' death. The operation, he declared, was performed at Gilbert Plains, Man., when Matthews was 19 years old.

Mastoid Operation

Dr. James W. Sheran, Ontario Athletic Commission physician, said he would have passed Matthews for the fight had he been the mastoid scar.

Many people attended the funeral parlors on St. Clair Avenue West last night to view Matthews' body. Rev. Dr. Gordon Pidgeon had charge of the services.

Pallbearers, besides Flanagan, were Willowdale United Church, conducted the funeral service.

BRITAIN, FRANCE AND ITALY NAMED IN DENIED REPORT

London Says British Peace Plan Depends on League

EDEN'S STATEMENT

Eden Expresses View That Peace Can be Even Now Secured

London, Feb. 25 (CP)—British authorities today firmly rejected reports that the British government was considering a peace plan with Italy and France by which each of the three countries would receive a part of Ethiopia.

The peace plan, believed by the Havas News Agency to be "under consideration" provided for a division of Ethiopia among the great powers in exchange for indemnity payments to Emperor Haile Selassie, who would retain a small portion of Galla Province and all Amharic Ethiopia.

But the British position with regard to peace between Italy and Ethiopia remains as stated yesterday in the House of Commons by Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, namely, that the decision of the League of Nations Committee of Five drawn up British proposals as a basis upon which any further attempt at conciliation should be made.

Up To League

Britain believes the proper place for the resumption of any peace discussion is Geneva "where the atmosphere is always favorable for members of the League who wish to avail themselves of the machinery which is at their disposal."

Mr. Eden declared: "I wish to say this clearly and unequivocally. We have a sincerely governmental and this country, while taking their full part in the application of sanctions, desire first and foremost to see a re-establishment of peace between Italy and the League. If both sides to that dispute would express their desire to the offices of the League, of which they are members, I am sure that there would be no hesitation among their fellow members in agreeing that the question should be referred to the committee of five was still available."

By CHARLES P. NUTTER
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Feb. 25—(AP)— Great Britain, anticipating failure for the four-power naval conference, has proposed an Anglo-German-American naval agreement, it was learned today from authoritative sources.

Members of the United States delegation, asked to confirm report, refused to discuss it.

High naval sources described the proposal as one of the most important affecting Britain, the United States and Germany since the War.

The agreement would limit the size and type of ships and guns among the three countries concerned and would provide for an annual exchange of information on construction programs.

Italian Action

Word of the Anglo-German-American proposal came shortly after it was learned that Italy's delegation was cousteau into the naval conference as a fresh barrier to the achievement of limitation unanimously.

Authoritative sources said the Italian delegation had notified the British naval conference it would not accept any new naval accords until the League of Nations sanctions against Italy are discarded and the reinforced British Mediterranean fleet is withdrawn from the Mediterranean.

Historic Gold Camp Crushed by Avalanche

Gray, Colo., Feb. 25 (AP)—Historic Camp Bird Gold Mine, where Jack London, Thomas Walsh "struck it rich" in 1896, was a shambles today, caught in the crush of the Colorado's worst avalanche disaster since snow avalanche in eight days.

The avalanche thundered wide shot down "Chicago Slide" and crashed through the camp yesterday, killing four persons and injuring at least four.

On February 1824, Hesperus Gold Mine, 50 miles south of here, was wrecked by an avalanche that killed nine.

The Camp Bird slide swept three the lower floor of a two-story bunkhouse, demolished a $100,000 mill and a store-house connecting buildings of the camp and piled up a half-mile farther down the mountain.

Moderate Thaw Leaves Roads In Bad Shape

(By the Canadian Press)

Recently bolstered by huge snow drifts and threatened for a time with a flood shortage, residents of Port Franks, 30 miles northeast of Sarnia on Lake Huron, yesterday faced a new anxiety as a modern's thaw set in. Possibility of a flood would be imminent, they say, should the temperature soar suddenly.

A dazzling flash of blue light, accompanied by a thunderous peal, led East Windsor residents on Sunday night to fear the end of the world, recently predicted by a Toronto clergyman, had come at last. The trouble was caused by an insulator breaking down at a power station due to dampness. A high-tension wire was short-circuited, causing the blinding flash.

The longest cold wave ever recorded in Kitchener ended yesterday, when a thaw set in on the 40th day since the start of the period of frigidity. To date the snowfall is 104 inches, the normal fall for an entire winter.

Yesterday was the warmest November day in Toronto in recent months, yet the Public Utilities Commission received more reports of frozen water mains than on any day during this winter. Ten such complaints were received.

The thaw yesterday made little difference to the Grand River at Brantford, Ont., where, as was reported, the river is still frozen to the bottom.

Farmers in Bertie Township near Fort Erie were busy yesterday and today. Wells gone dry in the sub-zero freeze-up were slowing filling up again.

After days of digging to clear the road from Nos. 6 Highway near Orangeville, the road has been opened with sleet yesterday, making motorized traffic normal. Farmers in the district reported the thaw had reached the ground for a foot.

Thawing snow revealed the necessity of repairing the alone the west wall of the Thomas pen yesterday. A miniature flood of water washed down the west wall to the basement and from there went into the West corridor.

Slush-packed roads held cars as tightly as ice. Traffic now crawls a few days ago at Goderich yesterday when the temperature rose to 50 degrees. Hundreds of cars were jammed on Harbor Hill last night unable to proceed in either direction.

Town people of Thessalon are without water in Ste. Marie. Ice in each other on the streets will lanterns on Sunday night when water conditions were frozen. Electric power, Church services were also cancelled.

TONS OF COAL TO HEAT CITY HALL

Shivering residents, who have perhaps sighed tiredly at the thought of coal that they have shovelled into the gaping maws of stoves and furnaces in their homes so far this winter would be more considerably more shovelling to equal the amount used, that will be burned in the boiler of the city hall this winter. It is understood by caretakers of the building, that before heat is finally turned off for the year a total of 700 tons will have been burned. The fuel which is ordered by the car load is all "hand shovelled."

WILENTZ TAKES CHARGE OF CASE

Trenton, N.J., Feb. 25 (AP)—The man who told the Flemington jury Bruno Richard Hauptmann "will be thawed out when he hears that verdict" sped back to New Jersey today to make sure the convicted killer of the Lindbergh baby will not escape the chair.

Attorney General David T. Wilentz was scheduled to arrive here from Florida late this afternoon to take from the shoulders of Hunterdon County Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck, Jr., the burden of replying to Governor Harold G. Hoffman's attack on two of the State's witnesses against Hauptmann.

Hauptmann is under sentence to die the week of March 30 but prosecution officials believe another reprieve may be granted unless they act quickly to forestall further attacks on the case they presented against Hauptmann. Wilentz is expected to tell the Governor the latter's attack on the integrity of the two State witnesses, Millard Whited and aged Amandus Hochmuth, is not grounded in fact.

The Governor has indicated he may seek legal advice on the sanity of Hauptmann's tatradition from the Bronx in view of his allegation Whited, fourlands McMaish logger, lied at the proceedings when he swore he had seen Hauptmann prowling in the woods near the Lindbergh estate shortly before the kidnapping, March 1, 1932.

The Rev. Alexander Matthieson of Trenton, Hauptmann's spiritual adviser, last night in New York, quoted the condemned man as saying he believed Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon testified against him unwillingly under police pressure.

X-RAY REVEALS HIDDEN PORTRAIT OF SIR GEORGE ROSS—While walking through the dark corridors of the Ontario parliament buildings in Toronto, an artist made a remark about a painting of Lord Seaford hanging on the wall. Another remarked that the legend of the painting which was said to have originally been a portrait of Sir George Ross, once Premier of Ontario, was false. The legend has been known for years, but not until this week was it investigated. The legend was that Sir George Ross' portrait had been painted by Miss Mildred Peel, a sister of the great Paul Peel. But when Sir George Ross' portrait was sent back, Lt.-Gov. George Reid, also a former premier of Ontario, refused to pass the expenditure the picture was sent back. BROTHERHOOD

A clarion call for human brotherhood has been sounded by the President of the United States. Last week he sent a message which was read to a united assembly of Catholics, Protestants and Jews in New York City. Racial and national prejudices, greed and selfishness must be replaced in human nature by goodwill, a form significant Insistence upon justice, and an enlightened recognition that the people of other nations are human beings.

Mayor La Guardia of New York pointed to an anomaly—the progress of science and the hesitancy of religion. "We see progress in scientific invention right up to this very day and we know that everything science produces is used by everyone in every day life. Yet in 1936 it is necessary to start a national movement for applied religion."

Governor Lehman called upon Protestants, Catholics and Jews to join in a new spiritual awakening as essential.

Such appeals for tolerance suits all lands, especially in this age when there seems to be such a reversion to less civilized methods of the past. One has but to look at Germany for the bullying of the Jews, and the treatment of the church Lutheran and Catholic, to see another strange anomaly in the world.

A BOOMERANG DOCUMENT

As was anticipated, the London dispatches have some illuminating things to say about the Maffey report on Ethiopia made public in Italy. It was a confidential and secret document which somehow fell into Italian hands. Such things will happen; and in order to secure a point, extracts from the archives of a foreign nation are sure to get into print if available. But it is quite another thing to garble and misrepresent an official paper. This is exactly what the London press and apparently the British Foreign Office charge in the present instance. They assert that in the report there was one clause declaring that Italy upon Ethiopia to be entirely indissolvable, and that this passage was conveniently omitted in the Italian version. Even in its truncated and inaccurate form, the document was a complete refutation of the Italian claim that the attitude of Great Britain toward the Italo-Ethiopian war has been dictated by her selfish imperial interests.

As it turns out, British concern about an Italian conquest in Ethiopia has been greater and more justified than the Maffey report foresaw last June. It is not only a question of Lake Tana and the sources of the Nile which have to be guarded. The Egyptian frontier was turned into a zone of peril by Mussolini's dispatch of Italian troops into Libya. Seemingly, the British Government has been able to prepare a strong defense at that point, should one be needed. But the question of the matter will probably be covered by the British Foreign Office in its explanations to the House of Commons this week. Meanwhile it is quite evident that Mussolini had managed to affront and alienate British public opinion at a time when he could ill afford to do it.—New York Times.

USE OF SKIN AS EARS

Professor George W. Stewart, head of the University of Iowa Physics Department, predicts that science would develop a treatment for deafness in which the skin of the back or abdomen will be made to serve as "ears."

Basing his perfection on recent developments in sound amplification and the fact that totally deaf persons react to the rhythm of music the physicist said that "by amplifying sounds and receiving the ares f stimulation on the human body something better than stone deafness should be realized by persons whose ears now are totally useless."

"With our present methods of sound amplification," he went on, "it is possible to magnify sound to overcome practically any amount of deafness. Physiological limits exist, however, because of the fact that with too great amplification a sensation of pain is produced in the ear. This means that if the person is too deaf the ears cannot be used and the scientist must turn elsewhere.

"A new and unexplored field lies in attempts to transmit electrically amplified sounds to large areas of skin such as on the back or abdomen.

"I realize that it is a long way from the feeling of musical rhythm to the perception of the spoken word through the skin, but it does not seem to me to be an impossible distance. Learning to detect word difference through the skin, of course, would call for an entirely new field of perception."

IF SO, WHY NOT?

If water you freeze is frozen,
Is the maiden you squeeze, then squozen?
If a thing you break is broken,
Would a thing you take be token?

If the plural of child is children,
Would the plural of wild be wildren?
If a number of cows are cattle,
Would a number of bows be battle?

If a man who makes plays is playwright,
Would a man who makes hay be a hay-wright?
If a person who spends is a spend-thrift,
Would a person who lends be a lend-thrift?

If the apple you bite is bitten,
Would the battle you fight be fitten?
And if a young cat is a kitten,
Then would a young rat be a ritten?

If a person who fails is a failure,
Would the person who quails be a quailure?
If drinking too much makes a drunkard,
Would thinking too much make a thunkard?

But why pile on the confusion?
Still I'd like to ask in conclusion:
If a chap from New York's a New Yorker,
Would a chap from Cork be a Corker.

GENIUS CERTAINLY FLARES UP IN STRANGE PLACES for the divine spark cannot be kept under a bushel. Reporter for Toronto Globe has discovered an artist in Carlstie Street Military Hospital in Toronto, a war cripple and lover of the great outdoors, a trapper and guide in the Lake Temagami region at times and always a prospector looking for that elusive pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow. Gordon Dufoe served in the war and was severely wounded. Recently his wounds have been giving him trouble and he entered Christie Street Hospital for treatment. While there he occupied himself with drawings of outdoor life in Northern Ontario, one of which was reproduced in Saturday's Globe and shows outstanding talent.

DAVID REYNOLDS, SPECIAL INVESTIGATOR FOR THE DOMINION IMMIGRATION DEPARTMENT, has just been retired after many years useful service to Canada. As a mark of the esteem of his colleagues Dave was banqueted recently in Windsor and many nice things were said about him. Like many notable men Dave Reynolds started life as a "printer's devil", suffered the usual vicissitudes of the apprentice to the art previous to all arts, including his interservatives of all arts, including his interludes with "printer's ink". He left Belleville with monkey wrenches, strap oil, etc. All this was in the old Recorder office on Buell Street, Brockville. Dave became a good printer and one of his accomplishments a good lacrosse player and quite an authority on sport. Brockville becoming too small Dave went to Ottawa and helped make the Citizen a better newspaper. The government of the day discovered him there in 1912 and took him into its bosom. In 1919 he was assigned to special investigation work for the Immigration Department and remained at this until his recent retirement. His greatest case and thrill was the capture of Harry Thaw, the New York millionaire who shot and killed Stanford White, a noted architect, in the roof garden of a stately building in New York City designed by White. Thaw was confined in the hospital for criminal insane at Mattawan, N. Y. and escaped to Canada. Dave Reynolds took charge of Thaw and kept him by his side until he was returned to Matawan, where he died of legal red-tapery. Another job of Dave's was meeting the great Ringling circus whenever it entered Canada, checking up on the personnel, staying with the show until it left Canada and seeing that none of the circus roster remained in this country. Now Dave relieved of the cares of office can give more time to his first love—big sporting events. Dave Reynolds made frequent visits to Belleville in the line of his duties and has a number of friends here.

A TAXICAB DRIVER HELPING A BLIND MAN ACROSS THE STREET in New York City was killed by another taxicab. This particular blind man was looked after by the taxicab men who had a rank at the corner where he was accustomed to cross the street. By agreement the first driver in line escorted the blind man across the street and the man in question left three fares waiting while he convoyed the blind man across the street. Having completed his duty he was returning when struck and killed. He left a wife and two children.

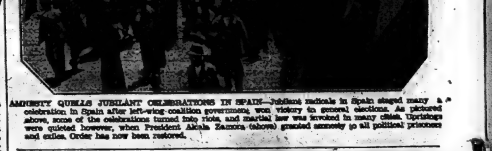
School Tax Question

February, 24th., 1936.



The Editor,
Ontario-Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ont.

Dear Sir,—

In reporting the proceedings of the meeting of the Board of Education, your reporter omitted giving the statistics which would show the effect on the Public Schools of Belleville will be, should the decision of the Roman Catholic Separate Schools Association be granted.

The following is the summary taken from a tabulated statement of the names of contributing and public utilities with their assessments, as given in the assessment rolls at the City Hall.

Total assessments—$1,979,138. Assessed to Separate School $69,300.00. Average attendance as shown by the 1935 Blue Book—Public Schools 1,804, Separate School 418—making a Dear Sir,—

The Separate School would therefore receive $16,722.00 instead of $16,2230 of $1,979,138.00 or $779.- 971.12.

This would be a gain to them of $501,671.41 in Assessment. The tax rate in 1935 was Public School 10.8 mills, so that the amount of taxation would be $5,418.06 Separate School of Belleville and given to the Separate School would be $1,959.06 each year.

Yours truly,
H. B. Feiferly.

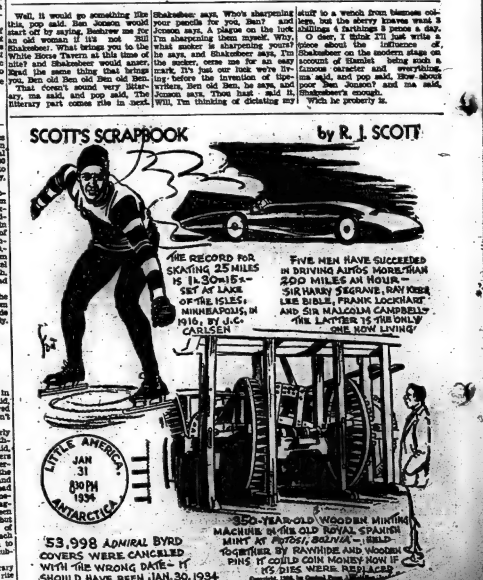
Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair and ma was sewing to herself in the dining room and wrote at the same time, didn't they, William?

That's rite, they were prosperly in a grate deal of silence. Finally my afternoon nap was over on the general subject of Shakespeare and this times, and I'm suppose to read a paper. I'm short of doing some original writing entitled An Imaginary Conversation between Shakespeare and Bacon Jonser, but as drastook is I cant think of anything they miht say to each other. Of course I'd want them to start conclusively on literary subjects, she said.

That's easy, I've heard literary stuff a-rawring. I could desh it rite off for you, pop said, and ma said, O William I wish you would.



Well, it would so something like this, pop said, Bacon would start off by saying, Beshrew me for an old woman if it not 2nd time that I have come to the White Hoss Tavern at this time of night and Shakespeare would answer back the same thing that brings you, Ben old Ben old Ben old Ben.

That Aosen's sound very literary, ma said, and pop said, The literary part comes rite in next. Shakeben; says, Who's sharpening your pencils for you, Jone? and Jonson says, A plague on the luck an old woman if it not 2nd time that I have come to the White Hoss Tavern at this time of night and Shakespeare would answer back the same thing that brings you, Ben old Ben old Ben old Ben.

That doesn't sound very literary, ma said, and pop said, The literary part comes rite in next. Shakeben; says, Who's sharpening your pencils for you, Jone? and Jonson says, A plague on the luck I'm sharpening mine myself. Why, I'm sharpening yours? he says, and Shakespeer says, I'm the author, come me for an author's mark, It's just our luck we're literary before the invention of type-writers, Ben old Ben, he says, and Jonson says, Then just said it, Shakespeer's enough.

Will I'm thinking of dictating my stuff to a wench from bennees college, pop said, but the derty brute was 3 shillings 4 farthings 3 perce a day, and I'm short of cash, I'll write a piece about the influence of Shakespeer on the modern stage on account of Hamlet being such a famous character and everybody knowing all about him, pop said, and poor Ben Jonson? and ma said, Shakespeer's enough.

Why I'm proberly it.

W. McL. Clarke, Montreal, Speaks to Waterloo Board of Trade on Recovery

Waterloo, Feb. 16.—"During the past few years the general conception of a business man has been changing from the generous benefactor of the prosperity years to the big bad wolf of depression days," said W. McL. Clarke, Montreal, Secretary of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, in addressing the Annual meeting of the Board of Trade of Waterloo, last night.

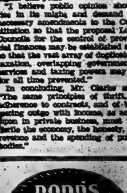
"Why? Because," answered the speaker, "he is the only man who has had money, spent it freely in normal times, and wondered all of a sudden why jobs, wages and orders ceased. Many business men, afraid and dismayed, have unthinkingly let the effect upon the borrower, the farmer and even the professional man, have far-reaching and its biggest as profit, as the result of a business man's success," said—"Why don't these business men borrow money to something to help on relief, which, after all, is a whole stock-in-trade is to have one or more people ground to whom they have the confidence of the people by investigation and knowledge. That's the fat was in the fire. Business was pilloried and the confidence of the borrower, the farmer, the professional man, the banker and even the professional man, was destroyed. Confidence is the basis of all business, and it is needed now more than ever before."

Mr. Clarke, in his address, dealt with the causes of those who had suffered in the neck. Little did they realize that the shower they were in their business was the first blessed capitalists, the longer the blackboard capitalists, the longer the blackboard capitalists.

Good Housing Needed

"With returning recovery," continued Mr. Clarke, "the cries of the agitators are weakening, but as good citizens we must not be lulled into this evil growth in public opinion. Business must be put back on a basis of the system, which underlies our homes, our farms, our shops, our factories and our savings, is to be preserved. We need to answer the charges and questions of agitators, sings of pink but clever young University professors, with the cold, non-setting thought and the tried findings of experience. We need to go on the mental offensive as well as the defensive. We need to answer the cunning-lovers of business; also the believing men of the unthinking economic doctrine will continue pounding against the walls which protect the home and the shop.

"The forward march of business has been halted under our present system of economic democracy. The system is not bankrupt, if it were, it would be time to go to other capitalistic, not a socialistic state, that goodwill of business, as exemplified by hundreds of social services operated for the benefit of those who cannot take care of themselves. The dictatorship concept of business is destined to become increasingly the motivating force of our capitalistic system. Confidence can be counted upon to face its social obligations. I refuse, therefore, to believe that we are living in an era of economic cannibalism."



$1,084 Million Spent

In speaking of Public Finance" Mr. Clarke said: "Confidence demand in the branch today and obtains public opinion as to the soundness of our financial situation. Last year all Canadian Governments spent the staggering sum of $1,084 million. The funded or guaranteed debt of the Dominion has reached over $700 per capita and has practically doubled in fifteen years.

"Doseth it startle you?" asked the speaker, "to think that over one-quarter of the national income goes into taxes and that the percentage has risen from fourteen to twenty-five in the last ten years. Even in ordinary expenditures were $60 million higher last year than ten years ago? The intimation from Ottawa this week that the budget for the present debt obligations, may be even higher this year.

"Behind public opinion should rise in its might and demand all economies possible and a sane realization so that the real array of duplicatory taxation, overlapping of activities and taxing powers may be for all time prevented."

In conclusion Mr. Clarke said, "The same principles of thrift, of self-reliance, of economy, and of balancing outgo with income, as noted upon in private households, must be applied to the country, the honesty, the revenue and the spending of public bodies."

CELEBRATES 90TH BIRTHDAY TODAY

Thomas Albert Mills, Plainfield is Active And Still Drives His Own Car

Plainfield, Feb. 20.—Plainfield's second old man in the person of Thomas Albert Mills, one of the oldest men of the district, is today receiving congratulations from his host of friends and neighbors who are rejoicing with him on having reached his ninetieth birthday. Mr. Mills, the son of the late Thomas and Ann Annie Saddley, was born on a farm in Prince Edward County, near Northport, on February 20th, 1844. Throughout his long lifetime he has never lacked ambition, has always worked hard and proved himself a good manager and capable business man. At seventeen years of age he apprenticed himself to the blacksmith at Northport and for the following twenty-five years worked at his trade in that village. He then purchased the store and Post Office in the village where he carried on for nineteen years, at which time he came to the general store at Latta's Mills, where he continued to do business until his retirement fourteen years ago, at which time he purchased a comfortable home in Plainfield, where he still lives and in which he takes more than the average amount of pride.

Loves Gardening

He grows one of the finest vegetable gardens in the village each year and is none of the most beautiful flowers. His lawn is always in perfect order, being cut regularly and up to the minute, giving evidence of much taste and conscientious attention and the spirit of good citizenship. Two years ago Mr. Mills purchased a new car and spent it two coats of paint, doing the work himself. He is now active for his age and until the beginning of the year was caretaker of the Plainfield Hall at Plainfield Lodge No. 179, of which he has been an active member for nearly forty years. He joined the Orange Lodge at Northport when he was eighteen years of age. He has been a loyal Conservative and a faithful member of his party.

Never Had An Accident

He joined the "New Connection Methodists" in Northport when he was nineteen years of age and for a number of years was the local collection of class leader. For over seventy years he has been a faithful supporter and faithful attendant of the church services and with Mrs. Mills is among the most regular of weather conditions prevent them from being present at the Sunday evening services in the United Church. He drives his own car all about during the summer time and has never had an accident. On January 16th, 1912, he was united to Mrs. Mills to the W.M.S. meeting held at the home of his niece, Mrs. A. F. Hall at Latta.

He has two daughters, Mrs. Albert Way, Cobourg and Mrs. John Kellar, Youngstown, Ohio. Also one brother, Edward Mills, of Shannonville.

There was no scoring in the third period although both teams attacked repeatedly. Maguire was conspicuous in this respect, shooting wide several times. Introductions at Table

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a woman is dining with a man who has been before being introduced to a woman acquaintance of hers who has approached at their table, is it proper to ask the man to be seated or for it to be understood that the lady may not accept the invitation to join them without the gentleman's consent before leaving?

R. Would the same rule apply if a male acquaintance or the woman's comes to their table?

A. If a man or female acquaintance of the man escort approached the table, under the conditions mentioned in my first question, does the introduction to the man, after the introduction has been made, come from the male escort or from the female companion?

H.

I. The woman who has come up to the table may ask the man to be seated, but she probably would not do so if she knew that only a few or two at the table, for she probably would realize that he would feel uncomfortable being seated while he is standing. The most natural thing is for the man to remain standing while the women are standing, and not to take his seat until she has left the table.

2. Yes.

3. Although it would be easier and more appropriate for the man to make another to be seated. However, it's always best for the man who is at the table to accomplish standing.

4. Here again the man will undoubtedly prefer to stand, and it is best not even to mention of his taking his seat.

NO HELP NEEDED

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Was it correct for a young lady to entertain a young man in public on his own? The young man is my boy friend and I thought he was dead in the young lady's home, with no one present but her parents.

N.

No, this isn't correct, unless the young lady's parents have advised that he would appreciate being helped. But under the usual circumstances, it is better for a man to have girls help them with their coats, and they don't like to have girls for this party.

SKIING

(By Hermann Bautzmann)

The second article of this series covers a general instruction in sidestepping up hill. Now we come to the side-slipping down hill. Walking down hill run. To make it really enjoyable, it is wise for the beginner to familiarize himself very familiar with the positions one should be in during a down hill run. These positions can be put into three groups: first, the normal down hill position; second, the low crouch, and third, the high crouch. Each of these arguments were bed about the correct position the body should be in while running down hill. For years the low crouch, often called the Arlberg position was the most generally accepted form of its originator, Hannes Schneider, the world's most famous ski racer, argued that a position in which the centre of gravity of the human body is brought as close as possible to the ground is the correct one. Undoubtedly there is some truth in that. The knees are then very rigid and inflexible condition and, as muscles in that position are extremely tense, and tense, it is a very tiresome position. Hannes Schneider has brought out a very important sport in Europe scientific book on skiing, explaining the motions of skiing and finding the most correct position for the body during the various motions. They have established what is called the

Normal Down Hill Position

This position is distinguished by relaxation; the body must be as relaxed as possible when going down hill; slightly bent knees, relaxation of muscles when going down hill and the whole position gives flexibility and causes falls. Though when going down hill, do not let your mind be bothered with interior thoughts over the good outcome of the slide, but rather do one thing, BODY RELAXED. Then put the feet apart, about the width of the heels fat on the ground, bend your knees and hip joints, and lean forward without hang at the outside of the knees. Let the knees fall inward downwards off the snow. Mind that the knees should never be in opposite ones ahead of the body—that may cause a bad accident.

The beginner will want to bear in mind is to take the hands out of the pockets, to keep them free and over wood trails—it is very dangerous to have in hand-rail or protruding rock.

The advice to hold the body relaxed in the down hill position cannot be mentioned too often as it is the key to the whole art of smooth shocks through its flexibility. It is the most difficult for the novice to watch a good skier come down hill and notice how the body is held relaxed, how the feet stable while his flexible knees work up and down. It is the same way as a motor car absorbing all shocks by its flexible springs and tires.

The next and unaccustomed sensation of high speed causes the average beginner to lean too far backwards when going down hill, which causes him to fall and pitch forward plunge into the snow, but he will soon learn that by leaning a little less hill forward into the slope and when you feel that you are leaning far enough, lean a little more. A most stable and secure position is during the down hill run to draw an imaginary line from the tip of the shoulder through the knee and the toes at a right angle to the slope of the hill.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

The percentage of all diseases directly or indirectly due to constipation would be impossible to determine. To say that in one way or another it has contributed to and for the sprouting of every disease known to man is not exaggerating the facts.

The point to be emphasized is that digestion of the digestive tract does not stop with impairment of the intestines themselves. That is only the beginning of the trouble.

The entire system suffers when waste products are not carried off. Poisonous substances pass through the intestinal walls into the lymph and blood streams, and no organ is immune from their attacks.

Sluggish thinking, headaches, colds, bad complexion, pains and aches in the muscles and joints are the commonest results of constipation. On the emotional side there also is found indifference and apathy, often actual depression.

Many times myself or woman sees life through colored glasses of a distinctly blue tint. It interferes with my work because his mind doesn't function as it should. It affects my wife and makes her irritable and hard to live with. Ambition and drive, hope and optimism and cheerfulness appear as a silly delusion. Nor am I individual in my overindulgence, although all these indications do not always appear in the same individual.

The body, you see, is making an up-hill fight all the time, trying to rid itself, or somehow neutralize, the poisons it cannot excrete. And it cannot escape feeling the results of this struggle. You cannot expect a patient in the Hotel Dieu there. He is reported progressing favorably.

SCHOOL ABSENCES DUE TO COLDS CUT ALMOST ONE-HALF

Famous Colds-Control Plan Tested in Three Series of Clinics Among 5,110 School Children

FURTHER PROVED IN HOME USE

School absences due to colds have been reduced nearly one-half (46.95%) by Vicks Plan, the Bureau for Better Control of Colds. This is shown in records of clinics among 5,110 school children.

Mothers and teachers alike welcome Vicks Plan as a practical guide to fewer and shorter colds. This plan is based on three principles: 1. To help build resistance to colds. Live normally—avoid excesses. Eat simple food and keep elimination regular. Get plenty of rest. These same exercises daily—outdoors preferably. Get plenty of rest at night.

2. To Help Prevent More Colds. At the first warning nasal irritation, sniffle or sneeze use Vicks Va-tro-nol in each nostril. Va-tro-nol is especially designed for the nose and upper throat—where most colds start. Used in time, Va-tro-nol helps to prevent many colds from ever showing off head colds in the early stage.

3. To Stop Colds Developing. If a cold has developed, or strikes without warning, at once throw sheet of bedding with Vicks Vaporub. Vaporub in the two ways at once. (1) By stimulating through the skin, like a poultice or plaster; (2) By inhaling the soothing, healing medicinal vapors, direct to inflamed air-passages. Results are quick, this combined vapor-poultice action loosens phlegm, soothes irritation, halts the cough promptly.

When Vicks Plan can do for others has been indicated not only in clinics, but also in the further proof in everyday home use by thousands. What it can do for you and your family can be proved only by trying it. Directions for following the Plan come in each package of Vicks Va-tro-nol and Vicks Vaporub.

CANDIDATES FOR KENTUCKY DERBY TRAINING SLOW

Unseasonable Weather is Retarding Workouts in South

AN OPEN RACE

Much Expected of Mont Blanc Son of Derby Winner Coronach

(By Orie Robertson)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Feb. 25 (AP)—The soid weather that has blanketed the continent this winter may be felt as late as May 3, when the making of three-year-olds of the United States race the barrier for the 62nd running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs.

The unseasonable weather already has so retarded work-outs that trainers of horses wintering in the north and Kentucky are wondering if they will be able to get their charges ready for the $40,000 stake.

Of the Big Five—Tiniagi, Brevity, Coldstream, Hollyrood and Grand Slam— only the first two have had the benefit of the warmer climes. They are in training at Hialeah Park, Miami, Fla., where Brevity already has run one race and Tiniagi two. Mike Hall, who is suffering a minor leg injury last week.

Hollyrood and Coldstream are quartered in Kentucky and Grand Slam near Baltimore, Where the weather has confined their workouts to daily gallops under the lights. Red Rain rated near the top but not a candidate for the Derby, also is wintering in Kentucky.

At snow-bound Aqueduct, James Fitzsimmons has the pick of the Wheatley stable and William Woodward three-year-olds galloping four or five miles daily under the shed. Fitzsimmons is expected to return from Florida about March 1.

Fitzsimmons has in his barns such prospective candidates as Woodward's Granhville and Isolator, Captain Fleig's White Cloud and Invermark, Grant and Tuohy and the Wheatley Stable. Nine rated high as two year olds but neither did Gallant Fox and Omaha, both of which won the Fitzsimmons.

Down in Columbia, S.C., where the weather has been more conducive to conditioning, Trainer Ivan Parke quartered M. L. Schwartz's Rancho Rapid Second, a colt that is showing improvement with every start, is the "dark horse" of the Derby —George H. ("Pete") Bott's Mick's Most Blanc, a son of the English derby winner, Coronach.

"Punch" Bott Has Relatives In This City

Percy "Punch" Bott, whose picture appears on this page, as the winner of the Junior Skiing championship of Ontario at Thornecliffe, Toronto, on Saturday last, is well known in many in this city. His mother, Mrs. Harold Bott of Montreal, (formerly Miss Florence Heinbome) is a former resident of this city being the daughter of the late Wm. and Mrs. Heinborne. Mrs. Heinborne, the young champion's grandmother is residing on Pine Street, this city, at the present time.

"Punch" is the nephew of Mr. Percy A. Heinborne of Corbyville, who is justly proud of his young namesake.

Besides winning the Ontario Junior championship this lad holds the same honor in the province of Quebec in this rather hazardous game, and sports writers in Montreal and Toronto see a great future for him.

Japanese Aquatic Stars Ready for Olympics

TOKYO, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Determined not to relinquish their world swimming title in the coming Berlin Olympics without a struggle, Japan's aquatic stars have been going through a term of intensive midwinter training to keep in condition for the competitions five months hence.

Japan's youthful swimming team swept sensationally through the aquatic section of the Los Angeles Olympics in 1932, capturing five of the six speed events.

The winter training, carried on in the indoor pool of one of the Tokyo Universities, showed that Japan's champions have lost little or the speed which enabled them to win a dual meet from a selected American team in Tokyo last summer. Among those showing the best form in this off season trainers were Reizo Koike, rated by the Japanese as the most brilliantly swimmer in the world; Masaji Kiyokawa, breast stroker, and Shoji Hirokawa, who won the 100-meter backstroke race at Los Angeles in 1932.—All three were point winners at Los Angeles.

MONTREAL SKIERS SWEEP DOMINION CHAMPIONSHIPS—To this Ontario and Quebec provincial ski-jumping championships, 15-year-old Percy "Punch" Bott of Montreal added the Canadian crown when the Dominion championship events were staged at the Toronto Ski Club slide near Toronto. Montrealers took all three first places and eight of the first ten berths, to give the Quebec metropolis almost a clean sweep. Celins Skavsaa, ace of the Toronto club jumpers, was fourth. A huge crowd of spectators watched the thrilling events. The first Dominion championships staged in Toronto, they are shown flower Percy "Punch" Bott, No. 23 whose two jumps of 114 feet plus perfect style won him the championship. Runner-up was his teammate, J. C. Riddell, No. 14, top right. Below is shown R. Denton of McGill University just leaving the slide. His jumping earned him third position.

TORONTO PLAYS ON HOME ICE

Bruins Must Win to Have Chance For Play-off

(By The Canadian Press)

Boston Bruins, injury-ridden and not far from elimination, face a crisis in the National Hockey League wars tonight. They play hosts to New York Americans, just six points behind the Bruins and almost as close to elimination.

Playing before a home crowd, the Bruins will be without Dit Clapper and Max Kaminsky, out with injuries. Charlie Sands and Jerry Shannon have been brought up from Boston Cubs of the Canadian-American League.

A Boston win would renew hope of overtaking either Chicago Black Hawks or New York Rangers for a playoff berth in the American section. Should Americans win, the Bruins would be not far from "out" and Americans would have a strong chance of placing third in the Canadian section, ahead of Montreal Canadiens.

Sands will team with Cooney Weiland and Red Beattie on Boston's first line formed the but the Bruins will miss the hard-driving Clapper, who has led the attack in recent games. Sands' chief assignment will be checking Sweeney Schriner, league-leading scorer.

Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Maroons, deadlocked for the Canadian division lead, play on the home ice. The Leafs face New York Rangers, unbeaten in their last eight starts, and Marcons take on the dangerous Black Hawks.

HOCKEY PLAYER LOSES AN EYE

Special Train Brings Boy to Toronto For Emergency Operation

Toronto, Feb. 25 (CP)—Robert Gallagher, 17-year-old hockey player, whose right eye was injured in a game near his home at Timmins, escaped blindness today, physicians, who removed Bobby's right eye in an emergency operation last night said the youth was certain to retain use of the left eye.

A record for the run was established by engineer Joe Legeer in bringing Bobby to Toronto last night fro mNorth Bay in a Canadian National Railways train, that roared over the stretch in four hours, 30 minutes. It was feared the youth would lose both eyes.

Gallagher was taken to North Bay on Tuesday on a special Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway train and immediately placed aboard a special C.N.R. train for Toronto. It was impossible to fly him here because sleet made it impossible for airplanes to leave the ground in the north country.

Reeve Charles Gallagher of Timmins met the train here and escorted his son to hospital. A short hours later he learned that Bobby would not lose his sight completely. That made the nerve-wracking business of hiring special trains worthwhile.

WHITE HOPE" BOXER DIES AFTER RING KNOCKOUT—Wynn Pat Flanigan of London, Ont., knocked out Fred Matthews of Armifield, Quebec, in the novice "white hope" boxing tournament held in Toronto, the youth remained unconscious for 12 hours and rallied to survive a delicate brain operation. An inquest was ordered into the death. Matthews is shown above lying in the ring and INSERT RIGHT. Flanigan is shown INSERT LEFT. The competition was to find a competitor to send to New York for Jack Dempsey's "white hope" tournament to find a suitable opponent for negro Joe Louis.

FALLS SCORE OVERTIME WIN

Kitchener Defeated 2-1, Knotting Series For Finals in Western O.H.A.

Kitchener, Ont., Feb. 25 (CP)—Kitchener's rugged Green-Shirts and Niagara Falls' colorful Cataracts were of the opinion today it was just about time they settled their play-off feud. It's been tough going trying to decide which of the teams will represent the western section of the Senior Ontario Hockey Association in the search for Allan Cup honors.

In three games between the evenly-matched forces each has won one, while the third battle ended in deadlock. They meet again in Niagara Falls Friday and even the most partial fan was of the opinion either team would be worthy opponents of the eastern sector O.H.A. winners.

So close are the struggles between the two clubs they went into overtime again last night before the Cataracts scored their first win of the series. The score was 2-1 and the largest crowd of the season was on hand to watch the see-saw battle.

Kitchener-Waterloo's Carlo Kumtz put his team ahead early in the opening period on a smooth combination attack and it was late in the second period that the Falls offensive seized the Green-Shirt defence with Sammy Phillips scoring the goal. The third session was a mad scramble of missed opportunities with first one team and then the other missing open nets.

Just two minutes and 30 seconds and a shot, that fooled the clever Kitchener netminder, Hinderman, found the net and the Cataract goal-keeper, Johnny Mowers, put up a sensational brand of goal minding, especially in the first period. The game was a scrappy affair with 12 penalties being handed out by little Johnny Mitchell, Hamilton referee. Seven penalties were handed out in the hectic third frame.

KI-Y LOOP

Four games of Ki-Y League hockey were played at the Y.M.C.A. last night, two in the midget and two in the juvenile series.

In the midget series the Wildcats defeated the Blue Birds by the score of 5 to 1. While they are following the St. Michael's scrietta downed the O.S.D. midgets 3 to 2 in a keenly contested game.

In the juvenile series the "Stars" battled gamely through to a 2 to 1 victory over the Black Hawks to retain their group leadership, while the O.S.D. juveniles kept well up in the running by taking the measure of the St. Michael's juveniles to the tune of 4 to 2.

Efforts on the part of the Ki-Y League to complete their schedule in all groups as speedily as possible are being made by the league officials today.

Just when Belleville sport fans were beginning to be really hockey conscious and awake to the fact that we have a splendid intermediate hockey team in our midst, like a bombshell from the blue comes the news that Earl McDonald may be unable to play in future games for the Redmen this season. It seems that the academic standing and averages at Queen's University are woefully low and the result that thumbs have been turned down on sporting activities at Queen's where Earl is studying medicine. Whether Earl will be off long or for the season or not in the future it was unable to determine, but there are only slim chances of his playing in Whitby in the first game of the third round play-offs tomorrow night.

"We are trying to make last minute arrangements to have Earl cleared by late trains from Kingston to Whitby and immediately return, but failing to do this we'll have to use "Stewie" McElrath on the defence with Harry Ingram, while I have every confidence that "Pud-Dog" McCreary will fill in nicely as an alternate defenceman, McCreary is one of the smartest all round players we had this year and has proven himself to be a sturdy, regular player and a player of heart," added Manager Thomas as he added that McDonald was not altogether a total loss to the Redmen as yet. "We expect him to be with us for the home game on Friday night, so it will be up to the Kingston boys to get him back to Whitby," concluded Skipper Thomas hopefully this afternoon.

It seems like a tough break on the Redmen to lose Earl McDonald if only for one game. We understand he is well up in his studies and his work during the year has been beyond reproach. It is to be hoped that some amicable arrangements may be arrived at whereby the Redmen will be able to retain the services of McDonald, who has proven a valued cog in the Redmen's machine in their upward march. Incidentally Manager Thomas fully realizes the seriousness of meeting the 1935 provincial O.H.A. champions in the next round and what's more we see no reason why the "Redmen" should not continue their winning ways. Of course they are facing much stronger opposition than in Napanee and Campbellford, but then if the "Redmen" will be able to re-train

BY

Ann Forester

"Dale—Dale—" Phil was scattering phrases of endearment and self-pity as they did not do it—put his marriage between us.

That was the least Dale needed. She stopped away and shook her head, trying to free herself of him. "It didn't come between us, Phil. I—I love Brant with all my heart. And—and you weren't married—you married me—you know that."

There was no escaping her disconcerting honesty. Suddenly Phil laughed, and there was a bitter ring to it.

"You're right! You always were right! But I had hoped you'd find you know it. I always was. I still am. If fate had backed me like the ace's past your husband has now different it would have been I but what were we—you and I—but sweet gamins. Each with his own way to fight. If we'd stuck together we'd just have pulled each other down. We had to climb separately to get anywhere. It's true—look where you landed! And I'm still climbing. I'll get there, too, but not with you—and you're the one thing I really care about in all the world. The one person who counts, with me to make my life-long scheme of things! Laugh, if you want! But it's so! Why—just coming here today was a crazy thing to do. I know it! Bad for you . . . . bad as the devil for me. If Brant found this out—she's a liar when she's angry and jealous—I'll marry her if I want to. But I couldn't stay away from you—"

CHAPTER X

SOWING THE WIND

Upstairs later in her own room, Dale gave way to shame and pain, feeling again Phil's arms about her—his lips hard on her own. Why, she had been mad! Insane to have had walked in on them! Suppose Brant . . . .

At the thought Dale's heart contracted. She could picture how Brant would look—his eyes almost as grey steel. Oh, it was the height of folly to attract a man like Brant for someone like Phil Phil . . . . away from his engaging presence, his winning smile, it was easy to sit in judgment upon him.

Yet Dale could not entirely condemn Phil. He had known the bite of bitter poverty, something from all his struggles to rise . . . . She had read somewhere that to understand all was to forgive all. That explained her lack of resentment against Phil perhaps. Phil was selfish, ruthless—cruel even . . . . then how deep had been his feelings to bring him here today, when he knew it would mean a catastrophe if the jealous Erma heard of it. So even Phil could be swept from his carefully calculated depth. "You're the one thing I really care about in the world." . . . . There had been a bitter, lonely note in that. Dale's heart gave a throb of pity. It was true, Phil had always been a lonely person. Her action had broken the barrier he built against the world.

Dale strolled to the window and stood there idly twisting the cord. Her eyes were deep and almost black with regret. She was looking into the past, watching a young fellow and a girl serambling precariously through Rx. Young and ardent they moved through grey poverty. Kisses and love were all that their hearts . . . . . Dale pressed her hot forehead against the window glass and closed her eyes because she felt tears stinging them. Yes, that part of her life belonged to Phil, even as her life now belonged to Brant. Brant—the name conjured him up, tall and rugged, with the steady grey gaze she loved . . . . Oh, there was no comparison between the two! She felt superior to Phil—perhaps that was the reason she could forgive him so easily. Brant made her feel humble. A little chill fear dawned in her heart. Was Brant secretly ashamed of her? Resentful pride flared at the thought but it went out in a grey fog of misery.

Dale was curled in a heap on the day bed when Brant let himself in. Something lonely about the slender figure drew him over to take her in his arms.

"Tired, kitten?" Brant asked in the firm pleasant voice Dale loved. "What's the idea of cooping yourself up here alone like this?"

The man was surprised at the fervor with which Dale snuggled against him. She drew his head down hard on her own.

"Oh, I love you . . . . I love you—I love you . . . . " Dale's smothered voice sounded. "No!" she thrust herself deeper in Brant's brown hair. "don't go away! Hold me—tight! Don't ever let me go! Oh, never!" Her tone was edged with panic.

Brant's arms tightened about the slim body but he was embarrassed as men grow embarrassed in the face of too much fervor. His tone was purposely light.

"Well, I was thinking of tossing you into the ragbag but I guess I'll let you hang around a bit longer. What did you do today to amuse yourself? Shopping with Eleanor, I suppose. My poor bank account!" He—on the rainy," Dale evaded. Then her clasp tightened. "Oh—don't go away, Furniphoe. I love the smell of you! Nice soapy, tobacco smell!"

She wouldn't get Phil again, Dale decided secretly. After all, so long as she had Brant, so long as he loved her, no one else mattered. She would be patient until they could have a home by themselves. She would even try to ignore Mimi's spiteful threats. She would be wise and patient—and she wouldn't see Phil again.

But that last was not so easy to do. Together, with Nance and Eleanor, Dale had promised to take part in the tableaux Erma Hanford and Carol Harrington were giving for the benefit of some infant shelter. And Phil was to manage those tableaux . . . . . could she withdraw without causing comment? She had no real excuse and Eleanor and Nance knew it. Mimi's quick malice would be sure to ferret out the reason for so sly a step. No. She was fairly caught. Go through with it and stay close to the protection of Nance and Eleanor.

Dale was almost humbly grateful for Eleanor Farraday's friendship these days. Privilous, discontented Eleanor, often peevish and cruel and spiteful—but Dale could forgive her all this because she was her friend. Dale blinked away tears at the thought.

They rehearsed the tableaux at Erma's house. Living pictures of beautiful women—posed against a set of the ages. Phil had cast Dale as Queen Guinevere, poised in a long golden veil and a sheltered gown of pale green silk. It was a role she could very often and fondly. Dale looked when she posed as the sad, faithless queen. A little flush mounted to Phil's cheekbones as he looked at her. His hand shook slightly as he arranged the folds of her robe.

Erma Hanford was astonishing Cleopatra, watched them with a smoldering jealousy not quite hidden and a tone of feminine whispers rose in quiet corners.

Dale heard the whisper and they frightened her. Underneath, dragging her down . . . .

Get out of it! Be strong. Set her own course. Hot Hester said than donel What excuse could she give for getting out of the tableaux? She'd only bring matters to a head. No, stick it out! Be cautious. So Dale clung close to Nance during these afternoons—Nance, a slim and gamin like Nell Gwin. She clung to Eleanor, a sulky Du Barry in a powdered wig. She avoided intimate little talks with Phil.

There had been a time when being included in these Junior tableaux for the Infant Shelter would have filled Dale with elation. To be accepted by these women somehow justified her existence to Brant's mother—in Mimi. It was due to Eleanor, of course that she was here now, But it was disconcerting to see Phil so often. Seeing the hunger in his hazel eyes . . . . .

Dale shook off the morbid thoughts. Don't be so introspective! Be happy in the present. Be happy in their palatial surroundings. And she and Brant had been so happy in the blistering little house on the desert).

A memory of those lean days turned Dale's eyes tender. Sitting sitting smoking on the steps at night—her head on the side Brant's shoulder, then the lilac tinted twilight of the desert. Within, the cheap, ugly furniture of work and dose—and a busy day ahead tomorrow.

Yet she could be happy here if they were only by themselves. Dale told herself. If she only had such a little apartment as Eleanor had . . . . The thought of Brant gave Dale the sudden desire to see him. She'd go down to the office and drive him home. It would give them a few precious moments to themselves.

For some reason Dale felt strangely light-hearted and happy. Last night—tragedy hung over the crowded streets. Even the traffic policemen were like excitedly brilliant birds. She smiled at the fancy. Joyously, smoking to be driving like mad. Dale Evans sitting in her own smart little car—going down to drive her husband home! She hummed snatches of other happy airs, that same minute. Oh, it was wonderful to be young—to be loved and to love . . . . . Good to be alive! Good to hate hope . . . . .

In all this home returning traffic! Ah! There was a car about to pull out. She'd slip in if no one beat her to it . . . . Why, it was Mimi's smart little foreign model! Surely that was Mimi at the wheel. In the smartly small hats she always wore. And beside her—beside her—Brant. It'll be continued.

JOHNSON DUPLICATES WASHINGTON'S FEAT—Three times on Feb. 22nd, the two hundred and fourth birthday of George Washington, did Walter Johnson, once the greatest speed-ball pitcher in baseball, wind up the old pitching arm, and cast a baseball over the Potomac river at Fredericksburg, Va., and twice he was successful in making the dire fall on the opposite shore. This did he duplicate, twice the feat that George Washington reputedly performed almost two centuries ago. In two previous throws Johnson failed by two with one (his first one), and bridged the river by 25 feet with the second. Then with the "real money"—a silver dollar—he heaved it high, wide and handsome, and it sailed over the river to the opposite shore, where it was recovered by a farmer-spectator and returned to Fredericksburg, where the finder was rewarded with a prize of $100. This picture shows Johnson completing one of the three tosses, with a perfect baseball follow-through.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

"Strike Me Pink"

Eddie Cantor's Biggest and Funniest Picture

Eddie is cast as a timid fellow who takes a correspondence course in acquiring a dominating personality and becomes manager of Dreamland Amusement Park. Here he becomes involved with a gang of slot machine racketeers who have put every previous manager on the spot. The gangsters learn that Eddie secretly adores a glamorous night club singer, played by Ethel Merman. This lady is really the wife of one of their members and they use her as a "come-on" to trick Eddie into installing their fake slot machines.

Sally Eilers, seen as Eddie's Dreamland sweetheart; Henry Parke, better known as the Great Dalcichian Pantyakatzm of radio fame, Wilson Prawley and the 1936 group of Goldwyn Girls are featured beside Ethel Merman in the comedy hit. Norman Taurog directed. Also prominent in the cast are Arline Judge, Gertrude Jones, Peter Donley, Jack Lallue, Sunny O'Dea and Rita Rio.

"Strike Me Pink" is based on Clarence Buddington Kelland's Saturday Evening Post story and novel. Harold Arlen and Lew Brown wrote the music and lyrics and Nat Karson directed the dances and ensembles. The dance numbers were choreographed by Gregg Tokazi.

The tuneful new song hits introduced in the film include "First You Have Me High, Then You Have Me Low", "The Lady Dances", "The Calaboose Fire" and "Shake It Off".

"Strike Me Pink", to be repeated at the Belle again tonight and Wednesday, matinee and evening is Eddie Cantor's biggest and funniest picture.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Storm Over the Andes"

Jack Holt Plays a Soldier of Fortune

Called one of the finest productions in which Jack Holt ever has been starred, Universal's thrilling screen drama dealing with aviation and love in South America, "Storm Over the Andes", comes on Wednesday to the Capitol theatre. The screen play deals with the adventures of Holt as an American soldier of fortune who joins the air corps of one of the fighting countries as a combat pilot.

In the cast of the production are Antonio Moreno, making a comeback on the screen after nearly five years in Spanish motion pictures; beautiful Mona Barrie, who plays the part of a señorita; Gloria Lockhart celebrated as a stage and screen comedian, Juanita Carlisa, a Spanish pepper-pot, Grace Wilbers, Harry Norton of Universal fame, famous for his work in "The Old Soak."

Colorful highlights of the story include a gay fiesta in a South American city; the strafing of airports at the front; several air battles; the crash of a munitions dump and some spectacular flying by veteran aviators. A plane crashes take place in the course of the picture.

Holt saves his commanding officer, brings down a giant bomber, captures the ace of the enemy air forces and does several other hair-raising and thrilling stunts.

"Ship Cafe"

Avenging an insult with the use of a shovel is the method used by Carl Brisson, Paramount star, in his latest film role.

Leading men have been known to settle disagreements with swords, pistols, boxing gloves or fists, but Brisson leverages a stirring romance with the use of a shovel in Paramount's "Ship Cafe", comedy drama of a singing ship stoker's career, which comes Wednesday to the Capitol theatre.

Brisson lands in jail as the result of the shovel fight, where he meets William Frawley, part owner of a waterfront night club dive, who offers him a job as the bouncer in the cafe. He accepts and meets Arline Judge, a dancer in the club with whom he falls in love.

A character who starts the dive with a party of swanky (society friends and is knocked out by Brisson during an argument. "Ship Cafe" immediately becomes a successful society rendezvous.

A countess, Mady Christian, becomes interested in Brisson, and against Miss Judge's advice, he accepts her proposition of a high salary in a swanky uptown night club. In a short time he realizes that the plan was just a hoax on the part of the countess who wants him to be her gigolo. He renounces her, becomes a failure. Many hilarious, dramatic complications bring the film to a smashing climax.

"Mad Lady" a new type of mystery play is showing tonight for the last time. "Restless Overseas" given away to each lady patron.

Tokyo, Feb. 27 (Thursday)—(AP)—The prevalence of peace and order in Tokyo and throughout Japan was claimed early today by the new Government under Acting Premier Fumio Goto.

It approved a broadcast on the National Radio System in which an announcer stated:

"According to information from the provincial cities all is peaceful. In Tokyo, troops, gendarmerie and police are co-operating in the maintenance of order."

(A Japanese source in London stated unconfirmed reports from Japanese newspapers said Sotaro Ishiwata, son-in-law of Riichi Takahashi, son of the Minister of Finance, said in New York he had received a cable stating his father was dead).

Tokyo, Feb. 26 (AP)—The new government of Japan under the premiership of Fumio Goto declared at midnight Wednesday that peace and order prevailed in Tokyo and throughout the country following the assassination of three cabinet ministers and the killing of other government officials.

To Protect Policy.

Young officers of the army, who said they wished "to remove corrupt influences from the throne," assassinated Premier Okada and two other cabinet ministers today.

The government declared a state of martial law and placed the capital from the high seas to police duty at the gates cities of the empire.

Emperor Hirohito was stated by a government source to have commanded the strong Nationalist, Fumio Goto, to form a new government.

Those killed were Premier Keisuke Okada, Admiral Viscount Makoto Saito, Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal and Former Premier; and General Jotaro Watanabe, chief of Military Education.

(The Japanese Foreign Office informed the Embassy at Moscow that the Finance Minister, Korekiyo Takahashi and Admiral Kantaro Suzuki, Lord Chamberlain of the Imperial Court, were seriously wounded.

Military Usual Policy.

Soldiers immediately were ordered out on duty to maintain order. The Imperial Palace and all government offices were placed under a heavy military guard.

The recent parliamentary election which demonstrated a swing toward Liberalism in the Japanese electorate, had established Premier Okada more firmly in power than he had been since his induction into office in 1934.

The young officers' action was reported as an attempt at a military coup d'etat.

Murders Begin Before 5 a.m.

The 1 a.m. Tokyo time murders began before 5 a.m. and their tasks were completed before the city had awakened from slumber.

Snow began to fall heavily early this morning, blanketing thoroughly streets in considerable depths.

The snow, combined with the frequent military patrols ordered out at the double in the early morning hours, sections of the capital's thoroughfares, demoralized traffic in the central Tokyo districts.

The stock exchange was closed and business was badly hampered but still the populace remained calm.

Killed Before Own Home.

Venerable Moderates Fall Victims of Ruthless Coup

(By The Associated Press)

Elder statesmen of the land of the rising sun—moderate Orientals who sought to temper the military seal of the empire with caution and with Liberal diplomacy—today were reported victims of a swift and ruthless military coup.

There was no rejoicing within the inner circles of the "War in the Far West" when Keisuke Okada, then 66 and a retired admiral, became Premier in August of 1934. He had devoted his life to the navy but his efforts as a moderate between civilians and military elements caused the "strong hand of the gods" to call him to "Valhalla."

His aged finance minister, Korekiyo Takahashi, 82, noted for his Liberal tendencies, only last month declared Japan's withdrawal from the London Naval Conference need not bring marked increases in naval appropriations and taxation. But his conservatism was unacceptable with those of the navy's firebrands.

Beast of Victory.

Vice-admiral Saburo Takahashi, commander-in-chief of the battle fleet, next of the Japanese navy is called upon to fight the combined forces of Admiral Okada and Great Britain. I am confident he will win."

Viscount Admiral Makoto Saito, Okada's predecessor as premier, relationships and reported admiration for Britain, was a semi-retired statesman. He was in dispute in November of 1934 after an article appeared over his name in the Osaka Mainichi defending and calling Japan's policies.

Japanese newspapers later said Saito had exaggerated the views of the article, but there was no direct disclaimer.

A former Governor of Kyot, Saito in recent years had voiced numerous of the younger officers in the army, peaceful utterances.

Saito a Liberal.

With Count Makino, reported attacked and Prince Saionji, believed safe, Saito represented an influential triumvirate of Liberal elder statesmen.

Okada, 64 years a navy man, never was forgiven by his Jingoist colleagues for mediating Japan's internal conflict over whether the Emperor's Imperial Throne sign the London Naval Limitation treaty—later renounced by Nippon.

Okada's belief was the world powers could do with smaller, less powerful capital ships and might be insisted Japan needed submarines for defensive purposes.

Takahashi always was a pillar of safety when sudden death or danger struck at Japanese leadership or economic stability.

He was finance minister seven times—they called upon him when violence, panic or depression drained the treasury. He killed deficits and twice he became Premier when assassins struck down the heads of the government.

Prince Among Sinks.

Shanghai, Feb. 26 (CP)—Prince Saionji, last remaining elder statesman of Japan's Genro Privy Council to the Emperor, was reported today to be unharmed and safe by rebellious officers in Tokyo.

The report said the 87 Prince Saionji is only less sacred in Japan than that of the Emperor.

Prince Saionji is mandatory on all matters of first importance concerning the throne.

In recent years he has always exercised a moderating influence upon the ambitions of the Jingo military and rabid Expansionists and for this reason earned the bitter hatred of the younger officers in the army.

Ancient and Modern Worlds Gaze Anxiously on Nippon

New Nipponese Move Feared by Chinese People

PEACE OR CONFLICT?

Soviet Union Sees New Threat in Far East in Coup

By FRED VANDERSCHMIDT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The eyes of the ancient Chinese Empire, of all the community of nations turned uneasily today to Japan.

Seldom has the ancient East been in so delicate a balance between peace and conflict.

Diplomatic officials at Geneva envisaged the development of a more aggressive Japanese foreign policy with possibly Nazi-like military dictatorship with Russo-Japanese relations strained even more than now.

China, newly lulled into comparative calm with the lapse of a Japanese-approved north China separatist movement, feared new Nipponese moves.

Russian Attitude.

The Soviet Union, at literal swords points for years with the puppet state of Manchoukuo over a bitter boundary dispute, saw a new and serious threat to peace in the Far East.

Remote, ill-defined borders between Soviet-advised outer Mongolia and Japanese-sponsored Manchoukuo have repeatedly strained ties which both the Russians and the Japanese Government have declaimed were "invasions" of their respective territories.

This dispute—spurred on, Soviet officials say, by Japanese militarists, seeking to extend Japanese influence far to the West—is far from ended.

Russia has increased her standing army by 1,500,000 men, largest in the world, avowedly to withstand the threat from both Japan and the Nazi Reich. Only last week the Tokyo war office announced the early movement of two Japanese army divisions to Manchoukuo. The reasons for these movements by Russia and Japanese Militarists repeatedly have made charges of great Soviet military concentrations in the East, near Manchoukuo's borders and have

Japanese Warships to Reach Destinations Thursday

REVOLUTION DENIED

No Damage of Movement Spread Says Embassy Spokesman

Shanghai, Feb. 26 (AP) — The Japanese News Agency, Domei, reported today the Japanese Navy Ministry has ordered the first and second fleets to Tokyo and Osaka "for policing purposes."

The warships were expected to reach their destinations Thursday, Domei said.

The same agency stated the defence squadron attached to Tokyo-suita naval base on January 4 arrived in Tokyo under policing orders.

A spokesman for the Japanese Embassy stated tonight while the affair in Tokyo was "serious" it was not a revolutionary uprising.

He declared: "There is no danger of the movement spreading. The commander-in-chief will maintain stability."

Minor disturbances were caused by the dissatisfaction of certain elements with the government's policies.

Fate of Original Toonerville Trolley Hangs in the Balance

MAY GET BUS

Pelham Manor, N.Y., Feb. 26 (CP)—An attempt to retire the original Toonerville Trolley (it ran on the streets of Pelham in mid-March 17 when commuters will vote on the proposed abandonment of the line) was made today by officials of the road between the Pelham Station of the New York, New Haven, Hartford Railroad and Travers Island, Pelham Manor. The passengers will express their preference for their ancient street railway at a five-cents fare, or for a shiny new bus at a 10-cent fare.

The "Dinky" Trolley Line has been operating with the same one man cars since 1900. In a letter to residents of Pelham Manor, Pelham Fox, the carliconist explained "the trolley to Pelham was my father's inspiration to start an imaginary trolley line of my own."

Lives Up To Reputation.

Commuters agree the line lives up to the reputation it has earned for it. The cars sway too much to allow passengers to read, make too much noise for talk, and the motorman is against the rules and knifing is out of the question. Passengers merely cling to their seats and place their faith in the "Skipper," Motorman Pelham Fox, or the Toonerville Trolley, Bera Futily, has his humble employers in Louis Mathe and Eddy Glazer, the night and the day operators of the Pelham Line, both of whom have been navigating their ancient craft over its washboard road-bed for more than twenty years and are called "Skipper" by their employer. Passengers in spite of their long experience, they are, Bera Futily made to prevent occasional breakdowns and delays in service.

CHARGES CHAINS BROUGHT DISCORD TO BREAD TRADE

Sweeping Recommendations Made by Commissioners at Winnipeg

FAVOR PRICE CONTROL

Bread Wars With Slashed Prices Referred to in Reports

Winnipeg, Feb. 26—(CP)— Chain bread wars and price slashing were bringing discord into the Manitoba baking industry, with starting trouble that led to protests to the provincial government and establishment of a royal commission of investigation.

Sweeping recommendations go put the bread on a sound footing were contained in the report of Judge H. W. Whitla and his fellow commissioners who charged prior to the bread price war in Brandon and Winnipeg in 1929 there had been no serious trouble.

Price Control Favored

The report, tabled in the Manitoba Legislature yesterday recommended a system of licensing for bakeries and bread vendors and suggested governmental control of prices. The commissioners also recommended that action it will take on the commission's report.

DULL SOUNDS HEARD IN ROOM

Evidence Given as to Finding of Body of Tessie

Cornwall, Ont., Feb. 26 (CP) — Dull, muffled sounds were heard in the room where Tessie Cowan died shortly before the scarred body of Rena Trenier was found in one of the bedrooms of the Trenier home, Gagne testified at the murder trial of Conrad Trenier.

Mrs. Gagne said she had gone to the Trenier home to look after the children who were playing in the yard. She had approached to within 50 feet of the building when she heard sounds issuing from the kitchen. She said she left the kitchen Tessier's body was found. "I heard a noise in the room in which, police claim, he was slain. "Was the sound you heard similar to the noise Conrad Trenier made?" Jeffrey.

"I don't know—it was a dull noise," Mrs. Gagne replied.

She said she wanted to take her children home because she knew Trembley had been drinking that day.

Six-year-old Paul Emile Gagne said he was playing in the yard of the Trembley house on the day Tessie Cowan died. The door of the kitchen was open and he could see what was happening in the room, he told the court.

"I saw Mr. Trembley hitting Mr. Tessier.

Crown Prosecutor C. L. Snyder asked what he was using to hit him.

"A wooden handle," the boy replied.

Lucienne Lebonte, seven, said she had been playing with Paul on the afternoon in question.

"I saw Mr. Trembley open the door," she said.

"Mr. Trembley was hitting Mr. Tessier. Mr. Tessier was on the floor."

Toronto—Kingston Highway Will be Widened, Improved

Toronto, Feb. 26—(CP)—Completion of the middle road from Toronto to Hamilton will be the first step in the Ontario Government's highway expansion program, forecast in the Throne Speech, it was learned at Queen's Park today.

H. M. Smith, Deputy Minister, said that about 10 miles of the middle road remained unfinished. This would provide a third highway from Toronto to Hamilton.

When the Throne Speech, Mr. Smith said, for improvement of the Toronto-Kingston highway. The government plans widening the road and eliminating dangerous curves. Completion of the improvement plan calls for eventual construction of a four-lane highway to take the heavily-travelled Hamilton-Niagara Falls route.

Preliminary to this development a new highway would be constructed from the Interlake Highway immediately reaching four lanes. No route has been chosen yet, Mr. Smith said, but several are under consideration. It was thought likely that the new road would run below the Niagara escarpment like the present road.

MOTHER'S BRAVERY SAVES 2 CHILDREN

Farmer's Wife Tosses Girls Through Window as Stove Explodes

Chatham, Ont., Feb. 26—(CP) —Fire, started when gasoline destroyed the Vanderwaghe home on the Riverside Drive Farm of Preston Thrun, Harwich Township, and sent Mrs. Vanderwaghe to the hospital as a result, showed no chance for recovery in brief.

Origin of the fire was unknown but it is supposed the kitchen stove exploded when Mrs. Vanderwaghe poured it, completely enveloping her in flames. Despite her terrible injuries she managed to get out with her two young daughters, Mary Louise, 10, and Cecile, 8, both of whom were in bed.

Knocked down from the bedroom window she snatched the children from their bed and tumbled them to the ground.

Joseph Vanderwaghe, the father, is away from home.

John A. McCleachy who resides on an adjoining farm was the first to discover plight of the family.

Mrs. Vanderwaghe was removed to the hospital. Meanwhile, the children still in the night clothes were taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Verscheure on the McCleachy farm.

Residents of the district organized a bucket brigade in an effort to fight the blaze. Water lying on the land nearby as a result of the late weather was used but to no avail.

The wind fortunately blew the flames away from the barn, but not more than 10 feet away. The building and furnishings with the exception of an outer kitchen are a total loss.

OKADA CARTOONED AS WINE LOVER

Built up a Reputation as Drinker When Young Naval Officer

(By The Associated Press)

The funeral tomorrow of Premier Keisuke Okada, reported assassinated in a militaristic coup in Japan, was set as foreign observers in Japanese press commented on the life of the slain premier.

Okada, a naval officer, the newspapers published cartoons showing the slain statesman drinking wine. Caricatures, rather than indicating disparagement, were common in Japanese press cartoons.

A delegation from the Japanese Federation of Labor called on the premier to give up sake (rice wine) and other spirits in 1934 but he refused to comply. Reports his fondness for alcohol was criticized in the Japanese Diet of Representatives only last year but Okada, though present, did not deign to reply.

Okada started building up his reputation as a drinker when he was a young naval officer and continued to be advanced to the rank of admiral.

MERCHANDISING SUBJECT OF TALK

Phil McKee of Kiwanis Club Tells of Various Phases

A most instructive address on "merchandising" was given to the members of the Kiwanis Club at their luncheon on Tuesday by Phil McKee, chairman of the membership committee. A great deal of time has been used in the preparing of the paper and was a credit to the member presenting it and much interest was displayed by those who are engaged in the merchandising of products in this city. The speaker was introduced by P. C. MacLaurin, while Ross Silver expressed Kiwanis appreciation. Frank Domenico presided. There was no community singing as the capable pianist of the club, Leo. R. Riggs, this week attained a severe bruise on one of his fingers.

Past President Alex Morris of the Toronto downtown club and Herb Austin of Riverdale Club were present at the luncheon and each spoke briefly. Mr. Morris has an unique record in Kiwanis, having 100 per cent attendance for a period of six years. George A. Lee asked for support of the football game on Friday night when they play the return game with Whitby. Fraser Cook advised against entering a team in the bowling league as Belleville would be the only team from east of Toronto in the series and the travelling would be almost prohibitive.

Phil McKee, speaker of the day, dealt with merchandising in all its phases paying particular attention to the catering of goods and the displaying of same after arrival in the store. He stated the distribution was generally on the "carpet" by the public but any independent merchant, who could meet the requirements of present day merchandising could have a large field of operation. He also stated that the independent merchant could offer his clientele personality in business, something that was submerged in chain store operation. "In practically all business the key to success is knowing not what to sell" stated the speaker, "and that windows were the greatest medium of sale."

POLICE BLOTTER

Sergeant Moore of the R. C. M. P. stationed at Brockville, was in the city this morning on his monthly tour of inspection. Sergeant Moore reported favourably upon the local detachment and returned to his own headquarters this afternoon.

No arrests were necessary in Belleville during the past 24 hours. Police Constable Cavanagh did the call block along with five transients. The "drunk" was arrested in Madoc during a raid on that town and was brought to Belleville and held in custody until this morning. The prisoner was taken back to Madoc by Provincial Constable Alex Hunter and will face a charge of intoxication in that village this afternoon.

Harry Whitney, 19, of Belleville claims that will lead to the recovery of several articles reported stolen from the locker room at the Belleville Collegiate recently. One of the articles was found in the person of a local youth, who, when questioned, stated he had been given the sweater by another boy. Subsequent investigation is expected to reveal further information towards the return of the missing sweaters.

JOHN STREET GUILD

The regular monthly meeting of the John Street Guild was held at the home of Mrs. Bruce Templeton, Queen Street, on Monday evening. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Sam Graham presided. After the usual reports some time was taken to discuss plans for the coming Easter Concert which the Guild is preparing. The worship period was taken by Mrs. Bruce Templeton who took for her subject, "Liberty. In her opening remarks Mrs. Templeton spoke of true liberty through expression. The subject for discussion was also Liberty and the discussion was led by Mrs. Mills in a very able manner. Miss Mills read a paper into three sections, "Religious Freedom", "Freedom of Speech" "Political Freedom and Economic Freedom." Section 96 of the Criminal Code was dealt at some length. Unfortunately time did not permit the finishing of this very valuable subject but it is the plan of the program committee to continue it at the next meeting. Lunch and a social half hour brought the meeting to a close.

LATE ROBERT ORR

Many friends were in attendance at the funeral of Robert Orr which took place Tuesday afternoon from his late residence, 164 Bridge Avenue. The service in the home and at the Belleville Mausoleum where entombment was made, was conducted by the Rev. A. G. Sinclair, pastor of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church.

The bearers were Mount. J. E. Marsh, Gerard Reid, Joshua Canning, Edward Ingle, William Howie and Thomas Fleary.

During the service in the home a vocal solo in keeping with the occasion was rendered by Mr. Fred Jobson, with accompaniment by Mr. Frank Stillman.

The funeral tributes were beautiful and many in number.

GEORGE E. BUCK

After a brief illness, George Edward Buck passed away early this Wednesday morning at the residence of his grandson, Mr. Jack Anderson, 156 William Street.

The late Mr. Buck had reached an advanced age, being in his 90th year. He was born at Kingston, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. George Buck. His mother's maiden name was Miss Beulah Spafford. He was of United Empire Loyalist stock, the family having come from Connecticut to Adolphustown, Prince Edward County, in the year 1797. In the year 1874 Mr. Buck moved to Picton and resided there for 43 years. Five years ago he came to Belleville to make his home. In religion he was a member of the United Church and throughout his long life was a man highly honored and esteemed by all who knew him.

DOUGLAS N. STORMS

The death occurred at the Belleville General Hospital about midnight on Tuesday, February 25th, of Douglas Nelson Storms, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Nelson Storms of 178 Cedar Street, in his 20th year. His father and two brothers survive.

Surviving him besides the parents are his father and mother, and one brother, William, both at home.

Much sympathy will be extended to Mr. and Mrs. Storms and family in their bereavement.

urged measures to cope with the situation.

A free rein for the Japanese military, Soviet observers said today, undoubtedly would create a more serious situation.

Militarists Impatient

The Militarists, it was here impatient, it was believed, because of an apparent leniency by the Okada government to curb the army's activities in China and Mongolia. Others believed the army men may have foreseen a conciliatory arrangement with Soviet Russia and an early return to complete parliamentary government and that they acted accordingly.

Comparative tranquility in relations between Japan and China over the question of North China independence, compelling observers believed, tried the military element in Japan, long at odds with more conservative civilian leaders.

This included cessation of anti-Japanese activities in China, recognition of Manchukuo by China and repression of the Communist "menace" in China. While there were strong indications the Nanking government did not see eye-to-eye with Japan on China, Hirota's friendly utterances by both Japanese military and civilian leaders further soothed the situation in recent weeks.

Japan's abrupt departure from the five-power London Naval Conference last month followed refusal by Great Britain, United States, France and Italy to grant Japan parity on the seas, instead of the 5-5-3 ratio contained in expiring treaties.

Apparently both the Japanese military authorities in Japan agreed at the time this step although Mr. Hirota's division between the admirals and the militarists is evident. Also dating back 14 years to the Washington Naval Limitation Treaty, which established the 5-5-3 ratio between the United States, Great Britain and Japan.

No Reason Given for Inspector's Dismissal

According to the Mail and Empire Inspector Hazmar Gardiner of the Ontario Provincial Police Force, has been dismissed from the force on the recommendation of Attorney-General Roebuck.

Announcement of the dismissal was made yesterday by Premier Hepburn, after a long conference with Mr. Roebuck. No reasons were given for the dismissal, however.

It is rumored, however, that the Government's action is due to certain statements made by Mr. Gardiner during the course of the Labatt kidnapping case, in which he and Sergeant Ted Weeks of the R. C. M. P. played leading roles.

CARRYING PLACE

Carrying Place—One of the best loved pioneers of this or any other community passed away in his home at Smoke's Point early last Thursday morning when Abraham Bonter passed peacefully away in his 83rd. year. He had lived all his life in the Carrying Place district, where having been one of the first settlers his descendants reside. He could tell many interesting tales of the Indians and the early days settlers' hardships; and he was also qualified to tell many a stirring tale of the lakes, as he was one of the heroes of the rescue of Captain James McSherry, only survivor of the three lifeboats of the schooner Sole Sheridan which struck near his home on November 25th, 1880. He was very fond of the out-of-door sports such as hunting and fishing, and he spent a great deal of time at them. The funeral was held on Saturday last with a short service at the home of Harry Le Tour and service in the United Church. Owing to the heavy snowfall the road was deemed impassable and the remains were brought across fields to be taken to undertaking parlors in Trenton, then to the Le Tour home where it is now easy reach for all. Rev. H. P. Sandercot of Consecon officiated. The church was filled to capacity, and a large procession followed the procession to the local cemetery where deceased was interred. Mr. Bonter leaves to survive him his wife, a sister, Mrs. M. Gibson, and a brother Frank, of Smoke's Point, and many other sorrowing relatives, including Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Bonter and family. Every sympathy is extended to them.

Unless winter rapidly relinquishes its frosty grip this community is going to feel rather strongly the shortage of water. All around the neighborhood wells and cisterns are practically going dry and not for the farmers the fight has only begun as water must be procured even for the melting of snow. Some are doing that while those who live near the bays are availing themselves of that supply. Most are praying for a thaw.

Electric wiring was completed in the local school last Wednesday, when Hydro men arrived from Bloomfield on Thursday and after placing a pole strung a line to the main lines, and on Friday the Hydro inspector looked over the work and pronounced everything all correct. Indeed the addition of electric lights put the school in the class of the better class schools of the province, and the community may congratulate itself on the acquisition. Two dark days early this week gave points the chance of realizing what an aid lighting may be when trying to see the distant blackboards.

The road from the post office to the Weller's Bay corner is so badly drifted in the centre that the old road has been abandoned, and a new course has been shovelled out on the east fence. Cars can only go as far as the Buchanan and Hennessy house however, and a number of drivers proceed that far then park their vehicles to walk the remainder of their journey.

Community League is to be held in the United Church hall on Thursday evening of this week. It is understood that one of the features of the program will be a debate anent motion pictures, with Misses L. G. Black, Estelle Weller, ...aron Hanthorn, and Ross Hennessey taking part.

Service was held in the United Church on Sunday morning while in the evening the regular meeting took place in St. John's Anglican church.

Mrs. F. H. Hennessey and Miss Norah Hennessey spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. R. Baker in Trenton.

The snowplow has been making regular trips for the past few days, and the main highway to Picton and Trenton is in splendid condition. However no one cares to see another heavy snowfall as we have had plenty of opportunity to see what happens. Bits and mail service is regular and has served splendidly under difficulties.

Miss Flora MacDonald of Trenton, assistant teacher in the local school, made her regular visit on Monday.

Mrs. Clifford Baker is at her home again with her daughter after spending some time in the Belleville hospital. Numerous old time friends in Trenton. Miss Grace Western has been caring for her until recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen McGuire and family have taken up residence in the former Spalding home on Weller's bay corner. We are glad to welcome them to this community.

Carrying Place hockeyists finished first in their group and are assured of a place in the playoffs. We shall expect to hear more of them.

ADVANTAGES OF PACT STRESSED BY HON. MR. KING

In Three Years it Will be Renewed, Expanded, Says Premier

BENNETT CRITICIZES

Indian Population Causing Concern Says Hon. Mr. Creerar

OTTAWA, Feb. 26.—(CP)—In the three years again the Canada-United States Trade Treaty will prove its beneficial to both countries it will be renewed and expanded, Prime Minister Mackenzie King declared.

Moving for the ratification of the treaty in the House of Commons yesterday, Mr. Mackenzie King described it as an attempt to break the "hard crust of economic nationalism" and predicted other agreements would follow this example or Canada and the United States and not alone between some of the barriers which are now strangling trade and retarding economic recovery.

Mr. Mackenzie King admitted the Treaty was not as extensive as might be desired, that Canada would have liked to have obtained entrance to the United States market for a larger number of products but that the restricted character of the Treaty he laid at the door of Conservative Leader Bennett and the former Government.

In two years, Mr. King said, action of the former Government facilitated against it by Canada's action in failing to take advantage of willingness of the United States to negotiate a treaty. Had this been manifest, the Bennett Government left itself open to charges that its policy was on the eve of a general election and political considerations made it difficult for a Government to take a large step has before an election.

Restricted Bargaining Power

The Empire Trade pacts had also restricted Canada's bargaining power by practically fixing duties on goods to Empire countries. In making the United States Treaty the Government had scrupulously guarded against any weakening of the Ottawa pacts, Mr. King said. At the same time avoided binding Canada to any permanent tariff with the United States, which would restrict bargaining with other countries. Owing to the Empire agreements the Canadian Government was unable to bargain fully with the United States in connection with coal, corn, curranta, raisins and some other products.

The Government spoke briefly on the Treaty and indicated its opposition. He will consider his speech Friday, He said he sincerely regretted he had to do so.

It was the aim of both Governments, said Mr. Mackenzie King, to try to avoid, which would prove a basis of enduring trade relations. Neither government sought to get the better of the other, for a Treaty that would not possibly endure beyond the three-year term to which it was limited by the present Congress granted President Roosevelt.

Advantages Seen Apparent

Advantages of the Treaty would be so apparent at the end of three years, he said, that both countries would be interested it on a larger basis for another and longer period.

The Treaty was obtained at a propitious moment, a reference unpredicted moment, a reference in the past had shown that when Governments had acted they had been successful so far. Demands were made by the United States Government for retaliation against Canada and Canada might have been "goaded" to a country which discriminated against the United States by reason of the trade provisions in the Canadian tariff laws. This would have "seriously" position of higher duties against Canadian products.

Vote Down Bill

The concessions Canada granted the United States in the way of lower tariffs would in many instances benefit Canadians as well as consumers. They related to implements of production as well as to consumers' goods.

After the treaty debate was adjourned the House voted down a bill to reduce the domestic freight rates on grain moving from the Prairies to British Columbia proposed by Thomas Reid (Lib. New Westminster).

GOSSIP vs. LAW—According to a dispatch from Ottawa, Hon. H. H. Stevens believes that gossiping women will be responsible for stopping short-weighting in grocery and butcher stores and in canned goods than a few passed by parliament. Here, Clarence and Mrs. J. A. Wilson, former president National Council of Women, support the view that the "whispering campaign" would be effective.

Mr. Reid reluctantly complied with the request of Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Railways and Canals to withdraw the bill but Harry Barber (Cons, Fraser Valley) objected and one member's objection was enough to call for a vote. So the bill was defeated instead of being withdrawn.

The rest of the session was spent on estimates for the Department of National Defence and Indian Affairs.

Bennett Not In Accord

"I greatly regret I cannot support the resolution," said Conservative Leader Bennett in expressing the Treaty debate. "I regret it very sincerely."

He did not propose, he said, to deal with the Treaty in the action-obvious spirit with which Mr. King dealt with the empire agreements when they were first discussed in the House. Mr. King had called them the "result of a New Deprivation", a conspiracy headed by Stanley Baldwin, the present Prime Minister of Britain.

The Democratic party in the United States had been the enemy of reciprocity in the past and not Mr. Bennett as Mr. King suggested. He was "differed" over Mr. King's outline of the attitude of Canadian parties to the question. The Conservative party was not alone in opposing the agreement of 1911. Liberal and distinguished Liberals joined in the opposition and without their opposition the agreement could not have been defeated.

After speaking only 18 minutes, Mr. Bennett adjourned debate. It will be resumed Friday.

Crowded Galleries Present

Crowded galleries listened to the discussion, one of the most interested being Norman Armour, United States Minister to Canada. He was surrounded by trade officials of his office.

Administration of the affairs of Canada's 112,000 Indians is causing some concern, the House was told by Hon. T. A. Crerar, Superintendent-General of Indian Affairs. He said the Indian population was increasing and approximately one-third of it was now on relief.

The great problem of the Department were to improve the situation of the Indians, to educate them, to make them self-supporting and to bring them to a great knowledge of the duties and rights of citizenship.

He thought the Government had not been as wise as it might have been in the latter regard. In many parts of Canada the Indians were making good progress in agriculture but more of them might be encouraged to support themselves in this way.

Conservative Leader Bennett said the fact the Indian population was increasing showed it was well cared for on the whole, although acute distress was often reported from some places. The services and rations provided the Indians in some cases placed them in a better position than sections of the white population.

This item had not passed at the 11 o'clock adjournment hour.

Dr. Roberts asked also if the firm received in one year orders amounting to $189,000.

SOCIAL CREDIT THEORY ANALYZED BY PROF. F. A. KNOX

Plan of Major Douglas And Aberhart Does Not Impress Him

Social Credit was the subject of the address of Prof. F. A. Knox of Queen's University before the Chamber of Commerce Better Citizenship gathering in the Y.M.C.A. last evening. He found no valid basis for the analysis of the major creditors and the cure they offered.

Views Amusing

"Frankly I don't see what there was much in it," he said, explaining why he had up to recently taken little interest in the Social Credit program. His study of the system brought him to like part that he found a bewildering complexity of nuances of opinion.

He first analyzed Major Douglas' views, for Major Douglas is the chief exponent of Social Credit. Douglas, he said, saw that before the war there was always a scarcity of money to carry on such social work as engineering projects, and after the war there was a glut of it as by magic the deficiency of money disappeared. The result of the post-war boom crash in 1920 and he found Douglas' cure in his monetary system—that depressions are monetary difficulties and not real ones.

Douglas argues that the age of plenty has come if only this money deficiency could be solved. His system would work within the capitalistic system. Douglas does not believe in communism, it believes that there is a possible cure in capitalism. That is why socialists are so bitter on the Social Creditors, for socialists feel that the defect as in the capitalistic system is inherent. Douglas believes that the operation of the system results in restriction of money in the hands of consumers. He believes that it is possible so to operate the capitalistic system that the depression will disappear.

Cost of Production

Douglas divides all the costs of production into A payments—those of wages, profits and dividends, which ultimately go to consumers, the individual for their co-operation in production — and B payments such as the money for raw materials bank loans. B payments may ultimately go to the individual but they are not available in his search for purchasing, so he says there is a huge amount of money that can buy at their price all commodities produced. Hence people have not only been paid a part.

Where this is not an adequate explanation said Prof. Knox, for B payments go to the production of raw materials, some to individuals, and some to organizations and so ultimately all go to the individual producer, the individual. Douglas, however, explain his problem so absurdly, Dr. Douglas went on a new tack. When the goods go on the market and though only some of the money has been paid directly to them in the production some will be paid a year before. Douglas says all the money ought to be available at once for purchase, and that it is not so and deficiency results.

The answer to this, is that in the case of raw materials the money ultimately reaches the point, for instances. As a matter of fact all the stages of production are found to be concurrently going on. What is now produced and offered for sale, may have been partly produced before. So really all payments are available for purchase of all production.

Depreciation

Douglas accordingly begins with throwing out a smoke screen. It is a fact that he has discovered a new and a minor point in modern economics. It is this that some point of the B payments do not go to the individuals or to organizations but are put aside as depreciation funds. That is not a valid claim if the total production is not expanding to correspond with total purchasing power. Depreciation funds, he said, are largely used as business cycles to lead them to absorb it.

The fallacy of most of the cures offered is to suppose that a free that there is not sufficient information. He did not think 'we shall ever have perfect foresight' he said. They are no doubt inherent in the capitalistic system but to destroy the capitalistic system is not a cure.

I do not think their system would do any good, it is too simple. There is no one factor, he said, that is to blame for the depression, there are many causes, each of which will have to be solved individually.

"We must give united support to the Central Government and not unduly interfere with its operations from day to day," he said. "We must understand it, it is a job for experts —this complicated machinery."

Expand the Relief

Prof. Knox said that the time had past when it could be said that there only title to money and position was work. The old rule will not work now. What is the situation of those who want to work and cannot find work. He says no reason why money should not be paid to those who find themselves out of work. He believed that it was only failure and expediency to assure to those who are out of work the income they would get if they were working.

He said:

"We do. It in part by relief. All I ask is that relief be expanded that some support be lent to sagging industry and prices. This would demand a consistent reserve in good times. I would pay men as soon as a firm closes and they become idle to maintain a fair standard of living. The men would get money so that the purchasing power would be maintained. Then it would favor a system of barter, exchanges to get the idle men to work as quickly as may be.

"Our ideas are built on a time of great scarcity. But that time is now past", he said. We had the consumers' reserve panacea but large enough to maintain the classes above the poverty line.

Some say the dole is demoralizing. But you see people who live well on dole all their lives—they live on the income from bonds. They toil not neither do they spin."

Transportation and Power Monopoly

Prof. Knox came out strongly for government control of transportation in all aspects or at least of the railways, and also he advocated government control of the power industry. Access to power and transportation, low rates would be a means to industry's development. It would make a government monopoly of transportation and power and make it possible to furnish power and transportation at the lowest cost.

He said badly in trade and industrial commission to throw the light on the business not enough taking which is bad but we need to publicize—every thing, though that not only his own, but everybody's."

Prof. Knox pointed out that one country cannot prosper alone, Canada's future depends on the welfare of the United States and Britain do largely, because Canada is an exporting nation which depends for its wealth. Canada ought to watch the progress of events in the United States closely.

In closing he said that an elaborate system had to be offered to Social Credit for the capitalist system does not need a stabilizing device. The present system is a great democratic system. The people want to live and to co-operate with one another.

"I don't like the way to make an assault on the deficiencies of the capitalist system. I think we must give the Social Creditors credit for arousing the public to a consideration of these things, though their analysis and cure are, we believe in error.

In answer to a question he said that there is the possibility of certain businesses overdoing production. When purchasing power goes down, people do not want the same products as they do when prices are rising. Then there is plenty of purchasing power people do not buy because they do not want that something like radios. The public has become somewhat fickle as a consequence. There is not the old standard of living. This question of the fickleness of the part of the public has to be considered. "This is a field where advertising comes in.

Prof. Knox stated at the close that he had great respect for public opinion since the outbreak of the war. War, he said, made public opinion that counted in those days. This he said would be applied to relief in order if the days should come when people had more leisure.

Dr. Slater occupied the chair and Mr. Blaine introduced the speaker. A vote of thanks was tendered on motion of Mr. Davison.

Lafluer, like his co-accused, Lefleur, objected to the statements on the ground they were made because they had been sufficiently warned by constables who questioned him. Lafleur was driver of the bank car in which Nadeau was shot and killed and of $76,619 he was taking from the Banque Provinciale du Canada in Hull to the Ottawa Capital. The statement will be read later today.

Attempt to Retain Custody Thwarted

Detroit, Feb. 25—(AP)—An Alabama court order to return Mrs. Edith of New York to retain custody of her five-year-old son, Francis by Mrs. Lucille Cates of Detroit was abruptly yesterday, when immigration officials at Ambassador Bridge refused to admit them.

Mrs. Cates came here with the child last October from New York where the father is seeking custody of Francis.

The child was placed in Mrs. Smith's care after a habeas corpus hearing before circuit Judge Allan Campbell. Previously he had been in a detention home while efforts were being to determine if he would be returned to New York.

Mrs. Smith told court officials she had hoped to be deported to France for a visit with relatives. She said she was a daughter of General Pierre Margueritte, a commander of the Legion of Honor.

NEW DANCE

A new dance has come, the "swing dance," known as "The Fleet" which is expected to attain the popularity of the "Carioca" and other hits. The dance was demonstrated this week in New York to four hundred dancing teachers. The dance is described as follows—by Miss Lucille Marsh, director of the National Dance League—

"The gentleman steps forward on the left foot with the toe turned in," she said. "On the 'and' count he turns it out. He steps forward with the right foot. Putting this into a characteristic 'fleet step,' the hornpipe, step to the left on the left foot, place the right foot back of the left heel, turned in, and turn both feet out on the off-beat. Repeat this in double time. The rhythm is 2-2, and two 'fleet' movements are done to a measure."

It was demonstrated by Miss Marsh and Laurence Hostetler, instructor in dancing at Columbia University.

The cotillion was said to be growing increasingly popular again in England and in the United States.

IN NEW YORK PULPITS

Reverence for holy persons, sacred things, is the duty of young and old, according to Dr. W. H. Kephart preaching at North New York Congregational Church. "Parents do not lose the respect of their children by insisting on obedience. Many young people have little respect for holiness and they ought to be taught reverence. Children should be reverent in their attitude toward the church instead of playing baseball and throwing snowballs without regard for property. "Dr. Kephart claimed that even card playing and dancing should be indulged in reverently, for the acts in themselves are not sinful, he said. "The time is here for the young and old to give all reverence to the Father who rules and controls the universe in which we live. We should have all reverence for the building and the furnishings of this church. When we come into the church we should ask God's blessing on our services and we should remember that it is a place of communion and fellowship with God at all times."

The necessity of realizing the presence of the Lord in the turning points of one's life, as a part of one's resources, for counsel and companionship was stressed by Bishop Rogers of Ohio at St. Thomas Episcopal Church, New York. The turning points in our life teach us patience, kindness, and goodwill. There is a turning point now for youth when it strikes out for a life of its own away from the regimented life of home, school and its social set. The necessity is for the deep consciousness of the presence of the Lord, the realization that we cannot get away from our family and from the old things that hold."

At this service, Rabbi William F. Rosenbaum of Temple Israel and forty members of his confirmation class were present in observation of Brotherhood Day.

One of the most pathetic things growing out of the depression is the air of fatalism with which many people have come, Bishop F. J. McConnell said in Christ Mthodist Episcopal Church. "It is true that when a strong social force gets under way, hardly any one can stand up against it. Christians however must develop strong wills for the final and essential appeal of Christianity is to the will. If Jesus had been willing just to coast along, He might have lived fifty years to die in bed."

Democracy should be made the spiritual aim and the central meaning of life, said Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick at Riverside Church. The decision can be made by looking at Russia, Italy and Germany and then asking whether we wouldn't prefer the alternative.

Charity and the power of seeing are related for without charity we are blind, Bishop L. Kroll of Liberia, Africa, consecrated last week, said in The Little Church Around the Corner. He called charity the best of the three Christian virtues for without it true faith cannot exist and hope can have no strength. Charity is an expression of love and God is love.

If people were true to their Christian teaching, that loyalty would carry all other loyalties with it—loyalties to the home, to the sacred bond of matrimony, and loyalty and trustworthiness in all obligations and responsibilities, said Bishop Manning at the Church of St. Matthew and St. Timothy.

"Ours is the noisiest age in history," remarked W. S. Rice, field secretary of the New York State Christian Endeavor Union. "So long as we are constantly engaged physically, we think that we are moving up in life. It is almost impossible for us to be still in a city that knows neither night nor repose. We have little time to think of anything but the immediate present."

It is a beautiful necessity of our nature to love something.—Jerrold.

All true love is grounded on esteem.—Buckingham.

UNEMPLOYED—A VOICE FROM THE SUBMERGED

(Pete Beach)

Home I come, just a bum,
From riding rails, from tramping trails.

The North wind, so unkind,
Heartlessly forces me
Walls to hug, shoulders shrug.
Men like me damned must be.

Hopelessness, I confess
Enthralls all like a pall.
God; at last stills that pain.
Finish me mercifully.

Happy I here to die.
Baby Ajaman's boyhood scheme;
Manhood woe; flashing go
Through my mind
World's unkind.

Home I come just a bum,
From riding rails,
From tramping trails.

FEBRUARY GENERALLY PACKS THE HARDEST PUNCHES OF WINTER as if the weather provider regretted seeming weakness in any pleasant days permitted in December and January and was fearful lest that lusty younster Spring come suddenly round the corner and upset old Boreas' apple cart. However, February saw the birth of men who left their names written large on history's pages. George Washington, first President of the United States, was born in February, a rough weather month, symbolical perhaps of the rough journey he was to have through life including that cold winter at Valley Forge when he sat down with his amateur army to wait for favorable weather to open the war with England officially. Abraham Lincoln, also a President, and credited with saving the United States from being split into two separate identities, North and South, was born in February. Two February stormy petrels who left pleasant memories and records of achievement as nation builders.

LOCALLY QUITE A FEW BIRTHDAYS OF WELL KNOWN CITIZENS OCCUR IN FEBRUARY. Those which come to mind immediately are W. E. Tummon who was born on February 6, H. W. Ackerman, February 9; Charlie Dolan, Blake Ives, C. W. Browne, were born in different years on February 10; R. J. E. Graham, February 16; H. E. Fairfield February 20; Percy McGuire, February 21. That of course is not a complete roster of well known Belleville citizens who celebrate birthdays this month but we are willing to publish a supplement if the missing names are supplied pronto. Offhand we would just mention that all the citizens mentioned have reached the age but its dollars to doughnuts they do not all vote alike. Which is not such a bad thing after all, as that ex-David Harum would say "it's a difference of opinion that makes hoss races," and sich.

BELLEVILLE HAS MANY CLAIMS TO GREATNESS INCLUDING TWO SIR KNIGHTS, ONE PREMIER OF CANADA, several Senators, educational institutions which sent young men and maidens to many parts of the world as torchbearers of a better and more abundant life—also as a place where miracles are performed, where the deaf are made to hear and the dumb to speak—besides other valuable contributions to the world at large— and now Belleville has achieved greatness at the microphone, that magical child of science which carries speech, song and story all round the world where all who have a receiving set may listen and enjoy. One of Belleville's talented sons stood before the microphone and talked to thousands for forty-five minutes without a note or a misplaced or mispronounced word. And this was his first experience in front of a microphone. Seasoned "mike" performers like Eddie Cantor, Phillips Lord, and all the host of shadowy voices of the ether have never equalled that feat for all must prop themselves with script lest they get helplessly lost in the mazes of "mike" fright. Very few people trust themselves to talk on the "mike"—which has a peculiar menacing terror in that one talks into vacancy knowing that thousands are listening just beyond the veil which hides them from view—without at least voluminous notes and most radio speakers have the entire script word for word, which makes the feat of the Belleville man all the more outstanding. To be crowned a Radio King is a small honour and that is the least that could be awarded the Belleville speaker who has a brain sufficiently receptive and sensitive to photograph the material for a talk forty-five minutes long and co-ordinate with the tongue in releasing the same in an entertaining manner. How is it that Huntingdon Township turns out so many talented men and women? Is it something in the air, the earth or the sky above?

HEALTH DEPT IS UNDER FIRE IN THE LEGISLATURE

DEBATE CONTINUED

Exception Taken to Appointments at Orillia Hospital

Toronto, Feb. 26 (CP)—Complementary measures to the Provincial Income Tax Bill, necessitated by the Province assuming the power to tax incomes, amendments to the Municipal and Assessment Acts come before the Ontario Legislature today.

The tax bill, taking from municipalities the right of taxing incomes passed the committee stage yesterday and will come up for third reading later in the week after reprinting. After that, only Royal assent will be required before it becomes law.

Following the brief period devoted to committee consideration of the Hon. A. N. Hoskin, Conservative member for Toronto Bracondale, resumed the Throne Speech debate with an attack on administration of the Health Department. Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal member for Sault Ste. Marie, spoke next on northern problems.

The debate will continue tomorrow with Dr. Roberts concluding his speech, halted by adjournment late yesterday. He will be followed by A. E. Acres, Conservative member for Carleton.

Health Department Under Fire

The purchasing division of the Health Department, Mr. Nesbitt said, was "the biggest joke" in connection with it. Quoting from the public accounts, he said shoe soles were purchased for the Orillia hospital at $4.70, when the proper price was around $2.40.

Lavatory soap had been purchased in 600-cake lots at six and three-quarters cents a pound, when the same products could have been bought in smaller lots at four and one-half cents a pound. On this item, he said, the government could have saved $94.09.

Population of Orillia had been increased due to Hon. J. A. Faulkner, Health Minister, appointing so many people from his home city of Belleville to positions in Provincial hospital at Orillia.

"Take R. B. Hamilton, who was connected with the hospital at Orillia," Mr. Nesbitt instanced "He was fired and his job given to a man named Weir of Belleville. We fired Floyd Green, a truck driver at the Orillia hospital was fired after 19 years' service and his place taken by one Bunnett of Belleville.

Dr. Faulkner interjected the statement that Green "became we had a large garage bill to pay for a truck he damaged, while he was drunk."

Premier in Defence

"That's no reason why you had to go to Belleville for a successor," Mr. Nesbitt replied.

"Maybe they had to go to Belleville to get a sober man," Premier Hepburn interposed.

Establishment of an experimental farm in Algoma and a fish farm similar to Algonquin Park, along Lake Superior, was suggested by Dr. Roberts. He congratulated the government for facilities given at this sage last session of a bill providing for reorganization of the Algoma Steel Company. He questioned by saying "some millions of dollars more expansion of the plant" would be available.

Touching on working conditions on northern highways, Dr. Roberts said a workman employed by the MacNamara Construction Company received $16.65 for five and one-half days' work but the company billed him $19.40 for board.

He suggested road-building contracts be let for three or five-mile stretches so smaller contractors would have a chance to tender.

WANTS TO BEAT MALE SPEEDERS

World's Fastest Woman, Kay Petre, Has Eye on Campbell's Record

London, Feb. 26 (AP)—Petite, dark-eyed Kay Petre, English racing motorist, known as the "fastest woman on earth," plans to invade the United States this summer to challenge America's leading men race drivers.

"If they'll let me," she said. "We have mixed racing, for men and women both, here and on the European continent—but I understand America doesn't encourage women racers in the United States.

"I'm very keen to try, though. I'd particularly like to have a go at the 500-mile Indianapolis race, which corresponds with our 500-mile race at Brooklands."

It was at the famous Brooklands course, on the outskirts of London, that Mrs. Petre last summer established a new world record for women with a three-mile lap speed of 134.78 miles per hour. She also holds the class record for the dangerous mountain course at Brooklands.

So small that she has to be strapped to the seat of her giant racer, by means of her long bobbed tresses, Mrs. Petre is only five feet one inch in height, weighs also 3¼ stone and weighs just over 100 pounds.

Despite her wealthy, she took up racing three years ago for the thrill of it, and despite her slight physique, she has never had a crash.

Mrs. Petre hopes to make a tour of tracks in Florida, California and possibly have a speed setting up a new time record along the salt flats of Utah, where her fellow-countryman, Sir Malcolm Campbell, established the new world mark of 301.129 m.p.h.

SMUGGLED ACCESSORIES BRING $500 FINE

Failure to pay the fine will result in jail not to exceed 12 months.

The second charge of which he was convicted, transporting the accessories, Rosenblood was fined an additional $100 or two months in jail.

20 YEARS AGO

FEB. 26TH, 1916

Well, it was some game of hockey at the arena last night and Belleville's team beat the O.H.A. team cause very near being put out of the winning. The opponents were from Oshawa and they can certainly play some hockey. When in Oshawa last Wednesday night Belleville's fast team had at the conclusion of the game 5 goals to their opponents 4 and it was certainly fortunate that they had a one goal lead over Oshawa before last night's game was commenced as the score at the end of the game was 4 to 4. It is true that this was times when players are off color and this may truthfully be said of our boys last night. The following composed the team: Belleville Conley, Simons, Whitty, Hough, Whalen, Symons, Mitchell. Oshawa, Smith, Jones, Bowen, Fair, Hall, Hambly, Vemiil. Referee L. Whitehead.

SECORD PORTRAIT PUZZLE TO GOV'T

X-Ray Test Shows Likeness of Sir George Ross Beneath

Toronto, Feb. 25 (CP)—Laura Secord whose 31-mile walk behind a cow saved her a place in Canadian history, looked down from her favoured place in the Ontario Legislative Buildings "Hall of Fame" today as the government wondered what to do with the picture. It was learned to-day it has been painted over the portrait of former Premier George W. Ross.

"I don't know what we will do with the picture," said Premier Hepburn. "I don't even know whether we could do anything with it. Perhaps we could remove the painting of Laura Secord and bring out the portrait of Sir George. I don't know whether they could or not and I would want to know more about that first."

Meanwhile, portraits of the heroine, whose warning to the British helped them win the Battle of Beaver Dam in the War of 1812, have been restored to its place between the portraits of Sir Isaac Brock, hero of the Battle of Queenston Heights in the same war, and George Brown, one of the Fathers of Confederation.

Following the revival last week of the 99-year-old story, the second picture popped out of the Ross frame. Painted from 1886-1926, the canvas was submitted to X-ray examination by the Provincial Museum.

It was proved conclusively the photo-graphic negative of Sir John A. Macdonald, covered the bewhiskered features of the former Premier.

CHURCHES BAND TO FIGHT NAZIS

German Protestants Stand Shoulder to Shoulder With Catholics

(By Paul Ravoux)
(Copyright, 1936, by the Hearst News Agency)

Berlin, Feb. 25.—(CP-HAVAS)—The German Protestant Church stood shoulder to shoulder with Catholics in the Reich today, to fight Nazi domination of the education and training of its youth.

An avowed of the intention of the Protestant clergy to resist Nazi invasion of the church's educational system and to uphold the parochial school system and the Protestant youth organizations was one of the outstanding features of the declaration of Independence voted at the close of the eight-day session of the Confessional Synod at Oyenhausen.

Led by the Rev. Martin Niemoeller, wartime U-boat commander and chief moving spirit in the ministers' rebellion against Nazi domination, the Synod voted to reject the church autonomy imposed upon it by the Nazi Government and to establish its own Independent administrative body.

The Synod formally refused to recognize the government ecclesiastical commissioning created by Hans Kerrl, Minister of Religion to accept the resignation of the Government-appointed "provisional" administrative body. It replaced this governing board with a commission of three to administer church affairs for the time being.

16 OCCUPANTS ESCAPE BLAZE

Former Albion Hotel at Stratford Totally Razed; $50,000 Extent

Stratford, Ont., Feb. 25 (CP)—Fire today gutted the Albion Block, causing about a dozen persons to escape, and caused damage estimated at $50,000. The fire, believed to have started in the basement, went up through all the floors. The old hotel was in white freshen fought the blaze.

Tons or water were poured into the old structure before the blaze, which the 15 or 16 roomers escaped soon after the blaze was discovered.

No estimate could be placed on the value of the former hotel on loss of over $50,000 is feared.

Owners of business places on the ground floor were working frantically to get possessions to safety.

The fire department, which have started in the basement but fire-fighters were unable to locate the cause of the conflagration.

Mrs. Ed Murray, who lives on the ground floor, was the first to awaken after she heard sounds which seemed to come from above.

On opening the hall door she noticed the flames and after dressing hurriedly went from door to door awakening tenants. They dressed hurriedly, grabbed up a few articles they could and then fled to the streets through smoke-filled corridors.

While the majority went down the stairs safely, one woman was said had to be helped by police officers. There was little loss of life in the buildings, firemen said, after battling the stubborn fire for two hours.

The places of business affected Cas. Dry Cleaners, T. V. A. Radio Shop, Store, superior Shoe Repair Shop, Royal Shoe Shine Parlor, Fletcher Anderson's Variety Shop, where the Weekly Mirror is printed, and the Albion Lunch.

Madoc and District

Madoc, Feb. 26—The regular evening service of Trinity United Church took on a special form as the Young People's Society of the Men's Association of the church. Devotion was in charge of Mrs. Bagley and the Lord's prayer. The chairman, Mr. Vaughan Jack took charge and the programme opened with a hymn and a selection by Mr. Arnold Chapman and the church orchestra. The Scripture lesson was read by Mr. Cummings. Prayer was offered by Rev. I. Kennedy. Mr. Alex Kidd, president of the Men's Association sang the beautiful solo "I Shall Not Pass This Way Again." Hymn 494, the male quartet was then received. The first speaker, Mr. G. Keogh, gave a very interesting address on "Brotherly Love." A violin solo by Mr. A. Johnston was followed by the announcements by Mr. Jack Palin.

Mr. Martin was the second guest speaker and his remarks on "Life" were also interesting. His selection "O That We'll Be Glory" was sung by Mr. Colin Bleecker, assisted by Mr. Jack Anderson. Another very lovely instrumental selection was given by the church orchestra. Wonderful and familiar song "My God and I" was splendidly rendered by Mr. Jack Perkins. The men's choir concluded the programme with the anthem "Lead Me to Calvary." The service was closed with hymn 501 and the Mizpah Benediction.

Mr. Alexander and Miss West were married by the chairman, Mr. A. C. Anderson to lead in communicating singing. A very pretty wedding was performed by twenty-four junior girls was well presented. Another drill by twelve little girls in white dresses and red sashes and carrying flags and fashioned costumes illustrated an old time waltz.

Of much interest was the display of mat work by the students. Mrs. Cummings, the physical training instructor has made great strides in this line as capably demonstrated by the thorough manner in which the work was performed. These boys included Walter Rose, Keith Bleecker, Harry Ayerworth, Joe Gillan, Alan Martin, Newton Kincaid and Earl Wellman.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

One sunny does not like to think that women are impolite and rude yet evidence certainly shows that at least some of them are. And even that number is far more than should be.

How often does a woman thank a man when he holds a door for her? Or when he steps aside to allow her to enter an elevator ahead of him? At Christmastime, during the shopping rush, I have observed women pushing excitedly ahead, unthinkingly cramping and squeezing the children and men near Santa Claus.

Recently an acquaintance told me that while walking on Fifth Avenue, a lady dropped her handbag. Fortunately for her owner, I want to pick it up. But instead of being pleased and thanking him, the lady in question turned away as though to intimate he had attempted to steal her purse.

This latter is undoubtedly an exceptional example. Few women could be so rude as that. Yet women are often rude to each other.

As a woman you owe it to yourself to have with little consideration for the rights of others. They may not literally push you aside in a way or even indulge in angry words.

With some women, chiefly gossip, often far from polite, may actually border on the obscene. It is an unfortunate fact that a bit of gossip derogatory to the character of another, particularly one's own woman, spreads and enlarges much faster than talk which is praiseworthy.

To be sure, a perfectly natural antagonism exists between men and women—the antagonism of sex. Men are also antagonistic to each other because of the competition which exists between woman and woman is more bitter than that between man and man.

Women try to outrival each other in fashion, possessions and in gaining the love of a man. This last is the greatest source of strife. But the strongest competition between men is in the business world and in that they tend to play the game with less emotion and less bitterness than women do in their sex.

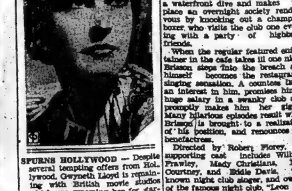
We like to think that women are more cultured and refined than men. Alas, often it should be so. For is it not the mother from whom the child, male and female, gets its first fundamental start in life?

If a woman is rude, her children are likely to grow up rude. If she is polite and constrained in her social relationships, that is the best assurance that her children will develop into genuine ladies and gentlemen.

And, of course, rudeness in women tends to make men rude toward them. Already we notice how few are the men who give women seats in crowded subways but just how seldom now does a man doff his hat when entering an elevator.

If women would keep men chivalrous, they must themselves endeavor to elicit that quality from them. All of which shows, of course, that the golden rule is the best bottom.

It doesn't take much to scratch the veneer and reveal the savage underneath, whether it be man or woman.



Ethel's Daily Diet Hint

The habit of drinking cocktails as an appetizer is to be deplored. Although the occasional use of such beverage for purposes of conviviality will surely not injure health, dependence upon them as appetizers in the sitting can readily become such a habit that increased amounts of alcohol are needed to produce the desired effects. Person past middle life, should be particularly careful in this respect.

JUST PERFECT for the woman seeking dignity as well as beauty in an evening gown is a model in taffeta, printed in three shades of blue and white done on a black ground. The slim dress has an overdress of black net, which flares from the knees down.

"Storm Over The Andes"

Giant Plane Blasts 2 Tons of Dynamite in Film

The blasting of a wartime ammunition dump, containing more than five tons of high-powered explosives is one of the thrills in Universal's gripping story of aviation and war in South America, "Storm Over the Andes", starring Jean Hoit, now playing at the Capitol theatre. The job is done from a giant bomber piloted by Antonio Moreno and Hoit in the production. The crash of an airplane piloted by Hoit against a hangar, parachute jumps, and the "strafing" and bombing of an airport. Throughout this runs the romance between Hoit and beautiful Mona Barrie who meet at a gay fiesta.

Unfortunately, contracted to have spent more than $100,000 in getting this picture produced, Hoit has had production which is causing speculators at the Capitol theatre to speculate of their time sitting on the edge of their seats.

"Ship Cafe"

Carl Brisson, Paramount actor, sought realism for his new screen role as ship stoker by spending a month of his time with the "black gang" in the stokehold of a ship, in order to get the proper feeling and background of his part in "Ship Cafe".

The Danish star is featured opposite Ginger Rogers in a romantic comedy drama with music, "Ship Cafe" which is now playing at the Capitol theatre. The story deals with the adventures of Richard Stoker, who becomes the bouncer in a waterfront dive and makes the race on overnight society rendezvous by knocking out a champion fighter who visits the club one evening with a party of highbrow friends.

When the regular featured entertainer in the cafe takes ill one night Stoker steps into the breach and himself becomes the restaurant's singing sensation. A romance takes an interest in him, promises him a huge salary in a swanky club and promptly makes him her slave. Many hilarious episodes result when Brisson is brought to a realization of his position, and renounces his attractress.

Directed by Robert Florey, the supporting cast includes William Frawley, Mary Carlisle, Inez Courtney, and Eddie Davis, well known night club singer, and owner of the famous night club, "Leon and Eddie's," Manhattan night club.

AT THE BELLE

"Dangerous"

Bette Davis and Francsted Tone Head Excellent Twin Bill

A picture that is said to give Bette Davis an even greater opportunity to display her rare dramatic genius than did "Dr. Human Bondage" or "Bordertown" from Universal's gripping story of aviation and war in South America, "Storm Over the Andes", starring Jean Hoit, now playing at the Capitol theatre. The job is done from a giant bomber piloted by Antonio Moreno and Hoit in the production. The crash of an airplane piloted by Hoit against a hangar, parachute jumps, and the "strafing" and bombing of an airport. Little Benny's Note Book

My cusen Artie stayed at my house all night last nite and me and him was playing my airoplane game in the parlor when pop came in pop was reading the paper in his private chair and all of a sudden he threw it on the floor saying, Well by golies if no news is good newspapers are the most awful news in the world.

Morning no news, and I whispered to Artie and we got the paper out and started to pretend like we did not know any news in it, no saying, O, listen to this, did you hear about this, pop? pop just kept on inerry headline, saying, Giraffe with 2 Tails Born Monday, and Two Heads around Church in the Mist of the Sermon.

Morning is a must of overlooked, pop said. I always maintained that a paper who prints all the truth will miss something sooner or later, pop said, and Artie and me knew it a good one, did you read this one, Artie said, Pop! Pop! Read the Big Story Window and Catch Each Other in the Air and Save Each Other's Life.

Snappy work, if they can catch like that when they're falling, you'll probably grow up to be champeen ball players, pop said, and me and him pow'd came to miss an item like that, he said, and me and him bowled over 40 dollers Blown Up when Ship Explodes, All Hands Saved, and Artie and me knew it but we missed that one too, pop, I said.

I bet I did, pop said. Well, I'm glad to know it now. It must of been a big time with that one. It was a remarkable experience, he said, and Artie said, O, splitters Uncle Will, listen to this one, Dead Man Goes to Heaven and Don't Like It Much so He Returns to Earth and Asks to Have His Old Job Back.

So he does, and you can bet your look for one about 2 boys who couldn't wait to get their airoplane game or sits went to bed, pop said.

Meening us and proving he had knew we was only fooling all the time.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied by Bingar and Crawford & Financial Service.

PERSON GOLD MINES LTD. Consulting a very detailed analysis of Perron Gold Mines Ltd., under date of January 15th, 1936, the Mining Evaluation & Company states:—

The erection of a 125 ton cyanide mill is practically completed and production at that rate will be underway early in February. Ample crushing and tailings equipment have been installed for results increasing production tonnage. The ore is of low grade character and recovery costs will be low. Sorting bells have been installed with a discarding up to 20 per cent. undue dilution, on account of the flat lying nature of the ore bodies, can be avoided.

"With operating costs of $7.00 a ton (inclusive of $2.00 a ton for mine development) and recovery by mill head recovery of 0.40 oz. or $14.00, the operating profit, in 125 tons a day, of $35,000 a month may be earned.

"The present extensive ore structure predicates production increase during 1936. Such action will be guided by development results to depth and to the West where diamond drilling has indicated favorable geological structure.

"The property is under the management of James P. Norris, to whom with the mine staff, credit must be given for the able manner in which the mine has been brought into production.

"The market valuation of under $2,000,000 at current quotations of the shares, is warranted."

Moffatt-Hall Meeting. Tomorrow a special meeting of shareholders will be held tomorrow in Toronto, to consider passing a resolution requiring the company to be voluntarily wound up. Assets were reportedly disposed of to Moffatt-Hall Mining Co., a 5,000,000-share company, of which 2,500,000 were issued to the company. Shareholders will eventually receive one new for each two old held.

Parkhill Gold Mines

It is learned officially that development on the 10th, 11th and 11th levels continues to be very encouraging at Parkhill. A number of stopes on these levels now producing ore of an average value of better than $20; the face on the drift east on the 11th level is showing a strong quartz vein. Preparations to sink the shaft to the 12th level are nearing completion. The mill is currently treating 80 to 85 tons a day of half ounce ore.

Centaurus

Strength in the shares of Centaurus is not surprising to those who have made a study of the mine possibilities. 1936 is a very important and critical year for Centaurus and no doubt the results of the exploration and development work to be done in the next six months will give a very good idea of the mine's ultimate possibilities.

Irishwoman Objects To Her Obituary

Montreal, Feb. 26.—(CP)—Mrs. Peter Murphy who can't be bothered counting the fleeting years any more, doesn't like a newspaper man calling the days when she was the belle of the little Irish community in Montreal as "Zing of the Newsboys". But she's not objecting to the public notice appearing in newspapers yesterday.

The papers came out with nice little biographies on the aged widow of the "Zing" who, after getting concession on a downtown corner was given in recognition of his kid days as bank robbers. But Mrs. Murphy was unappreciative. She wanted to tell the Mrs. Peter Murphy who died yesterday and she wants it known.

RELIEF CAMPS CLOSED BY JULY 1

Objective of Government Announced by Hon. Thomas Crerar, Minister

Ottawa, Feb. 26.—Choice of relief camps throughout Canada by December Day is the objective of the Government, Hon. Thomas Crerar, Minister of Labor announced today. Present strength of the camp will not be increased, he added, but will be maintained.

A Labor Department survey last December showed there were 19,338 men and women employed in the various relief camps across Canada.

Mr. Crerar informed the House of Commons the Minister said:

Arrangements have been made with the Canadian Railways to employ 10,000 men on deferred maintenance work during the coming summer. Men taken from the relief camps by the railways will be on a basis of work and wages.

The additional railway maintenance to be undertaken by the government and railways on a 50-50 basis, will involve a further supplementary estimate will be introduced in the House to cover the government's share.

While relief camps remain open, administration of relief camps under the Department of National Defence, there will be co-operation with and carrying out the policy of the labor department.

Co-operation will be encouraged between Provinces and Dominion in the carrying out of alternative application of the farm placement scheme, under which $4.00 cents a day-in the relief camps will be increased to $5.00 a day from the first March 1. All other allowances, such as food, clothing, tobacco and medical care will be kept up.

Some six or seven hundred men at the Trenton Air Camp Relief Project would be affected by this order. A large percentage of these workers are from Belleville.

YOUNG MILITARY OFFICERS STATE

dilitional style. The plotters surrounded Hitler and General Goering as they sought to kill them called them out into the gray darkness before they could recover sufficiently to attempt them and fired.

The following members of the cabinet were reported to have escaped hurt:

Kozi Hirota, Minister of Foreign Affairs; Tatsunosuke Yamasaki, Minister of Communications; Gen. Sadayuki Kawashima, Minister of War; Count Shigenori Togo, Minister of Overseas Affairs; Chuki Kobayashi, Minister of Commerce and Industry; Shinzo Uchida, Minister of Railways.

Hirota and the other cabinet ministers who were safe remained in their homes, awaiting the results of this decision on the advice of military authorities.

The story of the shooting of Watanabe was typical of the action of the assassins in every case.

Uniformed men surrounded his home and called him out. Then they called him out at dawn and shot him down.

Newspaper Office Attacked.

A war office communique said the insurgents had taken possession of office of the newspaper Asahi and the publishing office of Count Nobuaki Makino, former Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal at Odawara, southwest of Tokyo.

The war office said that the fate of Count Makino was not known but other reports said he had escaped unharmed.

The official communique followed: "It is a coup by party of young officers staged a coup.

"They attacked governments leading officials and assassinated them, first, the residence of Prime Minister Admiral Okada, who was reported to be killed; secondly, the private residence of the Lord Privy Seal Admiral Viscount Saito, who was also reportedly killed; thirdly, the residence of Inspector General of Military Education, Gen. Watanabe, the fate of Count Makino is not known; fifthly, the official residence of the Minister of Finance Baron Takahashi Somiki, who was seriously injured; sixthly, the residence of the Minister of Finance Minister Takahashi who was injured; seventhly, the premises of the newspaper Asahi fired.

It was later reported that Makino had escaped injury.

Murders At Dawn.

The rebellious officers, springing at dawn, seized absolute control of Tokyo, reliable reports said, but the government remained in possession of the situation after the Imperial bodyguard was given marching order against the rebels.

Premier Okada, Finance Minister Takahashi and Gen. Watanabe, Inspector General of Military Education, were officially reported dead.

Foreign Office in Singapore was quoted in a Reuters News Agency dispatch as saying:

"At 5:30 a.m., some soldiers of the 1st division, acting without orders, assassinated Count Okada, Premier Okada and Finance Minister Takahashi."

"General Watanabe, Inspector-General of Military Education, was officially wounded.

"Count Makino and General Saito, Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, were attacked but escaped. Prince Saionji and Mr. Kido, Minister for the Imperial Household, and General Kawashima, Minister of War, are safe.

"It is expected the situation will be settled by this afternoon."

The assassins were led by Captain Yoshiaka.

Trouble Starts in Orient.

Japanese officials declared the insurrection's trouble originated from an order, given to the first army division, stationed in Tokyo, to be recalled to the continental Japanese-controlled State of Manchoukuo.

Some 20,000 troops reportedly are being unwilling to proceed.

Loyalist troops had been assigned-tasks for some time toward the outbreak of Premier Okada's suggestion to Finance Minister Takahashi, this incident apparently providing a motive for the assassination of Takahashi.

The rebels first met little resistance, taking over the headquarters of police board and the residences of Premiers Okada and other cabinet officers in the heart of Tokyo, reliable reports said, but rioting and disorder were not reported.

The third infantry regiment of the first army division began occupation in Tokyo, was reported by Japanese sources at Shanghai to have expected.

The division was mobilized recently for duty in the continental Japanese-sponsored State of Manchoukuo and automatically was placed under orders to leave.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal Feb. 26—There was an unsettled tone on the local egg market yesterday prices turning easier as the weather continued to became milder. Receipts were still on the light side however and the lower inquiries lent strength in some quarters, but buyers were cautious and bidding lower while shippers were disposed to hold on to stock, as if the weather should prove mild, the increase in receipts is looked for. The butter market was generally steady Choice potatoes met a poultry were unchanged. Receipts for the day were posted at 1,000 bags. Trade was at 703 cases of eggs, 54 boxes of butter and 1,000 bags of potatoes.

On the egg market graded shipments in carlots or l.c.l. lots were generally as follows: Fancy No. 1 for A-medium, and 23c for A-pullets. Some sales were reported in carlots these levels while on the other hand, other sales were made early in above the prices quoted.

The butter market was generally quoted as at 29c for fancy No. 1 for No. 1 in carlots or l.c.l. lots with one house quoting 32c.

CENTRAL ONTARIO MARKETS

HASTINGS—Fairly good litters of pigs are being reported throughout the district. Mortality in young pigs is also reported as being heavy. Grade cows are improving in price and demand, cows bring $60 — $65 each.

PETERBORO—On Saturday's market 1,000 lambs sold from 8c to 9c. Hogs sold from 13 — 22c to 23c. The offering was rather light owing to the side roads being blocked. Veal was in demand at 18 — 22c lb.

PRINCE EDWARD—In spite of bad weather and roads, cattle buyers have been very active. Prices are satisfactory and sales numerous and markets for sale are picked up readily. Some good hogs have been sold and made ice and wood hauling heavy work.

GRAIN

Winnipeg, Feb. 26.—Wheat prices climbed to higher levels in early trading on Winnipeg grain exchange today as buying power was scattered all offerings. Near mid-session the bulge was up 1½ cents to 1 cent of a cent at the high points.

Export business was placed at 300,000 bushels.

Leafs Top Canadian Section Holding Rangers to 2-2 Tie While Hawks Down Maroons

Front Position by One Point And Only Few Games to Play

AMERKS SLUMP

Defeated by Boston And Only Point Ahead of Canadiens

Yes can almost hear the playoff machinery click today as the top of the local League's eight-team field, only nine or ten games from home, charges down the hockey stretch. Everything is in order, with the new York Americans, who threatened to upset everything by vaulting the pinnacle, on the downside.

The young and old men under Red Dutton's leadership threatened for a long time to make New York conscious of the Americans, instead of the Rangers in Gotham's affection. It looked as though the spangled boys would make the playoffs for the second time in ten years, leaving Montreal Canadiens out in the cold. Today it looks as though that's like that.

While Sweeney Schriner has been amassing scoring points as fast there is little doubt he will finish on top of the individual standing, Americans have slumped. They haven't won a game in the last five, and on Tuesday night they were beaten 3-1 by Boston Bruins and, having played one more game than Canadiens, they stand only a single point ahead of the Frenchmen in third place in the Canadian section.

The Detroit brigade fought the good flight last night before bowing to the Bruins, who, by the way, are hardly as Americans needed it. Paul Runge, without a goal in four-team standings, scored twice and Art Jones and bagged two for Boston. Cooney Weiland and Gardner got their back in a 12-second splurge but Roger Jenkins spoiled the whistler.

Leafs Did Yin.

Rangers, meanwhile, refuse to look back. They hold third place in the American section and they haven't been beaten in the last nine games. It required a show of great brilliance on the part of Dave Kerr to keep this record clean last night when Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks managed 3-3. The blueshirts got a 3-2 tie.

As a result Toronto went to the top of the Canadian section standings, two points of Montreal Maroons, and Rangers held a lead of three points over the lagging Americans. Both Hawks and Rangers 10,000 fans watched the Toronto-Ranger struggle.

Andy Blair put Leafs ahead in the first period on a break-away from a New York pass. Attack and in the second period rookie Alex Shibicky tied it up, assisted like a Toronto win when Ott Heller, Ranger defenseman, intercepted the Leaf puck into his own net while attempting to clear. "Chief" Johnson sank a pass from Bill Cook to square it again.

Kerr Stopped

Kerr, turning in a spectacular performance, made 27 saves while George Hainsworth had a comparatively easy time as he faced but 19, handling only 22.

Montreal and Black Hawks finished with fists flying at Montreal, but the Stanley Cup champions had taken a lead in the first period with goals came in the third period. Mush March with Johnny Gottselig and Doc Romnes and Paul Thompson and Thompson getting the second on Marty Burke's pass.

Little more than a minute of play remained when a free-for-all fight broke out. Earl Seibert and Baldy Northcott started punching and everybody on both sides—or nearly everybody—joined in. Four major penalties were awarded Lionel Conacher, who clearly loves this sort of brawl, earned a 10-minute misconduct.

Belleville "Redmen" Downed By Whitby Intermediates in First Game in Third Round

Goals Count And Second Game Will be Played Here Friday

ICE WAS STICKY

Locals Did Not Turn in Customary Good Game

Whitby intermediates, winners of the "B" series last year, have lost eight in their own backyard, but they will not be easily dislodged from that position this winter for following Belleville "Redmen" in the first game of a home and home series in a third round playoff by a score of 5-2. The second game will be played in the Belleville arena on Friday night, goals to count on the round and the "Redmen" will have to show more improvement Friday night if they are to keep their playoffs. The winners are fast, clever, heady, well coached and can take plenty of beating in any group.

Ice Still Cautious

The jinx, that has followed Belleville teams in years past in the Whitby rink was still working. Seven years ago, a Belleville junior team allowed Oshawa to shut them out in that rink after building up a 7-0 lead. The ice is the same in the playoffs were knocked out of competition. On Monday night, the "Redmen" did not play up to their usual standard and from the end of the first period were fighting an up-hill battle and the ice, faulty from the start, did have a larger margin, when the whole rink did not play. Perhaps the ice was sloppy but not heavy and the Whitby team got a terrific push for the entire sixty minutes. The lighting of the rink is very bad and is a weak spot, and the O. H. A. allows the condition to exist. Visiting players have to do their dressing after playing in a well-lighted rink, and then go into the arena with little right at home in the going. This is not an alibi but a fact, that the O. H. A. should look into forthwith. There has been no change in the lighting since Belleville played there some years ago.

If the Belleville team thought that Whitby intermediates were to be a pushover on their way to a championship, they were soon quickly dispelled. The winners play-ed the game of hockey, that is effective on heavy ice, shooting the puck low to the side and following in fast to pick up rebounds or gang-up on the opposition. Added to this the Whitby squad was very proficient once inside the blue line of the opposition and their combination plays clicked.

Locals Off Game

The locals did not play their usual game, failing to show near the improvement that has been this season's schedule. There was little evidence of backchecking on members of the opposition, when in a scor-ing position and the plays were generally blocked before they were nicely started. Whitby employed the defensive system of forechecking used by the Montreal Maroons and it was effective against the local style of going. Don Morton has played better games this year in goal, but Wednesday night Morton's work was used from the second period did not seem to have the right eye-sight against the fast moving forwards. Both lines were set on a better advantage this winter. The first line of Barriage, Carl and "Pete" Morgan proved to be a tough speed but their plays were not clicking. The second line of St. Louis, Harry Morgan and Jimmy McGuire worked hard, Harry Morgan turning in his best game of the season. He skated fast, backchecked all through the game and had many a rush on "Pey" Hurst. McGuire was fast and missed two swell opportunities to put his team in the running, while St. Louis was not up to his usual standard failing many times to connect with the puzzle-zillion. His shooting, however, was most deadly and Hurst was lucky to hide only three shots get through.

Randale's Smart Player

In Art Randale, the Whitby squad has one of the best right wingers in these parts. He is steady under fire, a hard man to stop and is always on top of the play. Randale was exceptionally good in goal, he being an old ball player and he made good use of his hands and shoulders. He is inclined to be pulled out of his cage, when the play is close but otherwise, he played a smart game. Brown, Conlin and Martney made up a fairly fast defensive group. They are cool under fire and when on the attack, inclined to open up. Randale and J. Stightholme com-bined for the first goal, with the latter twins and E. Stightholme on the second string but there is little to choose between the two. They can snipe from any angle, pass the puck all the time and work in fast before letting their shots go. The lines could not be judged on ganging plays.

Game Clearly Played.

Despite the soft ice, the game was clearly played, only five penalties being handed out, Whitby drawing three of these. They were for mis-on-ice offence. "Army" Armstrong kept his game clean and handled a hard game in an impartial way. He prob-ably was a fault when he did not call a halt to the play when he was struck by the rubber but did no damage was done, the incident did not have any effect on the final out-come. As the game neared of the contest, the speed was turned on, both teams trying to take advantage of ice conditions before they got worse. The rubber was carried from end to end with rapidity, while 600 howling fans continually exhorted their favorites to put on more steam. Belleville had more chances to score in the first period with their fast forwards, although Whitby trooped off the ice with a goal lead.

Quite on several occasions the locals passouts from behind the net and when they failed to get the puck in time, the puck either jumped off his stick or the Whitby player was not able to control it in time. On another occasion the player was right through to have Hurst take out his passing drive.

Whitby Scores First.

After nearly eighteen minutes of play, Conlin scored from close on to a scramble and the locals looked to be a soft one, although the vision of Morton was not good on the shots for mass of legs and arms in front of him. Belleville had an equal share of the play and probably had a slight edge. St. Louis was given a penalty for an illegal check and his own goal and just before the period end-ed, Vipond and Hurst got by Morton and both were given a rest. The second frame opened at a fast pace and Whitby maintained the pressure all through this canto. Barriage nearly scored in a scramble and McGuire was through. Vipond was given the gate and the locals were put on the "gang play" but Whitby covered well and held them out. Dur-ing this period the winners were in action when the Vipond twins put on their act and Cecil Wright was flashed. McGuire tried to golf a rolling puck into the net but Randale teamed up with Heard to put the winners three in front but Belleville got back in the running when St. Louis on a pass from Harry Morgan scored. Randale, however, got that one back in thirty-five seconds when he worked his way in close, tricked Morton out of position and easily scored.

Nine Man Chance.

Belleville applied the pressure in the last canto and when Brown was sent off for high sticking, Belleville did everything but score. J. Stightholme added to the Whitby total when he accepted Randale's pass and Belleville closed the scoring for the night when Carl Morgan dump-ed one into the twine with "Pete" Morgan and Barriage assisting. "Pete" Morgan had a wonderful chance to reduce the lead just be-fore the game concluded. Barriage handed him a pass inside the blue line and with no one to beat but his goalie laid the rubber right into his pads. Red Morgan notched the counter the possibility of winning the round on Friday would have been certainly brighter. The re-cals are a better team than they showed in Whitby and three goals, although a whole lot, can be over-come. Belleville scores the first shot on Friday night, it will be a battle worth going miles to see. Both teams are smart and the locals de-serve the patronage of a large out-pouring of the fans this important tussle. Let's hope the ice is fast.

The line-ups:

Belleville—Goal, Morton; defence, McBrien and Ingram; centre, Bar-riage; wings, "Pete" Morgan and Carl Morgan. Alternates, Harry Morgan, St. Louis, J. Morgan and McDonald.

FALCONS IMPROVE THEIR POSITION

Remain in Second Place by Turning Back Windsor Threat

Cleveland Falcons who have fal-ered so badly in recent weeks their home town fans boo them, appeared today to have recovered the scoring punch they hope will take them to the International Hockey League championships.

Falcons, their second-place berth in the western section none too se-cure against Windsor's pushing Bulldogs, turned back Windsor 4-3 after trailing at a time at least, with a 5-2 victory last night. In the only other game, Rochester Cardinals de-feated Syracuse Olympics.

The victory over Bulldogs left Cleveland nine points behind the Windsor outfit. Syracuse Olympics, however, have played two games less than Falcons and Bulldogs, four less to Windsor in a return game Saturday and another victory would put the latter second place at the second slot.

Windsor's weakened forces could not cope with the all-round Cleve-land offensive. Falcons bagged a pair of goals in the first period but Bulldogs built their lead to 4-0 before Clar-ence Dollinger scored "Andrew's" first at 8:22 of the second period. Nick Metz added another before Freddy Robertson counted Cleve-land's fifth.

The locals had a double goal-getter in the game. Besides Robertson, Bud Vipond and Tommy Anderson, Vip-pond and Bill Cunningham got single scores for Cleveland.

Rochester continued their fine late-season work against Buffalo, they took advantage of a penalty to "Tiny" Teasdale. Buffalo defence-man, to score twice in succession on a three-way play by Milt Halliday, Whitey Farrant and Art Bartholomew. Halliday did the final firing.

Bisons fought from behind after Tiny's penalty to score in the last second period on Bud Jarvis' goal. Bert Connolly counted the first goal two minutes later.

STIRLING LEADS CENTRAL LEAGUE

Defeat Aajmaas to Take First Place From Trenton

STIRLING—Stirling took a firm grip on the leadership in the Central Hastings League when they defeated the Belleville Aajmaas Club by a score of 4-2 on soft ice in a game that was surprisingly fast. Having second position with a total of 17 points, Stirling gave Trenton four points for a total of 21 with Tweed in second place with 18 points. Belleville can be taken out of first place is a question but they are getting back into the play and should make it interesting before the closing schedule is finished. The showing of the Stirling team for the season has been exception-ally fine. Though in the first of the year they were not considered a threat for the championship by the other teams. They are now looked upon as the team to win. Scoille, Robinson, Ingram, and Morton; continue largely to the over-increasing strength of this team which is fast reviving hockey interest in Stirling.

The Game

With the opening of the first pe-riod Stirling started at top speed and kept the visitors in play Bob-inson scored on a hard shot to the right corner from the blue line. Belleville began to open up and Scoille and Robinson broke away to make it two when Robinson scored a slow pass from Scoille. Ackers then got in the scoring on the game when he was chased for a trip and was followed smartly by Ingram for a clear shot at the net. Belleville bit ragged and Townsend was sent in for defensive duty. Stirling paid for Stirling was a stroke of bad luck for the Belleville team when a puck glanced off one of their own player's skate into the net. The period ended with Stirling on top of a 3-1 score. Belleville tried hard at the very start of the third to make it 4-1. Belleville pressed hard and Stirling were unable to pass from their Rigby. Scoille scored the final goal of the game on a pretty rush that was the most brilliant play of the game. Final score 5-2 for Stirling.

Stirling—Goal, Morton; defence, Ingram and Ackers; centre, Robin-son; wings, Scoille and Wilson. Al-ternates, G. Fraser, F. Fraser and Pollock.

Referee—Harry Conley, Stirling.

The local Redmen are on the well known spot now, especially after losing to 2 reverse at the hands of the 1935 intermediate O.H.A. champions, Whitby, last night. The locals face a mountainous task on Friday night of trying to pull down that three goal advantage. Of course Belleville teams in the past have overcome greater obstacles than a mere three goals, so let's hope for the best on Friday night. We remember just 20 years ago when in the O.H.A. play-downs Belleville journeyed to Midland and came home on the short end of a 6-1 score. With their backs to the wall the locals returned home and fought all the way in the return game to not only overcome that six goal advantage, but go on and give the Midland team a sad-dled-sticking, something like 13 to 1. Therefore day hockey is much differ-ent than in those days perhaps but there is a lot of confidence ex-tra to pull down, but the future looks bright for hockey now that with the players. It's a pure case of get in and win or get out.

In fairness to the locals we might make mention of the fact that the Whitby rink is one of the poorest for lighting we have ever seen. A 100 watt lights being strung hither and yon about the rink. Then the ice wet and soft, naturally slowing up the Redmen, and Whitby being fast on the ice. Of course the Whitby squad is a real team and a credit to any community, but there is the fact that Cabana interests were wagering 2 to 1 on Belleville last night and speaks for itself. Doubtlessly the local arena will see its largest hockey crowd of the season next Friday night for the return game, it is understood that the Whitby club is running a special train to Belleville, which will add considera-ble color to the picture. In re-viewing the game this morning Manager Cabana stated: "Whitby has a good team, but we did not get a single break in the game, not even the entire 60 minutes. The ice was not to our liking and if the weather continues to be colder and we get out on the ice we have a chance right in the thick of the battle on Friday night. Don't think for a moment we are quitters because we've only started. The Whitby boys conduct themselves right and get a bad game out of their systems, added Eddie.

After jockeying around for dates for the past week, Belleville Inter-mediate Hockey League teams finally agreed to play the second round playoffs, which will mean scholastic final at the Arena this evening. First the team now holds a two game advantage, but this afternoon, later changing it to this afternoon, but then with a feeling that the first game should be played at night, it was finally agreed to play it this evening. Although the Collegiates have a good lead this evening's final tilt, Coach Bishop's Albert College pucksters are far from beaten and confident. LaSalle Earns Place In League Playoffs

OTTAWA, Feb. 26 (CP)—LaSalle routed Rideaus 9-2 in an Ottawa Senior City Hockey League game last night and thereby captured a semi-final playoff berth. It was a one-sided affair, LaSalle being able to cope with the smooth com-bination of the Cavaliers around them.

The other semi-final playoff game may be decided tonight, when Royal Canadian Air Force clashed with Rideaus, and should the for-mer win, Rideaus, who at present occupy fourth position in the stand-ings, will be automatically out of the picture. In the event of a loss however, Emeralds, still having a scheduled game to play, still retain a mathematical chance.

In the meantime, it is planned the first semi-final play-off game played last Saturday between LaSalle and Rideaus, the winning the latter remains in the city-wide competition when the regular season is completed.

Dale Plays The Game

—BY—

Ann Forester

CHAPTER 28

REAPING THE WHIRLWIND

The hoarse clamor of automobile horns jolted Dale back to herself. Her stalled car had stopped the flood of traffic. A frantic traffic officer waved her on. She started the engine, began to move through the closely packed street.

But Dale drove unconsciously. Her real self had withdrawn into a small still chamber of suffering. Life had shrunk back in her heart as a tree withdraws its sap from the bitter chill of winter. A winter cold was creeping over Dale. Turning her face cold, Glazing her eyes, stunning her.

Mimi...sitting there confidently beside Brant.... The car which contained that had long since swallowed up in the crowd but Dale could still see them in her mind.

A horn sounded. A large car slid around her and the driver looked at her resentfully. Abruptly Dale turned the wheel and drove down a less busy street. Her arms felt strangely weak. The wheel was heavy.

Mimi and Brant.... A queer sense of desolation crept over her. To sit and see Mimi drive away with Brant like that. A realm of fatality crept over her. Was that the way it was to be in the end? Mimi driving away with Brant. And would Dale have to watch them go, impassively? Be right to object to it?

There was no room in Dale's thoughts for anger—a sense of savage loneliness. Just that aching dreariness. She was standing on a windswept waste unutterably alone.

Like a warm tide came reason to dilute Dale's bitterness. She was being too dramatic about a trivial thing. Mimi had happened to come by the office as Brant was about to come home. Well, suppose she had been up there in Brant's private office—Dale answered the jealousy that stirred in her heart. Suppose she had been there, like a small sweetly bird in its brown severity flouting the air with her seductive perfume..... Don't be silly! Mimi had just driven home with Brant, Dale severely crushed back the resentment welling within her. She wasn't going to be a fool and make a fuss about that! Of course she wasn't....

As quickly as possible Dale drove to the house and went directly to her own room. Obeying a sudden impulse she dressed with especial care, putting on a sleeveless ivory velvet. It was too elaborate for a dinner which would be attended only by the family and some of Nance's college friends, but Brant had said once that he liked that dress, and somehow tonight she must outshine Mimi. She must meet the warm approval in Brant's eyes when they rested on her.

She would not say a word about having seen them in the car, Dale decided as she went down stairs. She would try to forget the jealous rage which had seized her. Never let Brant know.....

But Brant was not at the dinner table. Nor was Mimi. Brant had telephoned while Dale was out, Mrs. Kendall explained with chill politeness. He and he had to work this evening. And Mimi? Oh, Mimi was having dinner downtown with Cecile and some other friends. She, too, had phoned.

An endless dinner. Dale nervously crumbled bread with a hand gone cold as death. She smiled with stiff lips whenever anyone spoke to her. Her eyes seemed to say nothing and she had difficulty in finding an answer to the simplest question.

"Beautiful, but dumb!" said one of the disappointed college boys to Nance later.

But when the pressure of other eyes was removed—when she sat alone in her room, the volcano in Dale's breast burst. The hot lava of jealousy scalding her heart..... A bitter tears pressed against closed eyelids. Brant had phoned that he had to work this evening.... the old shameful lie. The lie they joked about in comic sections. On the vaudeville stage. The old threadbare joke. But no joke to the one who sat like this with one's heart slashed.....

Jealous! Yes,—frantically— Dale was jealous! Why not? Who would n't be? Brant—her own husband and that nasty little black cat..... Oh, that was cheap! That was shameful! Well, let it be cheap! She hated Mimi! A relief to admit it to herself. She hated her!

Flinging herself on the bed, Dale frantically pressed her face hard against the lace covered pillow. She pounded it with her fists, wishing it was Mimi's face with its faint complacent smile.

The storm left Dale wretched and exhausted. For leaden moments she lay. Not...face smothered in the pillow. Her thoughts were flashes of torturing fire. A searing thought came to her. Spread.....

Dale swung to her feet. She found herself before the glass powdering her wet face with hands that shook.

There was the pallor of the tears imprinted on her cheek. Never mind —it would fade. She pulled her coat on over the evening dress. She put on her hat. Stealthily, as a thief, in the night, she went down the stairs.

Mrs. Kendall was telephoning in the library. Dale could see her back as she slipped by the half open door. From the living room came the sound of the radio. Nance and her friends were dancing. The hall was vacant. A moment and Dale had slipped out unseen. She was running down the steps.

Dale hailed the first empty taxi she saw and named a downtown corner. She rode, huddled in a corner, sober eyes fastened on the streets slipping by. Her face was burning. The hands clenched in her lap were hot. Deep within her pounding heart seemed to say: "Oh, you're going to be sorry for this..... you'll be sorry!"

Dale dismissed the cab and knew a moment of frightened sanity as it rolled away. Strange and deserted this section of town at night. Dark figures loitering on corners. She felt them turn to look after her. Saw the white patches of their faces. Fear pressed around the hot pain of her mind.

Brant's office building. The lighted lobby was empty as Dale went in. The one elevator man on duty had just gone up with a passenger. Dale darted up the stairs her self, pounding.

Like a queer dream to be stealing through the empty echoing halls. The place seemed deserted. The janitors had finished their work. Here and there a lighted door showed that someone worked late. One door where Brant had his office. A light.....a light showing behind the frosted glass of his private office door.

Kilembo handed Evert the arrow. "It is the same."

"It is a warning to turn back." "An arrow sticking in the dirt cannot stop a column of armed men," said Evert. "You are a coward, Kilembo." "Your plans will fail," said Kilembo.

Shortly after noon the expedition halted for noonday rest. They had been passing through a stormy land, and there was much laughter as the men squatted together while they devoured the cold food that constituted their mid-day meal.

Suddenly, from somewhere far above a voice floated down to them. Weird and uncanny, it spoke to them in a Bantu dialect that most of them could understand. "Turn back, children of Mulenga," it cried. "Turn the white men before it is too late. Turn back!"

At that Dale's heart swelled as though it would choke her. Terrible, overpowering rage seized her, rage the more devastating because it was based on despair.

Dale flew at the door. It was locked. That aped the last traces of caution. She turned the knob wildly. She cried in a smothered voice, "Open this door! Open it—or I'll smash the glass!"

The door opened, so suddenly that the girl was nearly thrown. Still clinging to the knob Dale found herself looking up at Brant in his eyes....wide....startled.... Her wrist was grasped by him. A stab of relief—and shame—went through her. The room beyond was empty.

CHAPTER 29.

THE BITTER NIGHT

The sustaining anger faded, leaving Dale leaning against the door frame oddly weak, looking up into Brant's alarmed face.

Brant's eyes were frightened. "Dale, what is it?" Then, as she did not answer, sharper: "What's happened?"

"Nothing." Dale's voice came in a queer croak. A sick sense of shame was beginning to gnaw at her heart.

"Nothing? Brant drew his wife in and closed the door. His eyes went over her while face. Dale's coat had fallen open, showing her evening dress.

"Dale, what's the matter? Answer me!" Brant accompanied the command with a little shake.

Dales scattered wits started to work. She drew a deep breath. Swallowed. The funny little croak once more. "I came down here to—to see—" Her hands waved in a helpless little gesture. "Mimi...."

"Mimi?" Brant repeated blankly. Then, in angry bewilderment—"If you'll be good enough to explain—"

The chill politeness Dale dreaded! She half put up an arm as though to ward it off.

"You.... you didn't come home for dinner. And Mimi....Mimi gone too.....

Brant's whole face seemed to tighten. "So you naturally concluded we were lying and were down here together. And you came tearing down here to confront us like the second act in a cheap melodrama! Dale this is shameful!"

"Oh, that we had started an illicit affair, of course! That we were deceiving you," Brant said curtly.

"Well, who wouldn't think that, I'd like to know! Dale said boldly. "What woman wouldn't have the same thing? A thought struck her. "What right did she have to come down here anyway?....."

Brant's eyes narrowed. "Oh, Espionage, eh?"

"No!" The frown eyes flashed! as though he were only holding himself together by sheer will power. "The rights of an old friend —and a client, if you want to know! It so happens that I am investing a good deal of money for Mimi and naturally she intends to keep posted on it."

A sense of angry despair swept over Dale. Clever Mimi! Wily Mimi! What did money mean to Mimi with her fortune, & clever brain to buy handsome Brant's graces. To provide a legitimate excuse for frequent confidential interviews.

Kilembo plucked the arrow from the earth and examined it. He would have been glad to have kept his discovery to himself, but the warrior at his side had seen, too. "It is the same," he said. "It is another of the arrows left behind at the base camp."

Shortly after noon the expedition halted for noonday rest. They had been passing through a stormy land, and there was much laughter as the men squatted together while they devoured the cold food that constituted their mid-day meal.

Suddenly, from somewhere far above a voice floated down to them. Weird and uncanny, it spoke to them in a Bantu dialect that most of them could understand. "Turn back, children of Mulenga," it cried. "Turn the white men before it is too late. Turn back!"

Broken Down Car Takes All Spare Money Available

Sherwood, Man., to Nora, Sask., in search of a home, Harold is a cripple.

The boy car refused to stick together, King, his wife, his two children and his mother-in-law face deportation. The family had been being sent back to Sherwood.

Italy Not Ready to Sign Naval Pact With Britain

London, Feb. 27 (AP)—Italy, understood on Thursday at the conclusion of League of Nations sanctions against her, advised the British government today that she was not ready to sign any new naval treaty with Great Britain, France and the United States.

Following a meeting between British and Italian delegates, the British government issued a statement which read:

"Owing to technical difficulties which are the result of the size of battleships and the age between battleships and cruisers, as well as because of difficulties of procedure, the Italian delegation intimated that they were not ready to sign a treaty at the present moment.

A British spokesman explained that did not mean Italy's withdrawal from the conference or the end of the meeting.

It was understood the Italians told the British they were not ready to proceed until the question of sanctions was settled and it was made clear that the League powers were going to do next week at Geneva.

Following the Anglo-Italian conference, another conference was held between the British and the French (to discuss the position in the Italian delegation intimated

Trenton, N.J., Feb. 27 (AP)— Governor Hoffman said today Joseph Perone, an identification witness against Bruno Richard Hauptmann, had told State Police he saw Dr. John F. Condon talking to a man resembling the one who hired the boat to Dr. Condon's Bronx residence.

Perone delivered the note to Condon the night of March 12, 1932, A man was killed in the Bronx, June 2; to him. It contained instructions to Condon how to make contact with the kidnapper.

At Hauptmann's trial Perone said the man who gave him the note was Hauptmann.

The statement, cited the Governor, was signed by Detective Cando Paterson and Sergeant A. Zapolsky, of the State Police.

Governor Hoff, "stated that a few days after he attended the Bronx County Grand Jury he had taken a passenger to City Island and there had observed Dr. Condon talking to a man whom he thought was the man that gave him the note.'

The Governor made his announcement after he had met with Attorney-General David T. Wilentz, Hauptmann's prosecutor, and was asked if Wilentz planned to take action on the evidence against Hauptmann.

The Governor flatly questioned Perone's identification of Hauptmann.

On February 17, 1934, seven months after Hauptmann was arrested the Governor said, Perone was approached by a man at Jerome Ave. and Burnside Parkway, the Bronx. The stranger, who spoke with a German accent, handed the second, asked the direction to 36 East Gun Hill Road.

TREMBLAY GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

Sentence Deferred by Justice Jeffrey Until Next Week

Cornwall, Ont., Feb. 27 (CP)— Trial of Arthur Tremblay, charged with the murder of Rene Tessier, 24 in Hawkesbury, Ont., last May 1, concluded at an unexpected climax at 2 o'clock this morning. Crown Counsel here today. A plea of guilty of manslaughter entered by defence counsel after the opening of court, was accepted by Justice Hector Jeffrey, and sentence deferred until the last day of the assizes.

Lionel Chevrier, counsel for Tremblay, told the court after reviewing the evidence and conferring with the prisoner, he had decided to enter a plea of guilty to manslaughter. C. L. Snyder, Toronto, Crown Prosecutor, said he could not object to such a plea as he had made up his mind to ask the jury to return a verdict of manslaughter.

Tremblay Interdicted.

Justice Jeffrey said he had gone over the evidence and as the evidence stood, manslaughter was highly intoxicated, he thought there was some doubt as to whether the accused, in such a condition, could form the intent to kill, which would be necessary if a verdict of wilful murder were to be found. In the circumstances he accepted the plea of guilty of manslaughter and asked the jury to formally record its verdict. The jury agreed and Justice Jeffrey deferred sentence until next week.

Tremblay killed Rene Tessier with a hammer and an axe in a boarding house at Grenville on March 31st last. Tessier's battered body was found under the ice along side Tremblay's car. Tremblay was arrested in a nearby barn where he was hiding. At the time of Tremblay's arrest, his clothing was spattered with blood and pieces of the clothing revealed the stains were caused by human blood, Dr. R. E. Fraser, Provincial Medical Legal expert, testified.

Stains On Tools.

The hammer and axe were exhibited in court and the medico-legal expert swore the stains on the tools were human blood. Chemical analysis of Tessier's blood indicate the man must have been stupidly drunk at the time of his death, Dr. Fraskish said.

Court adjourned to resume next Monday when Mr. Viney Belle Vicar and Crown Counsel are to be retried on charges of murdering out of the death of Louis Volvey, the woman's husband, April 21 last.

Sopwith's New Yacht Endeavor II Taking Shape Amid Great Secrecy

Gosport, England, Feb. 27—(AP) —Built on the historic quay where the Pilgrim Fathers embarked to join the Mayflower, T. O. M. Sopwith's new yacht Endeavour II taking shape today.

Guards were posted at every entrance to the yard and the hull of the challenger, which will cross the Atlantic to compete for the America's Cup next year, was due to launch. Word leaked out, however that the keel would be laid today and that in about 10 tons heavier than the keel of the Endeavour I, which was laid down to defeat against Harold K. Vanderbilt's Rainbow in 1934.

The new challenger, it was revealed, will be built to the full "J" class limit, under which the present holder, America's Cup deed of gift, and it will be all steel with a high tensile steel frame, rather and lighter design.

It may be recalled, in this connection, that it was the steel mast which Vanderbilt's Rainbow broke "broke" Sir Thomas Lipton's heart in 1930 when the Irish baronet lost four straight races with his Shamrock V.

Sir Thomas spent millions of dollars, travelled thousands of miles back and forth across the Atlantic, and built five seven-headed challengers in his 21-year quest for the tattered "auld mug", as he called it.

The new Endeavour will be 87 feet on the waterline, compared with 76 feet for Endeavour I, and will be 30 tons heavier than the old challenger.

Allegedly Toronto Youth Stole Watch From Store

A lad giving his name as Bruno Zanini also alleging that he was 16 years of age and resided at 85 William Ave., Toronto was arrested by Detective Sergeant Harry Thompson of the Provincial Police late yesterday afternoon on suspicion of theft. Later the youth admitted to local authorities, that he had stolen a ladies' wrist-watch from the Canadian Department Store, here last, also that he had taken a pair of trousers, a coat and mirror from another department store here recently.

The youth was lodged in the cells at the police station, while the Toronto police authorities were contacted and information on the detention. The lad's parents were informed of his trouble and were instructed to come to Belleville and take charge of their wayward son today.

Police first received information regarding the youth, when he attempted to sell a gent's wrist watch for one dollar to a citizen on Front St. later the youth was questioned by Sergeant Thompson, on the Market Square and when he failed to give a satisfactory account himself was subsequently taken to the police station, where he later admitted his shop-lifting activities. Mr. Wm. Hall of the C.D.S. store, later identified the watch as his employers' property, while the mirror, a grey woollen comb and mirror is being sought by the authorities. FLOODS FEARED IN SOME PARTS

Forecast of "Sharp Drop" in Temperature Would Forestall Same

Floods were feared in low-lying Ontario areas today as thaw swelled streams and rivers, and rain threatened an early break-up of the ice.

At Collingwood, the floods already had begun. Sixty workmen cleared up a jam in a sluice-way and after a street had been flooded and a schoolyard turned into a lake almost a foot deep. Children had to be kept home from school.

Cellars near the stream were flooded also and outside the town the Owen Sound-Toronto main railway tracks for a time. Danger was not yet over, however, because the water had gone down considerably. Grand River near Brantford was expected to reach flood stage this week. The water was well above normal height and damage to adjacent property was feared once the stream went on its way.

Lambton County's lowlands were threatened also as the Auxauble River filled slowly with melting snow and ice. Port Frank, annually subjected to floods, was hoping for colder weather to halt the rapid flow or at least slow it down.

The forecasts were for a "sharp drop" in temperature, and river men watched the Weather Bureau would come through this time.

Appointed Distributor For English Company

Mr. Walter C. Holt, former Belleville resident, calls this week on fruit growers throughout Ontario in the interest of the firm he recently announced today that he had been appointed Canadian distributor for the Universal Power Sprayer Company of Plymouth, Michigan. Mr. Holt has already established himself in the quarters furnished by the fruit machinery Company of this city.

For this year's sprayers are being assembled in Plymouth, but next year, following their introduction on the Canadian market, arrangements will be made to have the sprayers built here. Many parts of the machines, including iron wheels, rubber tires and other accessories will be of Canadian manufacture.

Sidewalks Flooded By Melting Snow

While citizens generally are welcoming the bright sunshine and warmer weather of the past few days, the sudden and continued thaw has resulted in some worry on the part of officials of the local public works department. With snow banks still a foot or so above the sidewalks in the majority of the streets flooding of the walks has resulted with consequent complaints on the part of householders.

"We are swamped with calls," it was stated by City Engineer Leslie Mott, this morning. "Most of them are complaints about flooded sidewalks. We have all the men available working on this trouble, but the calls are still ahead of us. The same condition existed in Belleville in every city," added the city engineer.

Today a gang of thirty men was employed on Dundas Street while many gangs were shipping gutters elsewhere throughout the city.

GIVES ADDRESS ON UTAH

STIRLING—The regular weekly meeting was held in the chairs per-lours on Monday evening with the devotional period and opening exercises under the direction of the President, Miss Mary Hollin. The meeting was opened with the usual song service. The program was under the supervision of the Citizenship Dept. led by Miss Dorothy Rankin who presided as chairman. In keeping with the program arranged all joined in the singing of "O Canada." The speaker of the evening was Mrs. S. G. Lawlor, who emphasized the need of extensive study for the purpose of developing citizenship. One of the greatest agencies through which this study can be brought about is travel, and remembering the sights we see. All Canadians are fond of touring and returning from trips with some important impression upon the mind is constructive to good Citizenship.

Mrs. Lawlor then gave a graphic description of a trip taken by herself and Mr. Lawlor through the State of Utah and Salt Lake City. One of the most unusual cities on the continent, possessing many wonders. She described the Salt Lake desert stretching for miles over which railways and railroads have been built and the great Salt which is famous throughout the world. A lake with no outlet and which through age has become smaller through the process of evaporation. The buoyancy of the salt water within this lake makes swimming almost impossible.

The irrigation system which was put in execution by the Mormons in the early days of the occupation of that area has been accepted as a great feat of engineering, and many other countries have adopted the same plan. There is an irrigation system of the same type being used at the present time in British Columbia. Outstanding for its attistic beauty is the Capital Building which houses many valuable relics of the city and State which date back to 1847 and would occupy the attention of the visitor for at least a day. There was also the famous Mormon Temple, a building which required forty years to built and it is said that there are no nails of any description within it. No one but a recognized Mormon ever gains admittance to this sacred building. The Tabernacle building from which the famous choir of the Mormon choir is heard is also a remarkable building with a seating capacity of ten thousand people and possessing one of the finest and largest pipe organs in the world. These interesting features along with several other items of great interest were described in a most complete manner. The speaker is her excellent address. Mrs. Lawlor showed slides from her interesting observations while on tour in that country displayed an intimate knowledge of its past history acquired through study of the historic background. Mrs. Lawlor received the sincere gratitude of the organization to

Mrs. Lawlor for her splendid and instructive address. Miss Beatrice Conley then offered a soprano solo "Wings" by Edward Loomis, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. E. W. Rowland.

At this time, through a round about fashion, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Detlor, popular newly married couple, were called to the platform and after a brief address by Rev. F. W. Rowland, Misses Mary Hulin and Helen Mallory presented them with a lovely floor lamp and floor table, on behalf of the Society, and a pretty fern on behalf of Sunday School. Mr. and Mrs. Detlor each made a fitting response and accepting the fine gifts and expressed their appreciation. Miss Dorothy Rankin then directed an interesting "Tree Contest" and also a series of group games. The meeting was then brought to a close with the Mizpah Benediction.

Are you going to punish Harold or aren't you, that's the vital question in a nutshell? she said.

Well holey smokes, ma, O winkle-poo, suppose some one told you that you had had a yellow streek and would run a mile if a bulette fired to bite you 1 mile and pop said, There, you see, there's more to this than appears on the surface.

And good nite, pop, and then suppose he aorosed you of not dasting to take a fite? he suppose he dared you to flite and double dared you and triple dared you and quintuple dared you and said if you didn't it proved you was a measly cod wonsh, I said to pop said, When honor enters, pacifism, sticky or wrongly flies out the window, I'd that what's his name boy say all that to you? he said.

SWALLOW-TAIL RETURNS

The white tie and the swallow-tail dress suit have returned to the German Reich on authority of Dr. Paul Goebbels, Propaganda Minister. To a gathering of Nazis he said that Germans must have a healthy style for their social life. He declared that the revolutionary or non-revolutionary is not determined by the laborer's overalls or by the uniform or the swallow-tail coat, one wears but by the heart that beats beneath the shirt. This statement is a direct answer to the uniform idea which the Labor Front has been promoting to dress all Germans in the social uniform of blue shirt and cap of the merchant marine sailor on leave.

In early days the swallowtail was denounced along with champagne, and rouge and smoking by women as something for corrupt "Marxist politicians" only.

With the statement of Dr. Goebbels it is no longer necessary for the "rough wariors" of the party to demonstrate their revolutionary fervor by wearing oiled field boots at a ball.

Slowly the crude ideas of the radicals are being dropped as men see the folly of such unnecessary regulations of dress and so forth.

CHANGING COLOR

Four-legged reptiles of the genus "anolis", particularly the chameleon, assume the color of the surface on which they happen to be without any actual change in themselves, in spite of the legend of the chameleon.

That other animals can actually change their colors voluntarily was recently shown at the London zoo, where Dr. Arnold Ruibhal, professor of Social Biology at the University of London, arranged in different colored environments chameleons, frogs, various kinds of fishes, animals of different sorts.

The most striking example is the South African smooth-clawed frog, which under average conditions is dark brown mottled with black. Specimens in a white cage are very pale yallowish-brown; and those in comparative dark are nearly black. In these frogs and other aquatic animals the color change is brought about by variations in light and temperature, but in land animals humidity is also an important factor. Dr. Hogben says, generally speaking, bright light, warmth, and dryness produce pallor or vivid colors, and darkness, cold, and damp cause the animals to become somber.

The color change is not due to any chemical alteration, but to a re-arrangement of the position of granules of pigment which are present in certain branching cells of the skin. Under conditions that produce pallor the dark granules may be seen under the microscope to be segregated in the centers of the cells; under the opposite conditions they spread throughout the cell branches so as to obscure the colors beneath.

The change takes place so rapidly that the animals had only to be transferred to their new surroundings a few hours before the exhibition opened. Flatfish matches themselves equally well to sandy and bottom with nearly marble chippings and black sand, English frogs became bright yellow or dull brown, and tree frogs displayed their appropriate shades.

The chameleon, in spite of the common belief that they always tone with the colors of the objects on which they are visibly colored when sleepy they are usually dark, but when chameleons is always sickly pale.

MODEL DIETS

A nutrition committee under League of Nations auspices has made a study of eating habits in all parts of the world. It finds that in almost every country the diet of the average man and woman is deficient in essential factors. In this respect, alas! it is like many other findings by the League of Nations. There are so many other things in which the nations of the world are deficient in morals, their international morals, their self-control in domestic controversy, their respect for basic human values in times of stress.

Recognition of this fact is perhaps the reason why the League of Nations nutrition committee recommends only four model diets. They are for pregnant mothers, for children of 4 and 2 years, for children of 3, and for children of 4 and 5. Soon after that, as we know only too well, they take the little ones in many countries and put them into gas masks and teach them bayonet and hand grenade drill.— New York Times.

KATHLEEN NORRIS IS A NAME TO CONJURE WITH IN THE WRITING WORLD. A story by Kathleen Norris is always good, so lovers of the novel with a stirring love interest tell us. Kathleen Norris knows life, having lived and experienced most of the joys and sorrows of this curious world of ours. Consequently she is able to create characters which may very well have counterparts in every-day life, not just shirts stuffed with straw or scarecrows fulfilling their obvious destiny of scaring crows, and nothing more. Where's the woman who will not grab a new story by Kathleen Norris out of a hundred new books in preference—and the men too, have a liking for Kathleen—hence her books are "best sellers"! All of which is a lead up to the expression of congratulations to the readers of this Great Family Journal in that the management has provided for their entertainment and edification another story by Kathleen Norris in "Malden Voyage" which began in last Saturday's edition and will continue with a generous installment each Saturday. "Malden Voyage" is the story of a gal who broke into the newspaper business in San Francisco, became a writer of society news and hence found herself in constant contact with the big skirts of the money world. Her adventures are exciting and amusing, and of course there is a rich love interest. "Tony Taft" is the name of the principal character and her love affair develops into the "eternal triangle", but without besmirching any of the characters with the customary mud of such situations. Tony is a fine character, and she steers her craft through the troubled waters with skill and daring as well as a reward for the rights of others which is very admirable. Sidelight readers of both sexes will find "Malden Voyage" well worth reading.

A GOLD HOARD OF 10,000 20-DOLLAR GOLD PIECES was seized in a safedeposit box in a New York City bank. Hoarding of gold had been declared illegal by the government and all gold coin and gold certificates called in, consequently this hoard was in the outlaw class. The money belongs to a Polish capitalist spending the winter in Switzerland, and he has retained a firm of New York lawyers to contest the United States government's right to seize his money. The seizure of this cache will no doubt throw a spear of fear into the hearts of other wise, or otherwise, financiers who have been hiding their gold in order to make a fortune on the increased value created by the placing of the value of gold at a set figure of $35 per ounce. The cache in question with a face value of $200,000 is now worth $388,00, a sizable profit if the hoarder were in a position to profit by it. Now, by the time he pays his lawyers and penalties which the government may impose he is sure to write off a substantial loss.

COCKTAIL PARTIES RESULT IN HASTY MARRIAGES in the land of Uncle Sam where anything might happen. Consequently a bill is being introduced in the New York State Legislature to prevent "cocktail" marriages. If the bill becomes law no marriage can occur before three full days notice, hence, many a couple who thought they were "stuck" on each other, says Walter Winchell, and woke up to find they were only "plastered", will be saved the awakening the morning after the night before. The trouble is that most of the "cocktail" marriages for New Yorkers take place in Connecticut.

The Philharmonic concert was an unqualified success. The audience was probably the largest ever at a concert in Moira. Haydn's sublime oratorio "The Creation" with its wealth of grandeur and harmony was rendered in very excellent manner by some eighty or ninety voices under the direction of Prof. Rust. Moira River Conditions

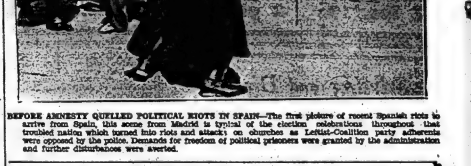
Belleville, Feb. 26, 1936

The Editor
Ontario Intelligencer,
City.

Dear Sir—

Conditions are right for a bad flood on the Moira river at present.

The railroads have a certain responsibility as I believe they have paid flood damage in the past by reason of the piles piling up the ice.



Could not the City Engineer and the Railroad engineers get together and be prepared to do some blasting as quick as noted?

No doubt co-operation could be secured from the air port to drop charges of dynamite from the air on ice jams where it would be dangerous to send men. Thanking you for your valued space,

Yours truly,
E. D. Finkle.

GORDON SINCLAIR ADDRESSES TWEED COMMUNITY CLUB

Tells of Experiences in Ethiopia, India and Other Places

DEBUNKS MANY TALES

One of the most successful Community Club Suppers ever to be held in Tweed took place in the Opera House on Monday night. When nearly three hundred people gathered to partake of a fine supper provided by the ladies of St. James' Anglican Church and to listen to a splendid address delivered by Mr. Gordon Sinclair, Toronto, world famous traveller. The supper was delayed for a half-hour owing to the difficulty experienced by Mr. Sinclair and Mr. S. R. Gurney in making the trip by motor from Belleville to Tweed. The icy condition of the road made motoring hazardous in the extreme and an hour and a quarter was required to negotiate the twenty-five miles. During this brief delay Tweed-Dalphide Band contributed several selections.

Gordon Sinclair of Toronto who addressed Community Club on Travel Experiences

After ample justice had been done by all to the abundance of good things provided, Mr. W. A. Paul, President of Tweed Community Club, called upon the assembly to add its toast to the health of His Majesty, King Edward VIII. Community singing was enjoyed under the direction of Mr. W. E. Timmons and a number of the favourite songs were sung, with Miss Lois Richardson providing the accompaniment. Miss Dorothy Sager, A.T.C.M., delighted her audience with one of her pleasing solos, accompanied by Miss Richardson.

Chairman's Address

Dr. Paul, as chairman, extended hearty welcome to the ladies who were present, stating that this was the first time the Community Club Supper had been graced by their presence. Visitors from Madoc were also given a cordial welcome. The aim of the Club is to make Tweed a better place in which to live. This aim will be realized if all its citizens co-operate in giving their whole-hearted support to the various community organizations—Tweed Memorial Park, Tweed Amusements, Ltd., the Public Library, Tweed-Dalphide Band, the Horticultural Society, (whose object is to make a more beautiful community),—all of which are deserving of help. The president extended a cordial welcome to several families which had recently moved into the community—Mr. and Mrs. Greenwood, Mr. and Mrs. White, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Murat and to Dr. and Mrs. Burrows. The

TO MILLIONS WHO SHOULD USE BRAN

Tests Show ALL-BRAN Corrects Constipation* Gently and Naturally

Since its introduction, some fifteen years ago, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has been used with beneficial results by millions of people.

Realizing the important relationship between proper diet and health, the Kellogg Company has aided for some years many of the leading university laboratories. These tests show that the continued use of bran is thoroughly satisfactory.

ALL-BRAN supplies soft "bulk" which absorbs water and gently cleanses the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and iron. Use as a cereal with milk or cream, or cook in delicious recipes.

This tempting cereal may be enjoyed by every normal person. Two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. Consult your doctor if you do not gain relief this way.

Help your family keep well. Serve Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly for vegetables. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

gentlemen all spoke appreciatively of the kindly reception accorded them by the citizens of Tweed.

Softball Team Honoured

The Gordon steel Works Softball Team were special guests at the supper. A toast in their honour was proposed by Tom Beatty, who recalled that the team had for two successive years advanced to the semi-finals with Barrie and their successful and sportsmanlike play had given the town much favourable advertising. He paid special tribute to Alex Simpson and Jerry Quinn whose efforts had been largely responsible for organizing the team.

Jerry Quinn, manager and first baseman, replied in accepting on their behalf, the words of commendation. Manager W. S. Gordon under whose sponsorship the team had played.

Introduces the Speaker

In introducing Mr. Gordon Sinclair, the guest speaker, S. R. Gurney, secretary of the Community Club, gave some intimate facts connected with Mr. Sinclair whom he had known for nearly a dozen years, first making his acquaintance as reporter for the Toronto newspaper, later going to nearly every country in the world to collect first hand knowledge for his stories.

These trips had brought him the title of "Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society". In the course of these tours Mr. Sinclair had covered 340,000 miles in seven years of travel. In 1932 he sailed around the world, visiting practically every country of importance, and entering every principal city, from which interesting papermen had previously been boarded. He had interviewed many of the world's best known people. Four books had appeared from his pen, the latest "Khyber Caravan". Tweed was especially fortunate in being able to secure Mr. Sinclair as he had received several hundred requests for speaking engagements.

Disparages Ethiopian Conflict

Mr. Sinclair held his audience enthralled as he recounted in his own inimitable way stories of his adventures in far-off places. Stating his auditors from Borneo to Bangkok in Siam, Ethiopia, India, Kashmir and other lands. The story of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict was the greatest flop of all time said Gordon Sinclair. At one time there were 220 reporters in the country. This number has now dwindled to about a dozen. Ridiculous prices were charged by the Ethiopians for everything. Travellers paid as high as $15 a day for poor hotel accommodation. Sympathy for the Ethiopians, he declared, was entirely misplaced and undeserved. This is shown by the story of the action of the Ethiopian government in collecting a hundred per cent. duty on the equipment of an ambulance corps which the Egyptian Prince Fuad had purchased at his own expense and shipped to Ethiopia to assist in caring for the sick and wounded in the struggle against Italy.

Ethiopian Idea of Justice

The administration of justice in Ethiopian is an amusing affair in Westerners. At every street corner in the cities are stationed from one to four magistrates ready to adjust disputes. The arguments of the plaintiff and the defendant are given in turn, with loud voices under cross-examination by the lawyers who plead the cases in the presence of the crowds of curious who gather round. The handling of the case is extremely indicrous.

In Ethiopia the collection of garbage is a social event. The garbage-collector is an individual who is highly respected. He calls at the front door where he is served by the people who are dressed in their best, and invited in to converse and partake of tea or coffee. This done, he picks up his bundle of garbage and passes on.

Visits Kashmir

India, contrary to popular belief, does not belong entirely to Great Britain, France and Portugal own considerable sections. It is divided into twenty-one provinces, and there are five hundred and sixty-four divisions called by the name of these rajahs owe allegiance to Great Britain, but the rest, through territory, are complete. The Maharajah of Kashmir is one who does not acknowledge Great Britain's authority. To enter Kashmir you must pass over the highest motor road in the world—at a height of 13,000 feet above sea-level —and then you enter a country of which are Mohammedans, the remainder, Hindus. The Maharajah himself is Hindu. The strange Hindu laws upon the Mohammedans. In the Punjab, the cow is sacred, and to the Mohammedan, the pig is unclean. And for killing pigs in Kashmir, or having them, and anyone found cutting it is sent to jail for six months without the option of a fine.

Strange Laws

Another strange law has been passed to curtail the number of beggars. Any beggar found in Kashmir is interlaced with canals where the water is extremely cold. Few people are able to swim and many are drowned on falling into the canals.

To lessen the drowning accidents, a law was passed that when anyone witnessing a drowning should stand by for six months. The result has been that as soon as anyone falls into one of the canals, instead of rushing to his aid, everyone stands in sight or hearing scurries away as fast as they can, so that he will not see him drown and the poor wretch is left to perish.

Missionaries Do Fine Work

Missionaries in this land are doing a wonderful work. One missionary in particular who conducts a private school, has made it a point to teach the people Christianity. He teaches them common sense. To encourage the boys at his school to learn to swim, he doubles the fee for every boy who has not learned to swim at 12 years of age. This gentleman of 72 years of age, who is still in charge of the school, has taught hundreds of boys to swim.

The Kashmiri of the Punjab are in a state of constant warfare among themselves and against the British on occasion. They, however, never break their word when once they have given a promise. British plenipotentiary the country and are often hired upon by the Ethiopians. On one occasion they shot down a plane piloted by an air pilot from Winnipeg, (also named Gordon Sinclair). The pilot was badly injured, but one of the men who was the object of the solicitous care of these men who had shot him down. At the cost of great effort they carried him a four days' journey to the nearest hospital and cared for a month in the vicinity until the doctor pronounced him well on the way to recovery. With such people as can not until they had received it, they set out on the return journey. The one act in life of these people, is to keep their bosoms from invasion and their women from violation, and right well they do it.

Expresses Appreciation

Mr. I. D. Corcoran, vice-president of the Community Club thanked Mr. Sinclair for his generosity in filling an engagement in Tweed and assured him of the grateful appreciation of all of who were privileged to listen to him.

Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne, chairman of Tweed Relief Committee, spoke briefly of the needs of a number of families in Tweed, and urged all who could to contribute money, clothing or food for their assistance. D. Roger contributed a solo "Break O' Day".

To Mr. H. Cook fell the pleasant duty of proposing the vote of thanks to the ladies for the meal in which he paid a high tribute to the ladies of St. James' Anglican Church, who had provided the supper.

After thanking those who had aided in the programme, Dr. Paul concluded the meeting.

"I sing a song that we may know you better,
That you may know us better,
That we may burn our false idols
on a common altar."

Church Asks Survey Of Taxes in Canada

Ottawa, Feb. 27 (CP)—The whole question of over-government and over-taxation in Canada should be surveyed and a parliamentary committee set up to report on reforms necessary to reduce the burden according to Dr. L. Charles (Conservative, Broadview). In a resolution appearing in the votes and proceedings, Dr. Charles asked the House of Commons to declare its belief "consolidation, simplification, economy, cabinet and law reform are among essentials."

Mr. Church adds these "suggestions" would be subject to the natural rights of minorities which are not to be interfered with but preserved.

Keep Your Stove looking NEW with ZEBRA LIQUID or PASTE STOVE POLISH

Schoolboy Loses Veneration for M.P's.

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 27 (CP)—Alas, the English school-boy is losing his veneration for parliament.

The recent decision of the Commons in favor of abolishing homework raised youthful hopes politicians were finally about to do something useful. But the problem over the shoemaker and the pair of shoes which D. A. Morrison set for the Commons has shattered fond illusions.

It was only a question of simple arithmetic for cabinetmen and back benchers alike got it wrong.

The fame of the problem travelled. Continental newspapers speculated over the curious diversions of the great British parliament. A German doctor in Berlin became so engrossed he wrote Morrison enclosing an International coupon for a reply.

The disgusted English school-boy has now given the final thrust. "I solved the problem in one minute," he cries, "I always thought members of parliament were clever." His answer was correct.

AFTERNOON TEA ORIGINATED 100 YEARS AGO

Duchess of Bedford Served Cakes And Tea at Five to Fill Gap Between Lunch And Dinner

"Afternoon tea", as a meal appeal, independent of suitable cups of tea at any hour of the day is only about 100 years old. We owe it to Anna, wife of the the Duke, of Bedford, who first coined the expression "a sinking feeling" when she surveyed the gaps between a prodigious breakfast, a light lunch with no servants in attendance, and an eight o'clock dinner, which were fashionable in her day. She began the first hostess to have cakes and tea served regularly at five o'clock, and the custom has since become so universal in Great Britain that, as the song says, "everything stops for tea".

Hints on Making Good Pot of Tea

To make good tea, the size of the teapot should be considered first and foremost, for each pot will infuse a certain amount of leaves to perfection, no more and no less. Don't cram "one for the pot and one for the pot" into a small teapot when the company is large. It cannot hold extra water in proportion to the leaf, and the first cups you draw from it will be strong and bitter in consequence. If you have not a large enough for the number of your visitors, use two small ones, or make from tea several times.

Tabernacle Y.P. Hear Travel Talk

At the meeting of the Young People's Union of Tabernacle Church last evening, the guest speaker was Mr. S. Alec Gordon who gave a very interesting travelogue of his trip to the West Indies last summer.

A number of enlarged still pictures of the various places of call were among pictures of the most interesting points made it seem very real. All present were in imaginary trip which started from Montreal, the first part of call being Halifax, Bermuda, where most of the buildings are of white coral, and rain water is their source of supply for drinking water, owing to the absence of rivers on the island. Other ports of call were Puerto Rico, Barbados, Guadeloupe, Trinidad and British Guiana. Interesting places visited included sugar cane plantations, extinct volcanoes, pitch lake. On the trip down a cargo of barrel staves were unloaded and on the return trip the barrels full of molasses were loaded. The majority of the harbours being too shallow for the boat to land it was necessary to go ashore in row boats or wait until the tide turned. The calm of the return trip was interrupted by a tropical storm, which made things interesting for a time. Finally all were landed safely at Quebec.

TYENDINAGA EAST W.I.

Regular monthly meeting of Tyendinaga East W.I. met at the home of Mrs. R. Tucker on February 20. The annual oyster supper was served by the ladies, after which there was a short business session. The President, Mrs. F. Hubbard, being absent, Mrs. R. Tucker occupied the chair. After the Ode was sung and the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison the roll call was answered by giving the various names of silk. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved and two letters read, one being a letter of appreciation for clothing received, the other was from the Ontario Temperance Association. The oysters ordered were to be purchased by Mrs. Winters. Other articles were also to be bought for relief. The meeting closed in the usual way. A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Harvey for her kind hospitality and to Mrs. Tucker for so ably taking the meeting. After singing National Anthem, the meeting was closed.

"Dangerous"

Bette Davis Co-stars With Franchot Tone—"The Widow From Monte Carlo"

For sheer drama and vital force there are few screen plays to equal "Dangerous", the Warner Bros. production now on the Belle screen. There is a sweep and power about the picture that will bring a tremendous emotional reaction to the spectator.

It is the kind of picture that requires an exceptional cast to make the most of the characters involved in the plot and Warner Bros. evidently recognized this by placing in the leading roles not only players of the rare talent, but who fit their parts with the utmost perfection.

Too much can not be said of the fine work of the principals, including Bette Davis in the title role, Franchot Tone, who plays opposite her, Margaret Lindsey, the third side of the love triangle, Alison Skipworth, John Eldridge and Dick Foran.

"Widow From Monte Carlo"

"The Widow From Monte Carlo," heralded as one of Warner Bros.' most hilarious comedy romances of the year, is announced as the second feature attraction on the same program.

The picture is based on the rollicking play by Ian Hay and A. W. Mason and concerns the highly spiced adventures and love affairs of a Duchess, a warm-blooded South American beauty who has married into an English family of the nobility, and whose search for diversion after the death of her husband leads her into highly proper British "in-laws".

A gay and debonaire major who runs across the Duchess in a gambling palace at Monte Carlo is largely responsible for the series of exciting and romantic adventures the two get into together. At Marcel the English Coney Island, they ride the Dragon's Back and narrowly escape with an unfavorable check and are nearly nabbed by the police.

Another scandal is narrowly averted when the wife of a wealthy marmalade manufacturer steals a letter the Duchess had indiscreetly written the major. But the American quartet gets the letter back and the Duchess breaks off her engagement with a stiffed shot against the cook and are nearly nabbed by the police.

Another scandal is narrowly averted when the wife of a wealthy marmalade manufacturer steals a letter the Duchess had indiscreetly written the major. But the American quartet gets the letter back and the Duchess breaks off her engagement with a stiffed shot against the cook and are nearly nabbed by the police.

Warner William and Dolores Del Rio have the romantic roles with Colin Clive playing the part of the discarded diplomat and Louise Fazenda that of the newly rich woman.

Others in the cast include Gertrude Mundin, Olin Howland and Warren Hymer.

A special extra attraction on the same program is a film showing how to keep a lawn, a delightful and instructive subject that will please everyone. Also a Paramount Pictorial will start daily at 2.30, 7.05 the last complete showing commencing at 8.30 p.m. "Dangerous" will be exhibited daily at 2.30, 7.20 and 9.50 p.m. "The Widow From Monte Carlo" starts daily at 3.45 and 8.30 p.m.

Warner Bazter, Saturday

New and unrivalled thrills in song, dance, romance, adventure and drama are brought to the screen by "King of Burlesque" starring Warner Baxter at the Belle Theatre, which turns the spotlight on a fascinating new work of entertainment.

Featuring Warner Baxter, Alice Faye, Jack Haley, Arline Judge, Mona Barrie, Gregory Ratoff, Dixie Dunbar, Kenny Baker, Pete Nelson and Nick Long, Jr., the picture tells an absorbing love story, but above all human, heart-warming family. The most scrupulous family picture of the year is "Every Saturday Night", announced as the second feature attraction on the same program, featuring Jane Darwell, Jed Prouty and Spring Byington.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Storm Over the Andes"

A Romance, Action and Thrilled Packed Film

Rich in color and glamour of South America, packed with romance, action and thrills, Universal's "Storm Over the Andes" was greeted enthusiastically by a large audience last night at its first showing at the Capitol theatre. The picture deals with the adventures and loves of Jack Neil, mixed up in the movies as an American aviator of fortune who got himself in a fix when he became with a warring South American nation.

He was first assigned to the front and, after a crash landing, established himself as a hero and a battle in the sky with a huge bomber in the face of great odds. The bomber carried the chief of staff of the opposing officer and was invaded back to the city. There he met a beautiful girl and . . . he had a penchant for winning beautiful girls . . . and returned to the front.

His commanding officer was sent out to bomb an enemy ammunition dump. His proceeded to crash land with his machine and saved his self by making a parachute jump. Both returned with the enemy's greatest water their prisoner.

Neil's performance was splendid but he was given close competition by Antonio Moreno, the handsome Spanish player, who is returning to the screen in this production after an absence of five years.

Mona Barrie, as the brunette enamor of Neil, is excellent, possessing restraint in her touching scenes. Gene Lockhart turns in a laughable performance as Holt's dyspeptated mechanic.

A grand assortment of hit tunes, and an uproarious plot, carry "Shipmates Ahoy" and its able cast in a most humorous pace, providing an enjoyable hour of lively entertainment at the Capitol theatre where the comedy is now showing.

Resolving around the sprightly experiences of a singing ship stoker who becomes a waterfront night club bouncer, then a singing star and finally, albeit accidentally, a rich counties' gigolo, "Ship Cafe" becomes one of the most amusing of comedy romances, with music, to date.

A series of rollicking, laugh provoking events bring Brisson, the waking singing fishing stoker to a position of his position. Feeling he has been duped, he renounces his heiress lover, but is too ashamed to return to his water-front friends. It is a riotous finale, he is welcomed back into his sea going days once again.

Directed by Robert Florey, excellent performances are given by the entire cast. Eddie Davis, famous Broadway night club entertainer, makes his debut in the film, singing "Fatal Fascination." Frawley, Ines Courtney, and Mike Judge provide many of the film's funniest moments, while Brisson contributes a fine portrayal in his own inimitable style. Miss Christians is well cast as the countess.

Another hit song written by Lew Gensler, Harlan Thompson and Ray Noble is "Change Your Mind."

DANGER PASSES IN TOKYO, JAPAN

Asaka and Prince Naruhito Higashinni. Prince Asaka and Prince Higashikuni are both heads of collateral branches of the Imperial family. Lieutenant-General members of the Emperor's personal staff and prominent figures in the selection of a new regime.

Party leaders and war councillors then re-convened at the palace, in the presence of the Emperor himself, for their decisive session. They were still conferring this afternoon.

Liberal Rule Continues.

The Goto government, carrying over the comparatively Liberal administration of Premier Okada, continued to function pending establishment of a succeeding regime for this empire of more than 90,000,000 people in Japan proper and Korea.

The reinstatement of Admiral Saito, another object of the assassins' campaign, was expected to be announced from his villa at Okitsu, near Shimoda, coastal city of the south central section of the main island, where he has gone into hiding, guarded by 100 well armed police.

Officials emphasized the uprising and terrorism were confined to sections of two Tokyo garrisons, now spreading to army units elsewhere in the country.

Enlisted men formed the major part of the forces raging and government sources insisted most of them were ignorant of the movement, having been led by their young officers' commands blindly.

Martial Law.

The officers involved were of the same fanatical nationalistic sect which carried off the coup of May 15, 1932, when Premier Inukai was slain.

It was against these elements the martial law was directed, it was said, "to prevent lawlessness by Red elements." It was the first official announcement.

A bomb given to political circles as the Emperor's advisers would urge the right wing elements be given a chance to form a cabinet to see whether they would be able to control the present crisis.

A manifesto, issued by the leaders of the rebellion, set forth its purpose thus:

"At this important time, when the nation is facing an emergency, the senior statesmen around the throne, politicians, financial and military elements, bureaucrats and political parties have been sapping the lifeblood of the country.

"Our purpose is to remove these men and to establish the great principle of a Dorrect rule to protect the country."

Insurance Domestic.

Tokyo reports emphasized the issues were virtually entirely domestic, the rebels being motivated by a desire to remove the Liberal advisers by whom they consider obstacles to the restoration of a "militarist regime" in which a military dictatorship under the Imperial rule would sweep away the Liberal influences, foreign contacts and Liberals influenced by "foreign" ideas.

PETERBORO TAX RATE 38 MILLS

Peterborough, Ont., Feb. 27 (CP) —A tax rate of 38 mills has been struck at by the Finance Committee of City Council, a reduction of three mills on last year's rate and a five year rate. To arrive at the 38 mill rate the committee cut $21,000 out of the various department estimates. This year's rate is made up of the general rate of 27.4 mills plus six-tenths of a mill for garbage collection and debenture.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied by Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

The local market at the moment is quiet with a breathing spell after the sharp rise of recent week. There is a considerable demand for the better grade issues slightly under prevailing quotations, so that a setback of more than ordinary proportions is not anticipated. From a technical viewpoint, the market continues in good shape.

Commenting on the New York market situation, Standard Statistics say that no departure from a gradually constructive policy during the stock market is warranted, as the pressure of idle funds combines with the favorable industrial outlook to warrant higher average prices in the months ahead.

It is learned that the Toronto Stock Exchange intends to change the letter designations on Brazilian Traction, Imperial Oil, International Pete and International Nickel to conform with the practice in New York. Financial Service learns that similar action is being contemplated for the Montreal Stock Exchange.

The rise in Home Oil the past week is in large measure due to the substantial holdings of Royalite Oil. The company owns 33,000 shares of Royalite in addition to a substantial block of securities. Home Oil today, therefore, is a holding company and as the rise in the market has already discounted the value of its holdings. The break-up value of the security is now around $1.40 excluding quotations of around $1.40 for $1 of a dollar.

Industrial Outlook in Western Canada.

This year the City of Vancouver celebrates its Golden Jubilee. The Canadian Pacific Railway entered Vancouver on the 4th July, 1886, with its first transcontinental passenger train which left Montreal on the 28th of June. The celebration is also celebrating the 21st Anniversary of the Across Canada service, states Agricultural and Industrial Progress in Canada, a monthly review published by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The commercial activity of British Columbia appears destined to enjoy a happy year. The improvement in trade, in manufacturing, proportionate in shipping, in agriculture, forestry and fisheries, indicate that all these developments is such that with this anniversary will come more prosperous conditions, and certainly a great influx of visitors to enjoy the various activities which will be arranged during the Spring and Summer months in celebration of this important an event.

General business conditions throughout the Western Provinces are maintaining a good level. It is considered that trade will show a steady improvement towards the autumn months. Many new plans for expansion of warehouses and factory buildings are the result of the continuance or increasing trade and demand for Western-made products.

Projects, which have been in abeyance for the past few years, are again under consideration because of increase in sales and present necessity to adopt improved methods of production and distribution. Replacements of farm implements and machinery, necessary through continuous operation, new warehousing and factory space are among the more important phases leading to expansion.

The building trades should have a much more favorable year.

New Deal Securities Chief Talks Out.

Chairman James M. Landis of the Securities Commission has done some plain talking lately, especially when he said, "One sees with concern the efforts of traders to outguess events, to anticipate changes and the increasing tendency subtly perverted to indirect purposes their savings into the market with the purpose of quick profits."

The often still prevalent conduct of "customers' men to encourage activity by irresponsible and fictitious means for the sake of activity, has to be put by the effort to educate their customers away from such fallacious to speculate."

Sisco Gains Annual Earnings a Share; Cash and Bonds Close to $1,000,000; 109,000 Tons Added to Ore Reserves in 1935.

The annual financial report of Sisco Gold Mines Limited for the year ended December 31st, 1935, has brought showing of slight decrease in net income, due chiefly to increased taxation. The report, one is served stood at 383,311 tons. During the year a total of 346,276 tons of ore was mined. At the end of 1935 new ore is ore blocked out totalling 109,000 tons. Principal additions to the reserves were made in the Sisco Extension, where two new levels were opened up. The rapidly increasing importance of this shaft section is indicated by the fact that two years ago "ore" alone was made up 5 percent of the total reserves of 305,000 tons, while today it represents 28 percent of the greatly increased tonnage.

Ore in Mainland to the Northeast, the management reports that development has been carried on actively and preparations are being made for the further recovery of the Dominion would be well advised to buy stocks on all sharp declines. There is nothing fundamentally wrong with the list, economic conditions in good shape and a considerable volume of purchasing power prevails slightly under current market prices. Undue nervousness and hasty liquidation is not warranted.

The liquor business has been good in the cities and towns along the border, undoubtedly helped by the extra spend by the cold weather and prevalence of disease. As a result, it is understood that Schenley, since the end of the year, has earned full annual dividend requirements on its preferred, the 5½ percent preferred, amounting to $625,000.

Inflation is perhaps preferable to deflation, but it is by no means the only alternative. For a time, Mr. Roosevelt is encouraging inflation, which robs the deserving and thrifty in favor of the undeserving and thriftless and only percentage of the population minimized, a temporary relief secured by drastically reduced governmental expenditures, still existing and balanced budgets. The way out then opens when these steps are taken, namely, the return of debts at lower rates of interest, based not on inflated currency but on depreciation, but upon confidence.

Expected to Increase Dividend

International Nickel of Canada Limited is expected to increase its dividend shortly, again, on the common stock.

Building Products

Building Products is a concern that stands to benefit in the event of a construction boom. There is no doubt about that point. That the Dominion Housing Act will stimulate the building trade, Building Products' net working capital is $1,020,000. In the event of a boom therefore in a position to increase its volume of business rather readily. Its plants are in the East, in Brantford, some of the oils and Montreal.

Nickel advanced more than a point to 53¼ and Consolidated Smelters gained 1 to 44. Hollinger moved up to a half point in the oils and Dome, Kirkland Lake continued a leader in the action with the price around 23¾. Walkers Common declined ¼ on the lower price rule for the utilities, building shares and the senior issue.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Feb. 27 (CP)—Toronto Mines Limited has been incorporated the Base Metal shares under the influence apparently of an active buying movement in the stock on New York Board and higher prices for nine metal base. The gold group had a few soft spots but the general tone was steady.

Noranda advanced nearly a point and substantial gains were hoarded by Hollinger, Kirkland Lake, Sudbury Basin and Waite-Amulet.

Base metals were up 1-8 cents per lb. and Consumers at 2.40 were off moderately while other medium-priced issues were also fractionally lower. Provincial Paper was higher by a few cents in heavy turnover.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, Feb. 27—Local produce markets were inclined to be easier yesterday and eggs arriving in the city were cheaper, declines averaging one cent per dozen under Tuesday's prices.

The milder weather caused the low egg income, but the demand was steady to a shade lower. Potato prices were unchanged to 5c per bag lower, closing, however, generally steady. Receipts for the day as posted at the Board of Trade were 1,063 cases of eggs, 774 boxes of butter and 9 boxes of cheese.

On the egg market grades shipments in carlots or L.C.L. lots were mainly No. 1 candled selects, No. 2 candled, and No. 3's for A-pullets, with odd quotations on both sides of these prices being heard.

The butter market was mainly 32 1-2c per lb. for No. 1 creamery in carlots or L.C.L. lots, with some quoting the 32 to 32 1-4c, and others up to 32 3-4c.

Livestock

Toronto, Feb. 27.—(CP)—There was no cattle or hog trading on the Toronto Union Stockyards during the early session today. A small supply of calves sold steady from $5.50 to $6 per cwt. for veal of good western lambs offered. Yesterday's receipts were 60 cattle, 30 calves, 60 hogs, 200 sheep and lambs, 213.

HOGS

Toronto, Feb. 27.—(CP)—Reporting hog markets were again showing declining prices today. At four points, the prices were down with recorded losses of 10 to 35 cents, while two points showed unchanged. The prices:

Toronto, $8.50; Hull $8.50; Sarnia, $8.60; Kitchener, $8.00; Brantford, $8.15; Barrie $8.00; Peterboro, $8.50.

GRAIN

Winnipeg, Feb. 27.—(CP)—Scattered selling today caused anxious to profit from yesterday's advance brought fractional declines in early trading on the wheat market today. At mid-session prices rested 3-8 to 1 1-2 lower with May at 85 3-4, July at 86 5-8 and October at 86 5-8.

TORONTO DUKES DOWNED IN FIRST PLAYOFF GAME

Hamilton Tigers Secure Edge, Winning in Toronto 7-2

DEFENCE QUITE OPEN

Mackie And Apps Each Score Three Goals in Victory

Toronto, Feb. 27.—(CP)— Put aboard a "jinx" spell over the Dukes, the Toronto Hockey Club chalked up a 7-2 victory over the Dukes in the first game of the O.H.A. senior finals here at the Arena Gardens last night.

The series is based on the best three-of-five games basis with the winner meeting the Western senior champions—either Kitchener or Niagara Falls—for the O.H.A. title. The second cross sticks in the second struggle at Hamilton next Tuesday night.

The result last night was not exactly a surprise to Mr. Hockey Fellows but the score was. Before the rabid Hamilton fans cackled over their pets' little chance of whipping the proud Dukes so thoroughly. The Tigers team knew better. Coach Jack and their wizard Jackie Forbes made the Dukes defence look bad.

Howard Mackie, the Queen's University's Cyclones Apps were the big guns of the Hamilton crew, each scoring three goals and gaining an assist. Big Syd Howe, the blonde-haired winger counted the other.

3 Goals In 4 Secs

Mackie personally accounted for the first three goals, scoring the first in the opening period at exactly four seconds apart. To make the Duke look worse, the Duke standpatter, Fred Radke, huge Tiger scapegoat was serving a penalty at the time.

Apps, all-round skating and probably the most promising professional hockey prospect to don skates this winter, was everywhere. He broke up many Duke plays before they got started and his many assists carried him around the Toronto rearguard time after time.

Jack Church, League "bad-man", secured the first Toronto tally midway through the opening frame. Ab Grant banged in the other near the end of the first period.

Despite the one-sided score "Handy-Andy" Golden turned in a great game in the Toronto net and had no chance on any of the goals which beat him. The sensational stops all through the game kept the score down to 7-2. It may be one of the last games Andy will play here for some time. He is an outstanding playing between the post for an English team next season.

Mrs. Noble Posed as Model For Laura Secord Portrait

Painter Was Mrs. Noble's Friend, Mildred Peel Who Married Sir Geo. Peel

London, Ont., Feb. 27 (CP)—Two sisters of the late Mrs. B. Noble of London, who was Phoebe Louise Lemay, today learned she was the original of the painting of Laura Secord, now in the Legislative Building at Toronto and proven to have been painted by a friend of the late Sir George Ross, former Premier.

Mrs. Noble and Mildred Peel, painter of the Laura Secord portrait, were inseparable girlhood friends, and the sisters, Mrs. R. Stilson and Mrs. Harry Tull.

When Mildred Peel, who later married Sir George, was searching for someone to pose for the picture, she recalled Phoebe Lemay was a descendant of the heroine who warned the colonists of the American attack in the War of 1812. Miss Lemay was a great-great niece of Laura Secord and the painter was delighted at the striking resemblance between her friend and the heroine. The bust of Laura Secord at Niagara Falls was made with Phoebe Lemay as the model and was used for the painting.

The late William John Lemay, for 35 years a messenger for the Bank of Montreal, was well known in London. Many stories of Laura Secord were told by him to his family but he left no written record.

Mrs. Tull recalled a Bible that belonged to Stephen Secord, with his name written on the fly leaf, and an old antique picture of Laura Secord.

Phoebe Lemay, said her sisters, sat for the sculpture piece in the old Peel store on Richmond street, London.

Toronto, Feb. 27 (CP)—Doubts was expressed by Premier Hepburn this day whether the portrait of former Premier George Ross found to be covered by a painting of Laura Secord, hanging in the Ontario Legislative Building "Hall of Fame", could be restored. The painting has not yet been taken from its place in the corridor near the entrance to the legislative chamber.

"I don't know whether it is fair," Mr. Hepburn said, "to let your story on George Ross loose on the public. She's been there thirty years now. It's not a good picture of Laura Secord anyway."

W. A. Sherwood, a painter of local prominence during his time, and also chairman of the Toronto Conservative Club of Liberty years ago was the artist who painted the much discussed picture of Sir George Ross over which was later painted the picture of Laura Secord, Canada's heroine, now hanging in the Provincial Legislature.

Asserting ready to be the case, ex-Controller A. R. Hacking last night revealed some interesting political history of the last years of the Ross government, he himself was then actively related with the picture.

Was Painted Picture.

The painting of the late Sir George Ross, according to Mr. Hacking, was presented to him on the death of Sir George's Hall, on the understanding that if he did not like it it would be shoved aside and the meeting would proceed with Sir George undistracted by a painting of which he was dissatisfied.

The painting was then sent to Sir George's home on St. George Street, over which his wife painted the picture of Laura Secord.

"It is the first I have heard of the picture since the meeting in Sir George's Hall of more than thirty years ago," said the former Controller, claiming he could recognize it by the frame.

Text of Speech on Camps By Hon. Norman McL. Rogers

The text of the statement made by the Hon. Norman McL. Rogers, K.C., is as follows:

"It has been announced that Relief Camps are now established and conducted will be discontinued during the present year. As an emergency measure these camps may have been justified. As a permanent feature of social organization in Canada they cannot be supported on sound economic or public utility or governmental economy.

"There has been ample criticism of the administration of these camps under the Department of National Defence. In their organization and administration the Department of National Defence performed a difficult task with commendable efficiency and a minimum price of national importance.

"To continue these Relief Camps, however, on their present basis, would be to institutionalize them and to encourage an attitude of hopelessness on the part of those for whom they were designed to make provision in a period of economic extremity.

Plan to Abolish Camps

The intention to abolish Relief Camps has been confirmed by findings and recommendations of the committee appointed to report to the Minister of Labor on existing conditions in these camps.

The Government recognizes that in closing these camps every effort must be made to provide employment for those now on the strength of the camps, in their own districts. Preliminary arrangements have already been made for setting up machinery which will absorb, from time to time, those on the strength of the camps into gainful and useful employment. It is anticipated that these arrangements will permit the closing of relief camps, as such not later than July 1st of the present year. No new projects will be undertaken. The present strength of the camps will not be increased. There will be no new admissions. In seeking ways and means to provide employment the Government has recognized the desirability of affording, so far as may be possible, alternative employment suitable to the training and experience of those now in camps. As a result of negotiations with Canadian National Railways and the Canadian Pacific Railway through the Minister of Railways and Canals, arrangements have been made whereby 10,000 men will be employed on deferred maintenance work on the tracks of these railways.

Co-operative Basis

This work will be in addition to the usual maintenance work of the railways. It will be undertaken on a co-operative basis; provision for which will be proposed in the emergency supplementary estimates. Men taken from the relief camps by the railroads will be in private employment on a basis of pay and wages. Relief Camps will be closed progressively as each unit of the transfer of camp strength to employment on the railways etc., as soon as weather conditions permit.

While the Relief Camps remain open provision will be continued under the Department of National Defence, working in close co-operation with and carrying out the policy of the Department of Labor. The decision to carry on under the present organization is a natural outcome of the policy of abolishing the Relief Camps. It would be costly and undesirable to build up a large organization, under the Department of Labor, which will of necessity be short-lived.

Farm Placement

It is proposed to encourage a greater measure of co-operation between the provinces and the Dominion in the working out of a more intensive application of the farm placement scheme, a scheme which has to date been followed quite extensively in the Prairie Provinces with very satisfactory results. Under this scheme farmers have access to mining areas and other development projects would be glad outlets for employment and it is anticipated that these opportunities if being accepted in considerable numbers will absorb the bulk of men in the relief camps who desire that class of work.

It is expected that through the instrumentality of the proposed National Employment Commission, working in co-operation with business and industrial undertakings, additional avenues of employment will be found. A greater degree of co-operation will be sought in the National interest between the Government and those agencies which have to do with the understanding to meet the problem.

Allowance Increased

It has been decided by the Government that the present allowance of 30 cents per day shall be increased to $15.00 a month, as from March 1st. All other allowances, such as meals, clothing, medical care, tobacco etc, will remain the same as at present.... Will be paid out as follows: $4.00 on the 1st of each month; $4.00 a week at any Post Office, for the total balance standing to his credit in the account. If a man leaves a camp of his own free will, he will at least have some means of support while he is seeking industrial re-establishment.

Returns are now being received from all camps which will indicate the age and occupational distribution of the camps' population and will be used as a guide in planning for re-employment of those who are employable. The Government feels that it has a special responsibility at this time, in first seeking to find employment for those men who are in the camps, if the plan to close the camps is to be carried out successfully. Once this has been done, continuous efforts will be put forth to secure employment for all those who are unemployable. The unemployables will have to continue to be, as at present, charges of the provincial and municipal governments.

Parliamentary Bills and Household Bills Confuse Prairie Woman

Ottawa, Feb. 27 (CP)—Out in a little house in a wind-swept corner of the prairies is one woman who has infinite faith in the power of women in politics. Her faith has taken on concrete form and arrived by mail on Senator Cairine Wilson's desk.

The mere passing of government bills for millions of dollars does not interest this western housewife but she is definitely concerned in the passing of a bill for $14.44 on a mail order house for articles she has chosen painstakingly by kaupright out of a brightly pictured catalogue.

The letter: "Dear Mrs. Senator Wilson: Am enclosing an order for ... for articles I am in dire need of this winter and am trusting that through you this bill will pass the Senate and order with money sufficient to be sent to me.... Without delay, as I am very worried over the clothing or my family for the winter."

This list is attached: 18 linen tea towels, $2.16; 12 pure linen tea towels, $2.16; Two sets of sheets and pillow cases, $7.92; three pair pillow cases, $1.75; Two pairs Alabama blankets @6.50; two wool quilts, $7.50; two hundred bed spreads, $3.20; one pair all wool blankets, $13.75; one pair Jacquard, $1.29; four suits how all wool underwear, $13.00; 2 broadcloth shirts, $3.40; Four pair Irish knit all wool hose, $2.80 — total $74.64.

PURCHASERS OF BOND ISSUE WILL NOT BE GIVEN

Two Bills Passed Cause Division, Both Won By Government

INCOME BILL READY

Reached Order For Return of Financial Information

Toronto, Feb. 27 (CP)—The bill providing for Ontario's first payment of the Income Tax may pass the Legislature today. First reading on the order paper, it will be up for third reading prior to revision of the Throne Speech debate by Dr. J. R. Smith, Liberal member for South Simcoe, Marks.

Complementary legislation to the Income Tax Bill, made necessary by the province taking from municipalities the right to tax incomes, drew opposition criticism yesterday. Both introduced by Welfare Minister Croll, one left much unnecessary amendments to the Municipal Act and the other provided for rate-returning municipalities for lost revenue.

Discussion of the bills followed a lengthy argument over two resolutions on the order paper, one of which resulted in division. The House rejected by 61-46 the motion of Opposition Leader Geoffrey S. Henry for a return showing purchasers of last summer's $5,000,000 bond issue. The other resolution, moved by Provincial Secretary Harry Nixon, provided for a return showing an order for return of financial information. It was supported by 61-17.

More Votes Given

Mr. Croll's amendment to the Municipal Act provided for voting in municipal elections, where citizens voted formerly because—they said the Municipal Tax. It abolished the right of municipalities to levy income taxes and provided for refund of the Business Tax to individuals paying Income Tax.

Arthur Ellis, (Cons., Ottawa South) declared he was opposed to a man receiving a vote without paying some sort of municipal tax and suggested the Government knowing what they were doing. In 800 municipalities, where no income tax was levied, he said, people now paying the provincial levy will have a municipal vote for the first time.

The bill was given second reading after debate on the amendment providing for reimbursing municipalities, was adjourned. Leopold Macaulay (Cons., York South) declared the bill was "a statute to give you a blank cheque."

"There is not one scrap of assurance in the bill that any municipality is going to get any refunding payment in future," said Arthur Ellis. He added the municipalities had been asleep "because they don't know what is going to happen."

Housing Order

Sam Lawrence (C.C.F., Hamilton East) presented a resolution from Hamilton City Council opposing the income tax unless it provided for good compensation for the future. The resolution said any loss of revenue from the income tax would shift the burden to real estate, which already was heavily taxed.

Referring to Mr. Nixon's motion to rescind the order for tabling figures for capital and ordinary expenditure over a period of years, Mr. Henry said: "This is the most remarkable resolution ever presented to the House. There is nothing to the records like it since Confederation. You cannot delete the resolution from the record no matter what you do."

Premier Hepburn supplied a resolution had been recommended in 1905 and Sir James Whitney, former Premier, had voted in favor of the motion.

Speaking on Mr. Henry's motion to table names of bond purchasers, Premier Hepburn said it was not in the public interest to make such a disclosure.

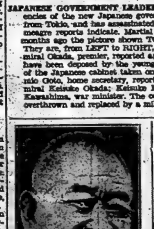
Col. W. H. Price (Cons., Toronto Parkdale) demanded the return because, he said, the Government had shirked as many small investors participated in the issue.

Painful Piles

Can be Quickly Relieved

If you think there is no way to relieve the misery of piles, it's because you don't know of HEM-ROID, the great internal medicine, free prescription written by Dr. J. Boschmann, western physician. The real cause of piles is on the inside—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel, with the tiny rectal veins filling up, stagnant, impure.

Dr. Leonhardt decided the way to relieve piles was internally, with a medicine which would ease the congestion of blood in the veins of the lower bowel and help to heal and restore the weak, inflamed parts. After many tests he wrote the prescription which has been so successful in giving quick relief from piles misery. It is now offered to you at any druggist's. If you try it and have your money back if you are not completely satisfied after using one bottle.



No matter what kind of piles you have or how long you have had them simply ask your druggist for HEM-ROID and we'll back up this promise.

JAPANESE GOVERNMENT LEADERS OVERTHROWN—Dissatisfied with the liberal and proletarian tendencies of the new Japanese government, recently elected, a military clique has seized power. It is reported from Tokio, and has assassinated at least three prominent Japanese statesmen and almost 80 others, the meagre reports indicate. Martial law has been declared in Tokio, it is further reported. Just a few months ago the picture shown TOP arrived in Canada identified as "Japan's four most powerful men." They are, from LEFT to RIGHT, General Hayashi, army chieftain; Kodi Hirota, foreign minister; Admiral Okada, premier, reported assassinated, and Admiral Osumi, naval minister. Apparently these men have been deposed by the younger "radical" members of the army. The LOWER picture is a recent one of the Japanese cabinet taken on the occasion of the New Year's review. It shows LEFT to RIGHT, Fusaio Oda, home secretary, reported killed; Takamotoke Yamasaki, minister of communications; Admiral Mitsumi Oi, agriculture minister; Admiral Keisuke Okada; Keisuke Mochinaki, minister of communications; Admiral Baron Mineo Yoshiyuki Kawashima, war minister. The censored dispatches from Japan indicate that this government has been overthrown and replaced by a military dictatorship.

JAPANESE STATESMEN ASSASSINATED IN COUP — Premier Admiral Keisuke Okada, Finance Minister Takahashi and Admiral Makoto Saito, lord keeper of the privy seal are reported assassinated as Japanese military leaders staged coup which swept them into power in Japan, dislodging the recently-elected government. The reason stated for the coup is that the government was becoming too liberal, and the military clique, drawn from the younger members of the army, were alarmed at the gains made by the proletarian vote and the opposition to increased budgets by the powerful finance minister Takahashi, long an enemy of the militarists. Beyond reports that Tokio is under martial law, little news has seeped through the strong Japanese censorship.

FORMER MAYOR W. W. HILTZ, DIES

East End Resident Succumbs To Lengthy Illness

Toronto, Feb. 27—W. W. Hiltz, Mayor of Toronto in 1924, and well known throughout the east end of the city as a one-time school teacher who achieved success in public life and as a builder of homes, died at 4.30 o'clock Wednesday evening at his home, 882 Broadview Avenue. He was 63 years of age, and had been suffering for several years from heart trouble.

Arrangements for the funeral had not been completed at a late hour last night, but indications were that services would be held on Saturday afternoon.

Prior to attaining the office of mayor, Mr. Hiltz had served for 12 years as school trustee, chairman of the board of education, alderman for Ward One, and controller. He had achieved considerable success in his career as a school teacher before deserting it in 1907 to engage in the business of building and selling homes. Up to the time of his death he had built more than 500 houses in the east end of the city, as well as developing a number of store and apartment house properties in the Danforth Avenue district.

Temperance Advocate

An active advocate of temperance and a worker in behalf of prohibition during the war days, Mr. Hiltz was also for many years a leader in work among boys and general social welfare activities, and for 25 years was superintendent of the Sunday School of the Danforth Avenue Methodist (formerly Methodist) Church.

Ottawa, Feb. 27 (CP)—Joseph Thomas Richards, President of the mining brokerage firm bearing his name, was found dead in his car at the rear of his home. He had been suffering from a weak heart and it was believed he suffered a stroke while cleaning the windows of his car.

He was found by his son, Cecil, slumped over the steering wheel in the engine running.

An inquest will be held.

SUBJECTED TO TORTURE

Police Believe Low And Labatt Snatch Have Connections

Toronto, Feb. 27. (CP)—The Ontario government's attempt to solve the seven-year-old kidnapping of Sam Low, former London brewery executive, who said his captors tortured him, apparently moved today towards Ottawa, where Low conducted a florist business.

The Low kidnappers were never captured or identified although it was reported ransom of $25,000 was paid to obtain Low's release. It is reported now Low may be asked to confront the four men convicted of kidnapping John S. Labatt in August, 1934, almost six years after Low was abducted.

In particular, it is said, they would like the Ottawa florist and former executive of Carling's brewery, London, to see Jack Bannon, one of the Labatt kidnappers. Bannon, sentenced to serve 12 years in penitentiary for a kidnapping that yielded no ransom, has been suspected of having a part in the more successful Low snatch.

Look Over Cheviots

At the same time Low would be asked to look over David Mesbitt, Michael McCardell and Russell Knowles, others sentenced for the Labatt crime. Meisner, held to be innocent by McArdell, goes on trial for the second time next month in London. The Federal Department of Justice granted him a new trial.

It was reported yesterday Inspector R. D. L. Hammond of the Department's Criminal Investigation Branch would go to Ottawa to confer with Low. If was known Crown Attorney Newton F. Newton, of London, prominent in prosecution of the Labatt abductors, HAS already left here for Ottawa.

Whether the Crown Attorney intended interviewing Low could not be determined but London reports said he would ask Low to go there and face Bannon.

A link between the Low and Labatt cases is what authorities hope to find. They wonder, too, if this may be the information the police were able to obtain, he was taken to a lonely cottage on the Lambton County shoreline. Leamington and Wheatley, where his brother lives, are not far away.

Kidnapped in 1928

Low was kidnapped in September, 1928, from his automobile midway between Windsor and London. According to police information, the police were able to obtain, he was taken to a lonely cottage on the Lambton County shoreline. Leamington and Wheatley, where his brother lives, are not far away.

On one occasion, it was said, he was buried up to his neck in beach sand, while the sort pounded over his head. Lighted candles were held to the soles of his feet another time while a gun was pressed against his temple. Low was said finally to have agreed to pay the kidnappers a fraction of the amount they demanded and gained his freedom.

DUNNING AGAINST PROPOSED SCHEME

Not in Favor of Nationalizing Chartered Banks

OTTAWA, Feb. 27 — (CP) — Proposals to nationalize the chartered banks or other proposals looking in the direction of a Socialist State find no favor with finance Minister Dunning.

As the House of Commons turned down a resolution to nationalize the Central Bank and the chartered banks yesterday, Mr. Dunning announced the Government was considering changes in ownership and control of the Bank of Canada, but was not prepared to entertain proposals to nationalize the chartered banks.

The resolution was proposed by M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F. Rosetown-Biggar) and, so far as the nationalizing of the Central Bank was concerned, found support among Liberal members who spoke. Several others, however, shared Mr. Dunning's view of the chartered banks should be left under private control.

The discussion brought out a new scheme for relieving the tax burden on the national debt in a speech from W. A. Tucker, Liberal, Southern, Alta., Liberal with Social Credit leanings. By taking over control of the Bank of Canada, Mr. Tucker said the government could act to issue currency and credit in accordance with the needs of the people.

Gov't Not in Business

It could take to the Bank of Canada Government bonds and Dominion Bank loans currency against them which could be used to pay off the national debt. The bonds would bear no interest and over a period of 24 years the entire government debt could be refunded to a non-interest basis.

Mr. Dunning said parliament was no institution to engage in business and to run a bank. Its function was to regulate business as between man and man and industry and industry.

ONTARIO HOUSE SOON TO BE SOLD

London Company Bidding on Property Says Marshall

Toronto, Feb. 27—Prediction that the long-vacant Ontario House in Old London, would be disposed of within the next two months was made yesterday by Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture, on his return to Queen's Park from a five weeks' visit to the British Isles.

Mr. Marshall stated that while nothing had interposed himself in negotiations for the sale of the storied Georgian property of the former agent-general of the province, two prominent concerns were now bidding for it, and he was confident that a handsome price would eventually be realized by the Hepburn Government.

Mr. Marshall's trip was of a private nature, Mrs. Marshall, who accompanied him on the direct orders of her physician is considerably improved in health, but is remaining abroad for some time. The minister's return to the customary seat in the Legislature was the signal for a noticeable increase from both Government and Opposition members.

Dale Plays The Game

—BY—
Ann Forester

Dale's gaze crept stilily about the room. A pleasant brown panelled space. Cream colored curtains shutting out the city roar. An inviting little island of tranquility perched high above the city. That brown leather chair beside the desk ...it spoke of Mimi curled up in its depths. In this soothing setting Mimi would glean like a jewel—a bright bird of paradise flashing through brown northern woods.

To Dale's startled imagination the heavy Oriental perfume Mimi affected still lingered in the remotest of the room. It became a miasma, riding about Dale—up by her brush —driving her mad. The hopelessness of it! The sheer impossibility of hating Mimi. Oh, bitter—bitter.

Dale made a desperate effort to break through the wretchedness of her mind standing there, watching her with uniformly eyes.

"Brant—Oh, darling, darling, can't you see? Mimi is trying to break us up—has been ever since we came unscrambling me! Can't you see, darling? I've been nearly frantic! Please, Brant! Oh, Brant—Brant—you! She's determined to make trouble between us—so put on one head and what you herself! Oh, can't you see...can't you see...?"

Dale was crying. Tears thickened her speech. They ran down into her mouth. She could taste them—salt. She dashed them off with the backs of her hands, angry at the feminine weakness which made her cry now when she most wished to speak clearly, dispassionately. She must be logical. She must open Brant's eyes —make him see the thing as it was. She must break through the mists of misunderstanding which were forming between them. And all she could do was stand there shaking frantic hands, beating, wailing: "Can't you see...can't you see...?"

"I can see that you're acting like a jealous idiot!" Brant spoke in a cold clipped.

It was like the flat of his hand across Dale's face. Had he struck the girl she could not have recoiled more quickly. The pain came so quickly. The pain came so quickly. Quick shame slashed through her anger. He rescued into speech. Anger, or, rather, by cover his sense of shame.

"Dale, you'll have to understand that you're not running my business. You're not calling my life to Unfortunately, you once found it necessary to take a high hand in my affairs...."

"Unfortunately!" Dale cried. "Unfortunately! Oh, Brant!"

"...but now I must beg you to please remember that I am capable of following my own affairs. I am grateful to you for that other, of course, but if you can't see that I have gone through the vagabond stage...."

"Oh, don't...." Dale said weakly. A sick disgust, at Brant—at herself—crept over her. Shifting her heart burning her lips cold. She felt nauseated. For a moment she wondered if she were about to faint. No—mustn't faint. It was so theatrical. Brant would think she was shamming. Dale put her hand before her face unsteadily, as though his words were so many blows. "Please..... don't put it like that. I can't stand it."

Silence fell between them. The silence when the echoes of the last words died over in the hall outside was the only sound. Wearily, Brant turned and reached for his hat.

"Oh—well. There's no sense in standing here like this. Come on—let's go home."

Home! House....!

Obediently, Dale let Brant shove her gently toward the door but just before they reached it she turned to say in a low voice, "You won't—you won't tell—"

Brant's eyes scorched her. "Let Mimi know about this? Good Lord! Do you think I'd have the remotest fiend within Dale for a moment. That tow-head Mimi! As though she were an agent of light long she to have such meanness revealed. Once Brant had believed in all women because of Mimi's capricious cruelty. Then she—Dale—had been the healing magic which put his world to rights. Now the conditions were bewilderingly reversed. Oh, it was wrong! There must be words which would reach Brant. Which would convince him that she, Dale, was right. Not jealous—forgetful, but right!

But suppose that being right didn't count? Suppose there was no right or wrong.... Suppose there was no justice. That victory went only to the clever ones, like Mimi.

Dale pulled her hat over her eyes and stood in rigid silence as Brant opened the door and strode to the elevator. Grimly he punched the button. Brant hailed a taxi. Handed her in and got in after her. Sitting side by side together yet miles apart.....

The rumbling roar of the engine echoed through the cab....through echoed through the cab....through Dale's head. Something—anything—to break the silence. She was crying again.

Then she was frantically fumbling for Brant's hands—pulling them to her.

"Darling..... darling..... let's make up!" She mouthed it through her tears. Pulling his face down, pressing it against her own and saying it over and over—"please—darling."

"Brant! Oh, darling!" But his arm remained conditionless. He put her from him. Not there was no fire in him. Not there was no fire in him. He went like a leaden thing—flopping down from her lips—to lie, a cold weight, on her heart.

CHAPTER XI.

Like Samuel of old, a thing of steel would, indeed seem, but the sensory of that night was a wound which would not heal.

There had been a Dale—willful—high spirited—who would never have put up with the petty humiliation of this sort of thing—but how had made a present of her. Of what avail to make the defiant gesture of going away if she left her heart behind her. Of what use to say to herself that Brant was unlikable—when she knew, deep within her that she wanted him, right or wrong.

A little longer..... a little longer..... hope whispered within her. She was prone to be too impulsive. Don't do something now that she would be sorry for. Wait—wait.

So she waited, aware now of the suck of the undercurrent.

Had she been able, Dale would have dropped out of the fashionable winter limbo side with Major as she had chosen on her first stay here. Nothing—absolutely nothing—to do! Time with safe trivialities until she and Brant could live by themselves and all these differences would straighten themselves out. But there was her inherited pride to uphold. If Dale were to withdraw, Eleanor and Nance would wonder what had happened. Mimi would eat, why she was quitting. Worst of all, Mimi would guess the truth and know she had conquered.

So, wearing a smile which did not touch her eyes, Dale went to Erma's house.

As she went in a room to take off her wraps she found Helene Du Bois talking to Carol Harrington.

"—and when we went into the Blue Moon cafe later, there he was and he had the nerve to come over to the table and greet us. My dear, can you imagine it!"

Helene Du Bois was a straw colored blonde whose severe consciousness of her impeachable social position was a private joke among the more lively of her associates. Nance called her the asp of the family tree and loved to mimic her affectations. She exasperated Dale. Something annoying about that complacent small face with its pale eyebrows and dainty ways. Now Dale felt a flash of bitter scorn as she slipped out of her coat and arranged her hair before the mirror, while Helene's voice droned behind her like a distracted bee.

"—and Myrtle Scott said he cut in on her at the Armold's dance. Good Lord, does he think we take him seriously because he's here—"

"Erma's getting to be a fool!" Carol Harrington's positive voice. "She's approaching the dangerous age. Of course she's been like this before but not so bad. This affair has she warned. What is he after? all but a cheap actor, even if he is so good-looking! If something doesn't happen to make a mess of this yet—"

"Something has if you ask me!" Helene's breathless, colorless tone breathed. "Yes can tell me he isn't wild about the other! Look at the threadbare excuse he makes to stand and talk to her. Erma's getting wild-eyed. You can't tell me that there isn't—Oh, my fool, Carol! That was my foot you—What!...."

The monotonous voice trailed into a buzzing whisper.

Dale felt the weight of Helene's and Carol's eyes following her as she walked out of the room with crimson cheeks.

It had been her they meant! Whispering scandal about her and Phil and Erma Hanford. Idle women—how she hated them! Always feasting on somebody's reputation!

And it was rotten the way they snubbed Phil! Dale looked for him as she came into the long library and found him down at the other end of the room talking to two slim, smart creatures in trim riding habits—society buds who had dropped in to watch the rehearsal on their way back from the daily canter in the park. Very much at ease Phil looked just now. Handsome, charming in the luxuriant surroundings he loved. A little touch of pitying exasperation rose in Dale's heart. Phil thought these flattering women were friendly—Oh, what a fool not to see that they were fooling him! Sleek, silken women, sitting so smugly in their established niches! An angry moment when she seemed to see Phil and herself—aliens—allied against the rest of the room.

But when Phil suddenly turned his head and saw her, Dale's heart leaped and she plunged into conversation with the portly matron at her elbow. She found herself nervously looking about for Erma Hanford's black scowl—hoping no one else had seen the fire in Phil's eyes.

This was a dress rehearsal today. The room was bright with picturesque costumes. On the dais at the end of the room a large picture frame had been erected. Heavy drapes drew back from this to reveal the living pictures within.

When Dale posed beneath the moonlit sky of Egypt....Gunievere musing alone on a terrace, dreaming of Lancelot—Phil caught his breath! Something about the lovely slender figure which brought a choke in his throat. His ring! Exalted here in that last night in Colt City when he had broken their engagement Dale....sweet and loyal under hardships....what a fool he'd been to let a girl like that get by him! He'd always cared for her—the only girl he'd ever really cared a snap of his fingers about. Poetic justice he thought bitterly. Why hadn't he realized what he had—when he had her!

Presently the forest broke at the edge of a small plain, across which the trail led through fields of grass that grew high above the heads of the marching men.

They were well into this when suddenly, ahead of them, rifles spoke in a long line from their front!

CLAIMS SUCCESS IN ROCKET PLANE FLIGHT—Displaying the aerial acrobatics of a fatally wounded duck, America's first mail-carrying rocket glider skidded and fluttered its way to its first "success-ful" forays into the air, despite beaked wings. The rocket traveled more than 1,000 feet. Loaded with 6,146 pieces of stamp collector's mail in a two-and-a-half-mile flight from Greenwood Lake, N.Y., to Hewitt, N.Y. The test was officially termed a "success" because the rocket had supposedly crossed all hills—about 400 feet above the lake-off, where the postmaster of Hewitt unloaded the mail from the rocket's hold and drove it by truck to his office. And now from the rocket's hold and drove it by truck to his office. And now through the rocket's hold and drove it by truck to his office. And now through the chronicle stamps of the first "rocket-mailed" letters are en route to gladden the hearts of stamp-collectors. The glider and its motor were designed by Fritz W. Kendel, scientist and rocket pioneer. Here is the take-off of the "successful" flight.

BUT THEY CAN'T FIND ETHIOPIANS—A long line of Italia earthlery-men manning their short but vicious field howitzers as they lay down a barrage of shells under cover of which the infantry was reported to have made large gains in the Ethiopian lines. Shortly afterward the Italians scored their heaviest victory of the war thus far, at Amba Alagi, with thousands of Ethiopians slain and the Italians making a ten-mile advance to the south. The Ethiopians retaliated by piercing the Italian lines at Aksum. The difficulty experienced by Italian gunners is to find Ethiopians to shoot at.

WORLD RECORDS FALL AS VENSKE WHIPS CUNNINGHAM—Long-striding Gene Venzke of Pennsylvania, shown here breaking the tape and a world's record as he won the 1,500-metres in the American Indoor championships, has demonstrated his ability to beat barrel-chested Glenn Cunningham. He won by four feet for a new world record of 3:49. Cunningham can be seen striding along just behind Venzke. TOP RIGHT, shows Joe McCluskey finishing the 3,000-metre steeplechase run without opposition. It was the fifth successive time McCluskey has laid 'em down in front in the indoor running of the event. Irvin Folsworthy, a 21-year-old husky from Rhode Island, is shown BELOW throwing the 35-pound weight in a new world mark of 59 feet 1 1-2 inches in the same games. All these lads are probable Olympic timber.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., F.A.P.

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The work that is to become your livelihood—your job—is one of the most important problems you have to solve. You are picked on jobs, but which job is the job for you? Which is the kind of work you can do best and will be happiest in doing?

In every job there are certain difficulties to be overcome, details to be mastered, routine to be tolerated, boredom to be conquered. This is true of all kinds of work that amounts to anything at all.

Before you choose your job be sure you know yourself thoroughly! Be sure you understand where your strength and not your weakness lies. None of us is perfect. We all have faults. But try to put your strength and not your weaknesses to work with your chosen field of work.

Everybody wants money, of course, and every man is worthy of it.

However, if money is to be your dominating motive, do not choose jobs in which you will be compelled to give more than you receive. For instance, in such a case, leave all kinds of service alone—avoid the teaching, missionary and preaching professions.

If conventional ways of living are intolerant to you; go in for commercial traveling, selling, prospecting, etc.

If you feel you possess a strong creative impulse, prepare yourself for literary work or for scientific research.

Next, choose a job like that of railroad, choose a job like that of railroad signal-man or station agent, or take up mining or forestry.

If you like to sway people and possess natural gifts of mimicry or crave to be in the public eye, you ought to try to become an orator, an actor, a political organizer, or something of the sort.

If you shy at responsibility remember you will never succeed as an executive—at the top. Remember also that responsibility goes with every job that is worth while. The higher up the job the greater the responsibility.

Too often people take up the first work that presents itself. Perhaps it pays well. But what of that? No well-paying job will ever repay you for boredom and unhappiness.

Get the kind of work that fits in with your character. Then work becomes a pleasure! Then success is assured.

DISEASE BAFFLES DOCTORS

Toronto, Feb. 27 (CP)—Toronto doctors confessed they were completely puzzled by the strange disease affecting Mark Duck, Chinese laundryman, after almost a month of observation.

Duck was placed in custody originally as a leper suspect. But Dr. Beverly Hatfield, superior of the Isolation Hospital, reported clinical and laboratory findings did not justify placing the Oriental in that category nor could his condition be ascribed to any other known disease.

DEAD BROTHER'S JEWELRY

STOLEN AT TORONTO

Toronto, Feb. 27 (CP)—Thieves stole her dead brother's jewelry Bridget Mahoney reported to police Thursday night. Watch was a silent-ing his funeral in Barrie.

Diamond studded cuff-links and other articles owned by the late John Mahoney were taken by a burglary at her home, the woman said.

AGED MAN FALLS INTO DITCH

Ridgetown, Ont., Feb. 27 (CP)—Only the ankles and feet of Edward Gould, 80, were visible when William Carnegie found him in a ditch at Bothwell, 13 miles east of Chatham. Wading into the icy water, Carnegie dragged him out unconscious and applied artificial respiration.

The aged man had tripped on the icy road and fallen headlong through the thin ice, his condition was serious.

9 POLICEMEN RECOMMENDED FOR DISMISSAL

Sixteen "Establish" Innocence of Thieving, Probe Report States

Watt's Charges Found to be "Substantially True"

DISCIPLINE ISSUE

Centralization of Supervision of Taxi Trade Recommended

Toronto, Feb. 28.—(CP)—Dismissal of nine members of the Toronto police force was recommended Friday in the report of the Royal Commission which investigated Toronto police affairs.

The nine were:

Patrol Sergeant Sam Boyd.

Constable Michael O'Shea, John Bell, Harold W. Britton, William Gregg, Percy Cooper, Thomas Dinnen, Clifford McMurrin, Reginald D. Somerville.

Judges J. J. Coughlin and Duncan G. Ross, who formed the Royal Commission, said in their report made public by Attorney-General Roebuck Friday that "such a temporary decrease of evidence pointing to their guilt as to compel their removal from the Toronto police force."

Dismissal Recommended

They added: "We can see no harm in assuring that all the others have established their innocence. The others entered in were allowed members of the 1100 per cent gang" of 36 members of the force. They were alleged to have plundered stores in the downtown section on Christmas Day.

The constables named as having established their innocence were Samuel St. Aubrey, James T. Wylie, Arthur Wilson, Thomas Hamilton, Robert A. Ross, William L. Collier, R. Reuben, Le Roy Hamilton, Lloyd J. McIlwain, Raymond Oakley, Henry Porter, James Mackie, Ernest Hall, Albert David R. Sproule, James H. Telgmann.

Constable Ivan Y. Cullen, another alleged member of the gang, committed suicide a few months ago while the report of the Commission was pending.

Of the charges of former Commissioner William J. Watt, who served a reformatory term for his part in connection with the theft gang, the report says: "We understand it was assured by Attorney-General Roebuck and 'Mr. Watt himself that the condition that Watt has endeavored to fulfil a substantially true charge."

Watt told his story last fall before the Toronto Police Commission in investigation of "irregularities" charged by Constable Michael O'Shea, acquitted on charges of participation in the burglaries. Other allegations concerning O'Shea's conduct also came before the Police Commission.

From this investigation grew the Royal Commission that conducted a general inquiry.

Question of O'Shea

Commissioners Coughlin and Ross said O'Shea's allegations of dictation "not only justified but was in our opinion the only appropriate action open to the police) commissioners."

"Notwithstanding his acquittal on the criminal charges laid against him there was such an amount of evidence pointing to his guilt as to make it imperative that he should be no longer retained on the force," the Royal Commissioners added.

Disciplinary Matter

The Commissioners said they were satisfied at times Chief Draper "has created irritation in influential quarters by being too direct in his methods and neglecting the soothing treatment leading to disarm criticism that "occasionally he has made mistakes in judgment" but when he has done so he has corrected decisions they face into negligible insignificance."

The Commissioners made to draw regarding improvements involving the expenditure of public money for all of facts were not in their province and should be dealt with by the Mayor as representative of the city's financial corporation, on the Police Commission.

Changes in Procedure

The fourth recommendation suggested a change in criminal procedure, which, if adopted, would allow no provision for dealing with fallen of an accused to give evidence.

"The matter which brought about this inquiry was one of the kind of things which may, in the spite of the exercise of much vigilance occur in the police force, the Commissioners said. "Normally no one would dream of the existence of a thieving ring among police officers but this inquiry has shown that it did exist and great scandal has been caused. In a force of 1,000 men, about one in one-half per cent of the strength has been found gravely wanting."

Probe Highlights

(By The Canadian Press)

Eight constables and one patrol sergeant were recommended for dismissal by the Royal Commission that investigated Toronto police affairs.

Sixteen constables were assumed to have established their innocence in connection with criminal thieving gang of "100 per cents" of the C division, in downtown Toronto.

Ex-Constable Watt whose charges resulted in the inquiry told a "substantially true story."

Disciplinary matters should be rested in the Chief Constable instead of in the police commission.

Centralization of supervision of all taxi business recommended.

Suggestions regarding money superintendence in police affairs Commissioner Coughlin to the Mayor as a member of the Police Commission.

Lack of provision dealing with failure of an accused to give evidence should be changed.

Watt, who served a reformatory term, was approached to make statement of charges Mrs. Watts received remittances during his imprisonment.

Watt was "moved by grievance" and the exposure he made seemed to him an act of just retaliation.

Watt's evidence was corroborated generally by confessions, letters and money payments.

INCOME TAX BILL PASSED IN HOUSE BY 47 MAJORITY

Needs Only Royal Assent to be Placed on Statute Books

DEBATE QUITE BITTER

House Adjourns Until Monday With Heavy Week Ahead

Toronto, Feb. 28.—(CP)— Ontario Legislature members today were embarked on a week-end holiday because the customary Friday session had been adjourned for the first time since the present government; has been in charge of activities in the House.

Announcing the adjournment until Monday, Attorney-General Roebuck said: "Early after-noon session in the Throne Speech debate, indicated the possibility of a sitting or night sessions next week. Five government bills remained in the debate, which resumed after the Provincial Income Tax Bill was given third reading by a vote of 64-17. Only royal assent is required before the measure is placed on the statute books.

Hon. A. D. Roberts (L.S., Sault Ste Marie) started the debate, when he wound up the address he began speaking Thursday, after the conservation department administration.

Premier Hepburn (Elgin Centre) followed and urged other means of obtaining revenue instead of the income tax. He was given Premier Hepburn some advice on the controversial bill.

Charles W. Cox (Lib., Port Arthur) challenged the former administration policy of former government-owned railways, stating in the last 10 years, large areas of timber of great value were disposed of or individuals "for a song" and that "it is high time a return to the Provincial treasury" for the benefit of the people of these resources to the Province.

Watt 'Satisfied' With Probe Finding

Toronto, Feb. 28.—(CP)—Ex-Constable William J. Watt, whose allegations brought about a Royal Commission investigation of Toronto police affairs and in his capacity as the key witness in the Windsor Women Teachers' Federation bribe case, was "satisfied" with the findings of the commissioners, he told reporters, "I have an idea I will be before the Police Commission again. I'm satisfied with the findings now for his part in connection with thefts carried out by more than a score of officers.

DRAPER'S ZEAL IS GIVEN PRAISE

Royal Commissioners Speak of Efficiency of Chief Constable

Toronto, Feb. 28.—(CP)— The Royal Commission that probed irregularities in Toronto police force in connection with Constable D. C. Draper is had "nothing but expressions of commendation for the zeal of the Chief Constable in his attempt to bring the force to the highest degree of efficiency and his strength in resisting influences, which in his opinion, were exercised against him."

The commission recommended his retention as Chief Constable "regardless of fine, suspend or dismiss any member of the force for dereliction of duty, insubordination or any other offence." Provition was made an appeal should be taken to the Police Commission which now has sole power to discipline members except the cases of minor offences.

The Commissioners said they were satisfied at times Chief Draper "has created irritation in influential quarters by being too direct in his methods and neglecting the soothing treatment leading to disarm criticism that "occasionally he has made mistakes in judgment" but when he has done so he has corrected decisions they face into negligible insignificance."

Freddie, When 'Old Man of About 21' Would Become Writer 'Like Dickens'

(By Mary Elizabeth Plummer (ASSOCIATED PRESS STAFF WRITER).

New York, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Freddie Bartholomew, recovering from a throat ailment, announced today his ambition is to write books when he gets to be "an old man of about 21," and to become a writer—like Dickens.

Then he plans to write contemplative novels," said the 11-year-old British born movie star who had just been reading Dickens' Charlie, a saga of the saddle."

He then went over to a typewriter and pecked out the following: "Freddie Bartholomew is you, eh?"

Announcement of his literary intentions indicates prospective departure from the field of drama brought a pained expression to the brow of his aunt, Miss Mylicent Bartholomew.

"Can't you write and act at the same time?" she inquired.

"No," said Freddie, in his precise English accent. "I think it best to go to the whole hog."

During the first part of an interview in which Freddie said Greta Garbo, President Roosevelt and Shirley Temple are "marvelous," he sat muffled in an overcoat.

To suggestions he remove it, he replied abstractedly "later."

Finally he took it off, protesting violently, and disclosed he was wearing an Eton suit.

Then he turned around all the time in an Eton suit," he said plaintively. Thereafter, later he was still muttering. "It's like running around in the morning in a tuxedo."

Improved Appearance Of Men Pleases Mayor

"There's no use of anyone telling me they haven't got the money to have a shave or buy razor blades," declared Mayor Harry Hill in the executive office at the city hall this morning.

The Mayor's statement was in answer to some criticism received at the office from some of the city's unemployed who resented the declaration previously made by him that, some means to relief were spoil, they themselves for a chance at work by their untidy appearance and "a week's growth of beard."

"Soap and water are cheap. There is no excuse for extreme untidiness in men who are policed," reiterated Mayor Hill. "I want to offer my congratulations, too, to the unemployed who have taken the hint and opened up. Householders and especially housewives of the city who might have odd jobs to offer will no longer be afraid to go to their men one of them calls. I have noticed a big improvement in their appearance during the past week or so."

POLICE BLOTTER

Local authorities today were asked to assist in locating two Toronto girls, who have been missing from their respective homes for the past two days. The girls are believed to have run away from home. They are Jean Mott, aged 14 years, who is described as being 5 feet 3 inches tall and weighing 126 pounds. Jean is fair in complexion and when last seen was wearing a blue skirt, red sweater and dark blue coat. The other girl, Marjorie Dunnoe, age 15 years, who was described as being 5 feet 1 inches tall, weighs 130 pounds and is dark in complexion. Margaret was wearing a grey tweed coat with a fur collar when last seen. She has a predominate scar on her right cheek. Any information relative to the whereabouts of these girls should be communicated to the nearest police.

While answering a hurried call to investigate last night, when a "drunk" was allegedly causing a disturbance, P. C. Thomas experienced some difficulty. The officer was driving the police car to the scene of the disorder when upon arrival at his destination found that the driver had the vehicle very wet and would not function properly. The car took an electric light standard, but fortunately the only damage reported was a bent front fender on the vehicle. The officer got his man, however.

Although local authorities have been waiting for communications from Mrs. Smith's parents in Toronto, word has been received from them up to noon today. Telling of a warrant which the local police on two charges of theft, the parents of a child, the look-in D. S. store and the theft of trousers and a coat from a store. Only seven transients braved last night's wintry blasts and arrived at the police station in quest of a night's lodging last evening.

OTTAWA SETS UP THREE MAN PROBE OF PENAL SYSTEM

Justice Archambault, Harry Anderson And R. W. Craig, K.C.

WIDE POWERS GIVEN

Meetings Likely to be Held in Private at All Institutions

Ottawa, Feb. 26 (CP)—Administration of Canada's penal system and the possibilities of its improvement and reform, will be studied by a three-man royal commission, set up by order-in-Council passed Thursday and announced by Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice.

Mr. Justice Joseph Archambault, Montreal, a judge of the Quebec Superior Court, will head the commission, and will have associated with him R. W. Craig, K.C., Winnipeg barrister, and Harry W. Anderson, Toronto newspaperman, who "more recently" was acting managing editor of the Toronto Globe, Allan J. Fraser, Ottawa barrister, will be secretary of the commission.

Under the terms of the reference the commission will have almost unlimited powers to investigate and report on all phases of penitentiaries. It will study records of the past, methods in use at present, and any proposals available for parliamentary reform.

No decision has been announced but it is considered likely the sittings, which will be held in every penal institution in Canada will be informal and private. No commission counsel has been appointed and none is expected. The commissioners will visit each penitentiary and there study conditions on the spot, calling upon all those officials and inmates from whom they desire information and hearing those who desire to lay facts before them, or at least hearing the evidence of a representative number of inmates.

The question of whether the hearings are private or public will doubtless be considered when the commission meets for organization, but the belief here today was that the public would be excluded.

Resignation Presented

When the Liberal party opened its campaign in the general election of last October the appointment of a royal commission to investigate penitentiaries was one of the first promises made. Immediately after taking office Mr. Lapointe announced the commission would be appointed as soon as a qualified man could be secured to carry out the work.

Regular institutions are established at Kingston, St. Vincent de Paul, near Montreal, Dorchester, N.B., and in Manitoba, British Columbia, and Saskatchewan, also a prison farm at Sydney Bay and a Dorchester penal colony on Mara Island, B.C. The total prison population at the end of last fiscal year was 2,352.

Penitentiaries are administered by the department of justice and are under the direct supervision of General D. M. Ormond, superintendent of penitentiaries, with head office in Ottawa.

'Friendly Neighbor' Idea Keynote in Tourist Program

Canada's Railway Minister Reveals Attitude on Travel

Ottawa, Feb. 26 — President Franklin D. Roosevelt's happy reference to "Canada, the friendly neighbor," entered Union reciprocal trade agreement were being negotiated, finds a new application in Canada's attitude toward the tourist traffic, Hon. Clarence D. Howe, Canada's recently appointed Minister of Railways, discussing the urgent problems confronting the department, hinted that anyone there as regards the stimulation of travel from the International border as the one of the most important, adding that he trusted in 1936 it would be Canada's policy to extend with genuine sincerity the neighborly hand of friendship. The Dominion Government will continue its best offices to the promotion of the tourist industry as a great factor in international trade.

1936 Tripoints

Evidence is at hand to indicate that 1936 may see Canada's largest volume as a new high level. Last year's traffic registered an increase of some 10 percentage over 1935, and the agencies credited with fostering tourist travel, including the Canadian Travel Bureau, which is a branch of Mr. Howe's department, are confident of considerably their helpful activities. There is, too, the additional factor of unsettled conditions abroad, which means a diversion of travellers from war-threatened lands to the more friendly atmosphere of nearby friends.

Neighborliness as a keynote in developments of travel trade from the United States is no calculated policy on the part of Hon. Clarence D. Howe. His own background is one reason for his attitude. Montmorency born, he has interesting associations with his native province as well as with the Dominion of Canada where he has lived and worked since early manhood. His so many New England Sth, his ancestral home in Maine, New Brunswick, one of his forebears having been a cousin of Hon. Joseph Howe, famed Maritime statesman of the previous century.

Tourist Trade Technique

No stranger to travel, Mr. Howe appreciates the fundamentals of the tourist trade technique, and in this connection stresses the importance of courtesy to visitors.

"Through this department," he said, "we shall urge upon all branches of the government service the unlikely playground, the unfriendly port, the unfriendly customs official, the unfriendly hotel, the unfriendly restaurant, the unfriendly taxi driver, the unfriendly railway official, the unfriendly steamship official, the unfriendly policeman would be appointed as a qualified man could be secured to carry out the work.

"Regular institutions are established at Kingston, St. Vincent de Paul, near Montreal, Dorchester, N.B., and in Manitoba, British Columbia, and Saskatchewan, also a prison farm at Sydney Bay and a Dorchester penal colony on Mara Island, B.C. The total prison population at the end of last fiscal year was 2,352.

"Penitentiaries are administered by the department of justice and are under the direct supervision of General D. M. Ormond, superintendent of penitentiaries, with head office in Ottawa.

"NEARLY CRAZY WITH STOMACH TROUBLE!"

—writes Mrs. George Stevenson, Bonavista, Manitoba. "When it first started I was nearly crazy with stomach trouble. I tried all sorts of medicines. I got relief for the time being, but it never permanently. I was in bed for three months and I was just about discouraged. Then I thought I'd try Nuxated Iron. CANADIAN BOYS' BORDERIES?

Lord Tweedsmuir pointed the other day in a stirring picture which should encourage Canadian youth. He said that Canada has a physical border as well as a spiritual border, quoting U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace in his remarked recently that the United States had no longer a physical border, the true border being a spiritual one.

To the Canadian boy this should mean much. It means that as the Governor General says "there are still great tracts of our land which awaits actual exploration. A physical frontier is a tremendous asset for any nation, but still more is the spiritual one." He said that many of our rules of life are not eternal truths, but only working conventions and that duellers on the frontier, particularly the spiritual one, dare not be selfish or they will defeat their purpose. They must be of the spending type. Borderers are always clannish in the best sense; they realize the importance of the community as against the individual interest, for otherwise they could not live together.

Speaking particularly for youth, he said "It is the business of all our schools to produce not only gentlemen but Canadians in our own ways. An aristocrat is a man who gives more to the world than he takes from it." His Excellency praised Robert E. Lee as one of the half dozen great military leaders of all time, a man who turned down the offer of the command of the United States army, to fling in his fortunes with his own state of Virginia, fighting against terrific odds. Lee almost won victory with his ragged forces and when war was over gave his years to the healing of the wounds of the nation. Like Moses and Lee more are often tempted, he said, using the words "Egypt is the land of the safe option and the short game. Egypt with its wealth, its science and its luxury. But the sportsmanlike way and in the long run the wiser way is to join the shabby little people who are setting out with their pots and pans and their tattered tents on a journey into the wilderness."

Such words as these from a Scottish borderer himself, cannot fail to sink deeply into Canadian youth. In a few words the King's representative has pictured the way for Canadian boys who would find the great goal in life. Canadian boys like to be told they are borderers, for the name borderer will forever occupy a noble place in the minds of men because of the heroic lives of the Borderers of Scotland.

FREEDOM OF UNIVERSITIES

Oxford University has been praised for its refusal to participate in the celebration of the 550th anniversary celebration at Old Heidleberg University in Germany. The ground is that it cannot be right that the learned British world, the universities, which are the citadels and vigilant guardians of intellectual freedom should condone the intolerance which has emptied the German Universities of many of their great teachers and which in the words of the Bishop of Durham is "filling Europe with victims of cynical and heartless oppression."

The New York Times cites the anomaly of a town with a university as its landmark for five and half centuries, witnessing in December last, a spectacle which might have been enacted ten thousand years ago or a couple of centuries ago in the primeval forest. On that day in a university the last marks of freedom disappeared as one speaker said "the negro or the Jew will be the same world to a different way from the German investigator. Another was particularly zealous against Einstein and attacked Prof. Planck who was neither out from a Jewish science or a negro science. That is the bosh which the Nazis are feeding the German "Aryan pure-bloods". Scientific fact is surely the same for one race as for another. But old Heidelberg shouts "Heil" to Hitler.

Universities must be free. A university that is bound is no university at all. How can it progress, when it banishes men like Einstein, and accepts such nonsense as the Hitler notions! With what one knows of Hitler and of Germany it still remains a wonder that any man even to hold domination would try to instill such notions into the Germans and that the Germans themselves, who used to carry the name of intellectual freedom should be led so blindly, as to believe, as a New Yorker says, "in the present Heidelberg doctrine of blood chemistry and the sheepest antisemitism."

Oxford and other universities are free and show a contrast to the suppressed universities of Germany, which are a sight enough to make learning weep.

"Prayer", says St. Jerome, "is a groan" Ah! our groans are prayers as well. The very cry of distress is an involuntary appeal to that invisible power whose aid the soul invokes.—Mad. Swetchine.

Trouble and perplexity drive me to prayer, and prayer drives away perplexity and trouble.—Fenelon.

MOTHER EARTH ASLEEP

When Winter spreads his blanket wide
O'er all the rolling countryside,
And winds blow East, and winds blow West,
Old Mother Earth enjoys her rest.

'Tis good to see her fast asleep
Beneath her snow-white covering,
While stars their faithful vigils keep
Throughout the night, and frost is king.

Or while his lowly course the sun
Is taking in the hours of day,
Smiling upon the scene he sees one
Who loves us but a father may.

And when his smile, on stormy days,
Is hid amidst the clouds anon,
And nature, in her many tones and ways,
Heaps millions more of snowflakes on.

Yet slumbering earth does not awake,
She needs her rest, and well it is
Her sleep is not disturbed, 'twill make
For new and rugged energies.

When Spring arrives, and she must do
A mother's part in bringing forth
Myriads of precious lives anew,
Which in due time will have their birth.

Yes, wondrous are the ways divine
In man's behalf, His rainbow still
Betokens love for thee and thine,
And for us all His will.

WE DON'T TALK ABOUT OURSELVES VERY MUCH, but occasionally we just have to break out and talk to the Family for fear all would not appreciate as we do the wonders of the modern newspaper. Today we'd like to say a few words about "Mr. and Mrs." that very clever daily strip which draws back the curtains on one phase of home life and one kind of married folk. The artist may or may not be illustrating incidents in his own home life—perhaps it would be better to say that this is a composite picture of a number of homes, touched up a bit, of course, and let it go at that. Looking over the advance sheet of "Mr. and Mrs." for next week, we can visualize many laughs when the pictures reach the paper. "Modern Life Is So Complicated," will be shown March 2; "A Married Man Never Listens" is listed for March 3, while "A Martyr in the Making" will reach print March 4, and "The Great Button Mystery" will be solved March 5. "In the South Window" on March 6 will be enacted a comedy drama, of what some poor husbands have to put up with—and Mrs. calls hubby's bluff in fine style in the presentation of March 7. Talk about your moving pictures but "Mr. and Mrs." is a moving picture of home scenes which may happen every day if not in one home, in many.

FEBRUARY IS A GOOD MONTH TO GET BORN IN, believe it or not, for a goodly number of readers of this column have birthdays to celebrate in the month of February. Some days ago we published the names and dates of several well known citizens who started life's voyage in February, and since then we have learned of several others to add to the list. Here they are: William Clarke, aged 79, February 13; Albert Johnstone, February 16; Mrs. Arthur Harman, February 29. If other members of the Sidelights Family of readers, born in February, will send in names and birthday dates we will be pleased to complete the roll. Congratulations to all.

FIFTEEN DOLLARS PER MONTH, INSTEAD OF TWENTY CENTS PER DAY, wages for men working on relief projects is announced from Ottawa as part of a new government plan to care for the unemployed. Cash of $7.50 will be paid each month, in addition to clothes, board and tobacco allowances. The remainder will be held back until the worker is ready to leave his employment when he will be given vouchers for the amount of wages owing, payable four dollars each week. This plan has been drafted to protect the worker from getting rid of his money too quickly while looking for other employment, and sounds like a good proposition.

Good Reason

A parson was summoned for driving his car dangerously.

"Now," said the magistrate, "you say you were going at only 18 miles an hour, but the policeman declares you were proceeding at forty. I don't like to doubt either of you: Can you think why he declares you were going at that rate? Is there a grudge he owes you?"

"No," replied the clergyman. "I can't think of anything, unless it is that I married him three years ago."

Answers to H. B. Fetterly's Figures

Belleville, Ontario,
February 27th, 1936.

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer,

Dear Sir,—I have perused the detailed statement used by Mr. H. B. Fetterly in computing the totals of corporation taxes payable to Public and Separate School purposes in Belleville, and published in your issue of Tuesday last, February 25th.

He has included in the respective totals his assessments of about twenty-five partnerships and individual concerns operating under trade names and unincorporated.

While it would lower but slightly the amount he calculated would be the increase of taxes for Separate School purposes, it would be the reverse in the case of Public School taxes.

Schools here should take the proposed remedial legislation before the Quebec Parol System into Council, I suggest for the sake of accuracy and fairness of assessment in accordance with fact. Mr. Fetterly knows only too well that the proposed legislation will only affect taxes from incorporated companies.

His statement, though erroneous, does however demonstrate clearly and conclusively even Mr. Fetterly that there is something radically wrong with the present system of apportioning corporation school taxes.

Yours very truly,
F. O. Cushing.

SLIGHT DECLINE IN EMPLOYMENT

Beginning of February Report Shows 6300 Fewer Persons Employed

Ottawa, Feb. 27 (CP)—Employment at the beginning of February showed a decline of nearly 6,300 workers since the opening of the year, a report issued today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said. A total of 9,204 firms showed an aggregate payroll of $57,660 per cent February 1, against 963,294 January 2.

This reduction, says the Bureau, compared unfavorably with the average gain indicated for February in previous years, but the seasonal trend index, at 102.9 "continues higher than in any month of 1935, and is also higher than any earlier date since the spring of 1931," says the Bureau.

The report says:

"An analysis of the returns by industries shows the usually pronounced recovery at the date under review was that of a seasonal character in manufacturing, in which there was an increase of nearly 8,500 workers on the 1st compared with January 1, 1936; this improvement, like the year-end loss which it offset, was greater than the average indicated at the beginning of the month in the five preceding years for which dates are available.

"Within the group of factory employment, the iron and steel, textile, leather and tobacco industries showed the largest gains. Among the non-manufacturing industries, metalliferous ore mining, transportation and railway construction and maintenance also showed pronounced activity; the increased employment in the last two groups was largely caused by snow-clearing operations.

PAVLOFF, RUSSIAN SCIENTIST, DIES

Noted For His Research Into Mental Processes Of Animals

Leningrad, U.S.S.R., Feb. 27 (AP) Ivan Petrovitch Pavloff, the physiologist who became internationally famous for his "purely materialistic" theory of conditioned reflexes and for his research into the mental processes of animals, died today of influenza. He was 86 years old.

"Your son's 'Wiley' picked 'what' looked human life is based on reflexes or reactions of the nervous system to outside influences. This, the Soviet psychopaedia says, applies to "the highest human activity—apparently called the soul."

Crowned of both men and animals, Pavloff established a theory directly dependent upon his relationship between organism and environment.

The Soviet government contributed large sums toward his scientific work.

Pavloff trained two generations of Russian physiologists.

YOUNG MOTHER DIES OF BURNS

Saved Her Two Children With No Thought For Own Safety

Chatham, Ont., Feb. 27 (CP)—From burns received yesterday when fire destroyed her home on the Lawrence Kerr farm, near Merlin, Mrs. Sylvia Vandewegh, 23, died in St. Joseph's hospital during the night.

John Vandewegh, husband of the young woman who met death, arriving from Delhi late than an hour after his wife and baby had gone to Delhi yesterday to complete repairs necessary to the interior of the farm there and could not be located. The husband did not know of the tragedy until the rest of it in a newspaper at Delhi when he immediately started for Chatham.

The woman became enveloped in flames when stove in the kitchen exploded. Although badly burned, she thought only of the safety of her two children, Jack, five years, and Cecile, 3, who were in bed. She threw them through the window to safety; the children slightly, practically uninhurt in a snowbank.

Stirling and District

Stirling — The regular weekly meeting of St. Andrew's Guild was held in the Sunday School Rooms on Monday evening, 9th. 24th under the auspices of the Literary, musical and social dept. The meeting was opened with the usual song service Hamilton hymns, with the president of the organization, Mr. Donald Ferguson, in the chair, then devotional and business part of the meeting which was taken by the opening hymn Mr. Roy Juby led in prayer. The scripture lesson for the evening which was taken from the 23th Psalm was read by Miss Margaret Murdoch. Mr. Ferguson then offered a selection on the harmonica which was greatly appreciated. Miss Gena Gay, pianist, then gave a report of the activities of the Guild during which time it was adopted. During the business period of the meeting a discussion arose over the method of providing a special entertainment to be sponsored by the Society in the near future. Mrs. G.W. Baker, Mrs. Duncan Macdonald, Mrs. J. A. Kofend and Mr. Duncan Montgomery were appointed as a committee to make the choice of a suitable play and other necessary arrangements for the meeting and report at a later meeting. This part of the business was brought to a close with the Mispah Benediction.

The first number of the social part of the program was an interesting question period directed by Mr. Duncan Montgomery, wherein several of the members were called upon to answer a series of questions on some of a difficult type and others in lighter vein. The questions conducted along the lines of a "Quiz Kid" and created a great deal of merriment. All the contestants during this number the gathering divided into two groups one led by Miss Gena Spry and the other by Mr. Roy Juby to take part in a spelling match under the supervision of Mr. Montgomery. The side under the leadership of Mr. Roy Juby carried off the honours. Mrs. Montgomery then directed an interesting contest which marked the close of the program.

The ladies of the organization then served lunch and a period of social fellowship was enjoyed by all present. A great deal of interest is being shown in this fast growing organization, the membership of which increases from week to week. The executive in charge of the years congratulated on the fine type of programs they are providing which prove interesting and constructive to both old and young.

Popular Newlyweds Showered

On Tuesday evening, Feb. 26th, about fifty friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Leading, Oak Hill for a surprise party given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dedier, (nee Patsy Lansing) whose marriage took place about a week ago. The early part of the evening was spent in cards, a carefully arranged program that had been planned by the committee in charge. The first number was the bridesmaid's solo delivered by Mr. Ross Holland who sang "Just a Song at Twilight" during the evening. Lively community singing under the leadership of Mr. Wellington Hamilton with Mrs. Russell Stapley as the piano opened the program. Mr. Wm. Young offered a humor solo, accompanied by Robert Stapley on the banjo, which Mr. Russell Stapley also contributed a solo. Miss Alma Hanna gave a very humorous reading which greatly amused and caused a good deal of merriment. Mr. Wm. Young rendered a duet with Ross also. A vocal duet by Mrs. Wellington Hamilton and Mrs. Ralph Wright was greatly appreciated as was the splendid duet offered by Misses Dorothy and Margaret Holland. A solo by Mr. Robt. Reiley was Mr. Tom Hanna with a humorous reading. Several short impromptu addresses were given by some of the gentlemen present.

At this time the gathering was called to order by Mr. Hamilton the following address read by Miss Alta Hanna as Miss Ethel MacDonald presented the couple with a very lovely bedspread.

Stirling, Ont., Feb. 26, 1936

Dear Patsy and Harold—

It is with a feeling of keenest pleasure that we, the members of the Silver Valley Mission Circle meet with you on this happy occasion.

We truly believe that the step you have taken marks one of the happiest times in the life of man or woman, and we trust that your new home may be blessed with health and prosperity.

We are glad that you are not leaving our community, so we will be able to see you often, and still enjoy your friendship. Someone has said "The more we love, the better we are, and the greater our friendships, the richer we are to God."

And now, to put real meaning to our thoughts, we have great pleasure in presenting you with this spread, may this gift breath to you our sincere wishes for a long life of years as you journey through life.

Signed on behalf of the Mission, Fred. Best, Miss Ethel MacDonald, Secretary.

Mr. Raymond Chambers then read the address on behalf of the friends and neighbors as the bewildered couple were assisted in opening the large number of parcels containing gifts of every variety and description, including many cut-glass and crystal ware, linen, needle work, toweling and a large assortment of handy kitchen utensils, by Misses Helen and Nova Dedier.

Stirling, Ont., Feb. 26, 1936

Dear Patsy and Harold—

The large number who have been invited to your shower, not only tonight but on similar occasions will in some way convey to you your popularity and the esteem and regard which you are held in in this surrounding district.

Father Time is daily turning silently the "Great Wheel of Life" for each of us, but Cupid, Adonis, take pleasure in sharing the happiness that this "Wheel of Life" has brought to you in the beginning of matrimony.

As the Wheel goes round for each of us there is "Infancy" "Adolescence" "Youth" and "Manhood". When manhood approaches, close follows responsibility through its various channels. One of the greatest responsibilities of Canadians is the home.

This responsibility you have taken upon yourselves and singly but as one, united "until death do part". Your character, interests and activities in the past show as you already have a good foundation for a happy home. You both have already taken more responsibility in life than the average youth of this age. We have always found you, Patsy, interested in the welfare of your fellowbeing, and you have a sense of duty which you always carry out, regardless of self, in your pleasing and accomplished manner, being able to turn your hand in almost every attainment for the assistance where it is needed, And Harold we also can say of you that you have always in a cheerful manner been willing to take your share of responsibilities in work and pleasure as they came.

Thus it is very appropriate that we assemble here tonight to united. We five to you both our best wishes and gifts not only from those present but from many who are unavoidably detained. For the future we trust that as "Time flows turning on" that you will have more pleasure and good fortunes than the past and that the memory of these good wishes here this evening will also be a pleasant one to look upon that might be in your path of life.

Signed on behalf of Eggleton and River Valley Communities, George Eggleton, Mrs. Wellington Hamilton, Lindenfield, Warren Harlow.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Dedier responded in a fitting manner to the address and expressed their deep appreciation of the sentiments expressed in the many lovely gifts and wishes and extended to all of their friends to visit them in their new home.

The ladies then served lunch and the evening was closed with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne".

LADDER EVIDENCE THOUGHT FRAMED

Investigators Attack Evidence Regarding Nail Holes

Trenton, N.J., Feb. 27 (AP)—The ladder allegedly used by Bruno Richard Hauptmann in the Lindbergh kidnap-slaying held the centre of the stage today in efforts of defense investigators to prove the crime has not been completely solved.

From an authoritative source it was learned two investigators have asserted "proof" part of the evidence linking Hauptmann with the ransom to the ladder was "framed," and that a report of this will be made shortly by Colonel Oscar G. Hoffman.

The source said the investigators claimed they were able to show through X-ray tests four nail holes in joists in Hauptmann's Bronx attic—holes which the State contends matched four holes in the top 16" of the ladder—were made about 1930, long before the kidnapping.

"The Governor himself continued his attack on the testimony of Millard Whited, Sourland lumberjack, one of the chief identification witnesses against Hauptmann.

In New York last night the Governor made public testimony by Whited's examination which he declared "proves" that Whited was promised part of the reward ($25,000 offered by the Hearst newspapers) before he told his story. 16" of the ladder—were made about 1930, long before the kidnapping.

TROTSKY SEES ANTAGONISM RISE

Present Bureaucracy is Attacked by Exile in Norway

(By Leon Trotsky)

Former Commissar of War in the U.S.S.R., now living in exile in Norway.

(A Statement for the Associated Press)

Honefoss, Norway, Feb. 27.—(AP) —During recent months and weeks I have received extremely important and even alarming reports, relative to the terrible regime against the opposition groups in Bolshevik towards the Soviet Union is being described as a "crime" is that of criticizing the ruling bureaucracy.

My friends have requested me by cable to let them know the truth of this terrible fact.

A short time ago, for example, Doctor Gorter, a member of the Yugoslavian Communist Party, arrived from the Soviet Union. He had been in prison five years in prison and exile as a consequence of his opposition tendencies and his refusal to bow towards the leadership of the Comintern.

Cilga's Hunger Strike

In order to force his expulsion from the country, Cilga began a hunger strike. He was then fed forcibly by the political committee ling suicide. Thousands of expelled members of the ruling party are in similar circumstances, because they have refused to submit themselves to growing inequality, introduction of army-officer-like, dissipation and bureaucracy.

Zinoviev and Kamenev, close collaborators of Lenin, are now imprisoned for a terroristic crime with which they have had nothing whatever to do. Kamenev, former chairman of the political bureau, is kept in a cell with criminals of the worst kind. Last year an additional five years was added to the original five years imprisonment for his alleged participation in the Kirov assassination of Stalin.

Accurate and absolutely objective information from Cilga, Tarov and others prove increasing antagonism between the bureaucracy and the developing population. The bureaucracy is responding to this resistance to the sharpest repressions, not in the interests of the Soviet State, but of its own self-preservation.

DAFOE MAKES JAZZ SPOT VISIT

New York, Feb. 28.—(CP)—With a whole ballyard to the hurly-burly of New York, Dr. Roy A. Dafoe today headed down to the Big Town for holidays from his duties as guardian and physician to the Dionne quintuplets.

The little doctor from the quiet Northern Ontario countryside of Callander last night visited his namesake spot, Dafoe's Bar, which he enjoyed in With a party of friends he spent a few hours at the French and Italian restaurant, where "Follies De Femmes" is packing them in.

Dr. Dafoe asked no pictures be taken and a single flashlight photographer's flashlight broke the incessant wails and rhythmic booms sent up by two swing orchestras and in compliance with his wishes or "no little pictures" was made by photo newspaper—writer in sight.

The doctor and friends downed their dinners and a host of steady chorines not encumbered by too much clothing and took their leave. Dr. Dafoe commented briefly to the night club's proprietor and press agent: "Enjoyed it very much thank you."

Origin of Leap Year

New York, Feb. 28.—(CP)—Interwoven in Leap Year lore is that old friend of oversexed persons—the Egyptian cat goddess Bast—and a bet to do with it.

Bast is associated with leap years and is named for the length of the new-fashioned year. Their obsolete years were twelve months of 30 days, of the 365-day year, now Feb. 28th.

Once every four years, Egyptian mathematicians had to add a day to shadow. They did not know a year is actually somewhat more than 365 days and that the 24-hour shadows therefore were not exactly identical.

To calculate the extra time more nearly, a day was added to every fourth year.

"Wanderer of the Wasteland"

Zane Grey Etched Life for Action-Seeking Materia!

To gather material for "Wanderer of the Wasteland," featuring Dean Jagger and Gail Patrick, Paramount's outdoor picture company, coming Saturday to the Capitol theatre, Zane Grey, noted author, spent more than twelve years traveling through the desert wastes and the mountainous regions of Arizona, his son, Romer Grey, now associated with Paramount, revealed.

The writer took two trips on foot through the desolate depths of Death Valley with an old prospector. Their only means of transport was a burro and had anything happened to the long eared mule to them, both would have perished miserably in the heat.

The character, Dismukes, played by Edmund Gilli, is the prospector with whom Grey made the two perilous trips and Jack Holt, another star, plays Jagger, is another desert character. Both lives in Gila Bend, Arizona.

The desert towns of Picacho, Yuma and others in the "Wanderer of the Wasteland" are all towns that are familiar places to the author. Besides his frequent journeys by automobile and on foot, gathering material for his novels, Grey has a home in Arizona, to which he frequently goes.

Beneath the glittering color, the haunting tunes, comedy and exciting dance routines which adorn "Rhythm of Rendezvous", the feature attraction at the Belle Saturday and Monday, matinee daily, is a fascinating love drama which will elicit enthusiastic response from every spectator.

Presenting Warner Baxter, Mona Barrie and Alice Faye in the leading dramatic roles, this happiest of the new musical shows boasts an all-star cast of talented performers.

The story of "King of Burlesque" dating back to the days of the old love of the people of the theatre. Warner Baxter is the leading performer in the burlesque who has brought the technique of the 14th Century minstrel to an emergence on Broadway.

At the height of his success, he deserts his old friends, Jack Oakie and Alice Faye, to marry the daughter of a wealthy banker, Mona Barrie.

Through whirling, kaleidoscopic backgrounds and a series of adventures, the picture traces the grandual descent of Baxter to the abasement under his wife. Finally, cast off and divorced by his wife, he seeks out his old friends, launches his most daring project, to meet with a tragic ending. The cast of this picture shows Baxter and Miss Faye happily rejoined in the leading roles of the picture, supervised by the versatile Kenneth McGowan, the picture boasts of a gay array of "Girls" from the pen of Ted Koehler and Jimmy McHugh, featuring "Rhythm, Swing High", "Spreadin' Rhythm Around" are the entrancing tunes that you'll be soon humming.

Judith Judge, the pert Ritz comedienne, Gregory Ratoff, Fats Waller, Kenny Baker, popular Fox radio star, Arthur Jarvis, Jolo Radio program, Nick Long, Jr., and the Fayettes always only a few of the big names in the cast that make "King of Burlesque" one of the gayest, liveliest and above all heart-warming human romantic musical comedy dramas of the year.

"Every Saturday Night"

One of the happiest, scrappiest family pictures of the year, is "Every Saturday Night," the current Belleville comedy-drama of a typical family, announced as the added feature attraction on the same program.

The hilarious comedy-drama of home-and-hungry dad driven frantic by a gang of step-on-the-toes kids features Jane Lang, Tommy Bupp, Jed Prouty and Spring Byington.

The story of "Every Saturday Night" which is based on the play written by Katharine Kavanaugh, depicts the trials and tribulations found in the modern home.

Under James Tinling's imaginative direction, the entire cast of "Every Saturday Night" offers sparkling spontaneous performances. In addition to the capable performances of Jed Prouty, June Lang, Thomas Beck and Spring Byington, the picture is blessed with one of Florence Roberts, Kenneth Howell, George Breen and June Carlson. Also Hedda Hopper, Marion Sisters vocalizing in a night club scene is one of the highlights of the film.

ORDER OF CINCINNATUS BEGINS EXPANSION

Saltis, Feb. 28.—(CP)—A growing band of unlikely persons, men and women, avowedly bent on making politics a thing of good, has extended its influence along the western political front today.

It is the new Order of Cincinnatus which came out of last Tuesday's municipal primaries with a clean-cut victory here. Leaders announced plans for a campaign soon in Portland Ont.

Cincinnatus binds its candidates to permit an inventory of all they own and to allow examination of their financial during or after their terms in office.

Gov't to Protect Home-Owners From Foreclosure Proceedings

Resolution Passes Parliament And Study of Situation Commenced

CURB SOCIETY'S POWER

House Will Amend The Copyright Act in Near Future

Ottawa, Feb. 28.—(CP)—Conservative leader Bennett has the floor in the House of Commons today as debate on ratification of the Canada-United States trade treaty resumed.

Mr. Bennett has already said he is opposed to the treaty and today he will tell the House why.

Other members SAY yesterday provided discussion on a variety of topics, most of them more or less closely linked with unemployment. When the House adjourned last night it was debating a resolution proposed by Grant Mitchell (C. C. F., Vancouver North), favoring a large public works program, and increased labor allowances.

Earlier it adopted a resolution from Frederick Lapointe (L., Montreal-St. Mary), suggesting study of the claims of persons who reported owners to protection against foreclosure.

The further study the House sent to its committee on industrial and international relations the proposal of Thomas Reid (Lib. New Westminster), that shipping companies receiving subsidies from the government be compelled to employ white Canadian seamen in place of orientals.

Vote Down Resolution

Another phase of the Pacific coast seaman's problem was aired when the House voted down a resolution to exclude from Canada persons who not granted the franchise. The resolution was aimed at Chinese, Japanese, Hindus and Doukhobors and was proposed by Angus MacInnis (C.C.F., Vancouver East).

Mr. MacInnis insisted on forcing his resolution to a vote despite a plea from Prime Minister Mackenzie King that discussion be in the interest of international good will. It was defeated 196-18. All Liberals and Conservatives voted against it but a few Social Credit members from Alberta rose to support it.

The House also passed a bill to abolish the economic council on motion of J. F. Poulin, (Lib. Thetford-Mines). Establishment of the council was one of the "new deal" measures of last session but the body was not established. Mr. Poulin said the Liberals wanted to make a clean start away from the "new deal" and this was a step accepted by W. K. Kelly (Cons. Kootenay West) who claimed the Society was charging excessive fees for performance of any of some 2,000,000 pieces of music in which it claimed copyright.

Without a recorded vote the House rejected a proposal to take over for public control commercial, financial and industrial organizations, which were not functioning in the general interest. The CCF motion (C.C.F., Weyburn) was the sponsor and the only speaker yesterday for the two closing days debate, which opened earlier in the session.

During debate on the Woodsworth motion Finance Minister Dunning asked the C.C.F. leader if he believed in private property at all. His reply was he believed in such personal property as clothing, furniture, radios and automobiles and believed there should be a lot more of that system than there is now. He did not believe in the private property of large corporations which exploited the masses of wage-earning and farmers. Private property in public utilities and mines was also an evil.

Answering another question, Mr. Woodsworth said the C.C.F. had never advocated government ownership of farm lands. It believed the farmers were not only operating their farms in accordance with public interest but were one of the most significant factors in the country. There might come a time if farm lands were acquired for speculation or sought enormous profits by restricting the production and sale of foodstuffs, in accordance with public control of farm lands would be considered. That time had not yet arrived and was not in sight.

Amend Copyright Act

Another private member's bill to pass was one to amend the Criminal Code to curb the power of the Canadian Performing Rights Society. It was sponsored by W. K. Kelly (Cons. Kootenay West) who claimed the Society was charging excessive fees for performance of any of some 2,000,000 pieces of music in which it claimed copyright.

Without a recorded vote the House rejected a proposal to take over for public control commercial, financial and industrial organizations, which were not functioning in the general interest. The CCF motion (C.C.F., Weyburn) was the sponsor and the only speaker yesterday for the two closing days debate, which opened earlier in the session.

PLAY FESTIVAL IS LAUNCHED

Regional Section Opens Thursday Night at Kingston

Kingston, Ont., Feb. 28.—(CP)—Eastern Ontario's amateur stage talent was assembled here today for the regional drama festival that will be completed Saturday night. Then plans are to be presented.

In Convocation Hall, Queen's University, the first plays were presented last night by groups from Brockville, Ottawa, Carleton and Queen's. The adjudicator, Allan Wade, commended directors on their recommended position out in some cases where improvement could be made.

He referred to the fact marks are not given in the drama festival competition, to stimulate groups to try something at the top or their own level. Prizes are given under the convenorship of Prof. J. A. Corbett.

The following plays were given last night "Tea at the Ritz" directed by Lady Tweedsmuir, presented by the Ottawa Drama League; "Land of Faith," directed Sayle, presented by the Brockville Theatre Guild; "Flood Line" by Merrill Denison, directed Saiesman, presented by the Carleton Players' Club; and "Bars of a Fourth" by Rica. Mc-Lean Farquharson, presented by the Queen's University Club.

Other groups to present plays today and tomorrow are the Young Theopians of Belleville, the Newburgh Players' Guild, Queen's University Dramatic Guild, the Albert Players of Belleville, the Prince Edward Drama Club and the Kingston Drama Group.

Pinch-Hitting Physician Won't Pick Favorite

Callander, Feb. 28.—(CP)—Dr. Harold A. Williams, pinch-hitting Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe as medical guardian for the Dionne quintuplets, declined to select a favorite as the famous children celebrated their 21-month birthday today. In the feminine triumvirate of physicians, they were just "five wonderful little girls" and he admitted he could not tell one from the other.

Dr. Williams was one of the big thrills of his life to be permitted to care for the five tots. Dr. Dafoe, who returned to Callander from New York last night, was expected to be the splendid way he "brought the goods . . . home safe and sound." Meanwhile the pudgy little doctor, who has become famous overnight because the five Little Dionnes were not born on different dates, boldly declared, on New York, that he was "glad to be back."

During the last month the quintuplets have made much progress in all setting weight, their tiny legs gaining strength daily, allowing them to walk about, without any assistance and play in the cozy nursery surrounding their lonely hospital home two-and-one-half miles from Callander.

THE GOING FOR CATS—With city officials and animal lovers from Toronto to Calgary talking about putting bells on cats to warn birds and also lionizing the pussies, this cat and the photographer conspired to show what a bell on its neck looks like if such suggestions ever materialized.

Franchot Tone and Bette Davis in co-starred in "Dangerous," one of the year's outstanding dramas, at the Bells tonight only.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied by Eggar and Crawford Members Toronto Stock Exchange

Another Public Sip Control of Sacco Gold Mines Limited seems imminent as the time announced that the Old Board Shareholders' Committee is organizing a fight. The Call has appeared for the Old Board Shareholders' Committee, which includes Hon. C. H. Cahan, K.C., Chairman; Col. Frank Peet, G. F. Coyle, Paul Bangay, B.A., K.C., Major H. C. Hamilton, D.S.O., M.C., all of Montreal, and Norman J. Ross of Toronto. This committee holds the largest individual shareholders of the company and who are opposed to the consolidation of all offices and assets of the company's properties, which are extensive, as against acquiring and exploring outside properties.

The fight is being centralized in Ontario and Quebec and the Old Board Shareholders' Committee has announced its intention of leading Ontario representation on the board of directors if it is successful.

Ore Reserves of McKenzie Red Lake Being Extended

McKenzie Red Lake Gold Mines is fast building up a heavy backlog of developed ore both in the main shaft and new zone, which is found to be reflected financially in estimates this spring, provided there is no further expansion some time during 1936. Current milling tonnage is up close to 100 tons daily and during January 40 percent of milled came from development headings and 60 percent from stopes. Ore from that source in the previous month was in the 50 - 50 ratio. Increased development with only limited expansion of the present stopes, grade does not seem to suffer very much for through the last half of 1935 it held at 0.29 ounce after 15 percent scoring.

The decline which got under way from the high of 2.50 is indicative that we are still in a trend of rising prices. The public buying power is at a great, and there is much investment funds seeking an outlet. Most of the better issues are picked up on all setbacks. Until the 1929 peak prices change downward, or some unforeseen development occurs, the trend of least resistance will continue upward.

A shake-out from time to time has a healthy effect, as it lends stability to the market and is a technical position of the maglet under has in large part forgotten the dull and inactive years from 1923 and early 1933. Recovery is all but complete on the list of respected securities, which represent business, should follow the construction trend.

Dividend payments by Canadian corporations to their stockholders during January, 1936, of $4,360,842 were highest for any similar month since 1931. The increase corresponding month of 1935 distributions amounted to $3,776,000 and for February 1934 to $4,097,000. For the first two months of the current year dividends totalling $8,457,842 were announced compared with $7,876,556 for the corresponding months of 1935, and $10,880,093 for similar period of 1934.

Shareholders of Ford of Canada will be interested to learn that production of Ford cars and trucks in Canada during January numbered 13,-... for the month, 10,607 cars and ... the same month of 1935. The record steadiness in the shares of Ford of Canada has given rise to the likelihood of the directors giving consideration to the matter of a dividend distribution. The tardiness of the dividend has been due to a good deal of disappointed selling. Europe is Being Watched by Traders

Attitude of Europe is being carefully watched by the average stock broker and trader for signs of a change in the attitude of foreigners, but none is forthcoming.

Same Number of Employees As Before

There were about the same number of employees on the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey as on... Bayonne plant, Feb. 1, according to the official publication of the company. The typical shareholder is a man, 45 years old, who owns 100 shares with 195 shares of stock, par value, $4475.

Lake Shore Mines

From the start of production, March, 1918, to the present, Lake Shore Mines has paid 1,000 dividends a total of 8,838,763 tons of ore have been milled, yielding 2,944,254 oz. of 710,958.20. A total of $41,050,000 in dividends has been paid to shareholders from commencement of operations in 1918 to the end of 1935.

The policy of the company, it is stated, is to maintain the rate of once approximately $18,000,000 of ore has been developed, which is a minimum of forward development required to keep ore reserves and conditions in good working order. The present 2,500 and 3,300 tons a day, and no change in the rate is anticipated. Under the present unsettled world conditions, however, it is impossible to estimate future dividends. However, should nothing unforeseen occur the company should continue an annual payment of four dividends of forty cents each, or a total of forty cents each, it is officially stated.

Domestic Help Hits Conditions Says 'Worse Than in Nero's Day'

Halifax, Feb. 26 (CP)—A group of Halifax domestic workers, out-of-work in many working conditions moved today for stronger organization as they attempted to turn the spotlight on Mr. and Mrs. Employer of Domestic Help.

Miss G. Sydney and Mrs. George Horne, secretary and president of the Women's Federated Union, urged temporary affiliation of the unorganized servant girls with the adult body to obtain legislation for betterment of conditions.

"The way Halifax women are treating their domestic help is worse than in the days of Nero," charged Mrs. M. Murphy. Union organizer, as the girls swapped stories of alleged hardship.

One girl was given nothing but a horse blanket for bed clothing and on numerous mornings was deprived of tea for her mistress, a doctor's wife, insisted on riding in the saddle blanket. Another girl, her early morning canteen, she told the meeting.

Charges were made that girls in their home had to go without meals while the pet animals enjoyed a regal repast. Some of the girls were receiving wages of $4 a month, working 12 hours a day, it was alleged. Names and addresses of complainants were withheld.

Boston's Win Over Maroons Allows Toronto to Top Section

SEASON NEARLY OVER

Rangers in Tough Spot After Their Loss to Red Wings

(By Elmer Dolmage)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Eight games to go, New York Rangers staggered away from Detroit and towards Chicago today, moaning behind their lost chance of reaching the National Hockey League playoffs. The Blueshirts are not counted out yet, but they're hanging on the ropes.

While Detroit Red Wings were whipping Cook Rangers 6-2 last night in Detroit, the courageous Boston Bruins put over a 3-1 victory at the expense of Montreal Maroons, creeping to within a single point of Rangers. Since the Bruins have nine games to play, they have an even chance of overhauling Rangers and capturing the third American Division playoff place.

The overhauling may take place Sunday night. Rangers play the Chicago Black Hawks in Chicago, while the Bruins have a somewhat easier job. They play the Americans in New York. A Ranger loss and a Bruin win might eliminate Lester Patrick's Club from the Post-season series for the first time.

Little Charles Lewis was back on Detroit's string line, recovered from injuries, but Jack Shill, Detroit's flamboyant rover, was out through nine games without defeat. Lewis scored the first period after Hec Kilrea had sent the Wings ahead with the first goal.

Johnny Sorrell and Wally Kilrea did the rest of the scoring for Detroit while Allan Shields, Ranger goalie, could beat Normie Smith when Frank's Junior Ace scored Goals and Babe Pratt. The high-scoring Cecil Dillon was held in check.

A determined Boston team held Maroons in check and whipped Lester Patrick's Club for the second time in a row before the Stanley Cup Champions could do anything about it. Cowley, Weiland sank a relay from Red Beattie and Charlie Sands in the first period and Bill Cowley made it 3-0 late in the third period. Fifty seconds later Joe Cook beat Lord and the only Montreal goal.

Thay Thompson turned in a great goal-tending performance as Montreal Maroons from passing the idle Toronto Maple Leafs, leading the Canadiens' group by one point.

FIGURE SKATING

In a brilliant program of Junior events yesterday, Ralph McCreath and Dorothy Berg, both of Toronto, captured the men and women's singles championships. A Montreal pair of Audrey Scott and Harrison Thomson skated expertly to win the pairs.

The seniors will skate through figure and compulsory figures today. Results include such singles stars as Eleanor O'Meara of Toronto, Louise Dandurand of Ottawa, Phillis Ann of Winnipeg, Osborne Colson of Toronto and Wingate Smallis of Quebec. Two Ottawa teams will contest the senior fours.

Though McCreath won the championship, it was 14-year-old Percy Bronk, of the Quebec Winter Club, who drew the crowd's greatest applause. Jack Vigeon, Toronto, Peter Chambre, Ottawa, Charles Ashwith, Jr., Montreal, Donald Gilchrist, Toronto, Harrison Thomson and Pierre Trahan finished in that order behind McCreath.

Miss Caley gave a peerless performance in the Women's Division. She was followed closely by Mary Rose Thacker of Winnipeg, and Phillinda Wilson of Toronto. The McCarthy Sisters of London, 13-year-old Norah and 10-year-old Theresa, gave creditable performances. Norah finished sixth, Theresa eighth.

Behind Miss Joyce and Thomson in the pairs were Winnipeg's Betty Riley and Jack Kilgour and Margaret Symington and Charles Ashwith of Montreal. Ruth Hall and Sandy McKechnie of Toronto finished fourth.

CHAMPIONS CROWNED

Winnipeg, Feb. 28.—(CP)—Winnipeg Rangers are Manitoba's second hockey champions today. They won the title here last night by defeating Olympics in a third and deciding contest 3-1. Rangers won the first tussle 1-0 with the second ending in a 1-1 deadlock after 10 minutes overtime.

"Redmen" Confident They Can "Overcome and Three Goal Lead

Confident they can overcome the Whitby Red Wings' three goal advantage, the Belleville Redmen cleared the decks for the second game of the third round in the O.H.A. intermediate "B" O.H.A. third-round to be staged at Belleville Arena tonight. The "Red Wings" were nine town riding on the crest of a three goal advantage gained in the first game of the round and are equally confident they can win the game tonight. With their own sallback, but with their backs to the wall and facing elimination by defeat, the "Redmen" are expected to rise to heights this evening and return to form.

Manager Thomas and three assistant coaches who followed the locals to Whitby, all returned home bewailing the fact that the "Red Shirtmen" played away below form in Whitby and predicted a reversal in the score in Belleville providing the locals returned to their customary form. Changes will be made in the line-up, both coaches announced today, while W. Stevens, secretary of the O.H.A. refused the Belleville request for a change of referees and named A. W. "Army" Armstrong as the official to take charge of the game. If being pointed out by the O.H.A. having been previously appointed to officiate in both games. The large pre-sale of tickets indicates a crowd of capacity for tonight's intermediate O.H.A. fixture.

The names, positions and numbers of the players on both teams are they will line-up locally:

Representative German Team Blanked 9-0 In Last Victory

Hamburg, Germany, Feb. 28.—(CP Cable)—The touring Canadian Olympic Hockey team, playing its three European countries since the games ended, has won six six exhibition games in a row.

The most one-sided score they have registered so far was made here last night, when a representative German team was blanked 9-0 by the Canadians.

The Olympians, in addition to winning these six games, played in Munich, 17 with the Port Arthur members of the team opposing those from Montreal, Toronto and elsewhere. The Lakehead lads won 8-5.

Subsequently they defeated a German team in Munich, two Austrian teams in Vienna, but Czechoslovakian teams in Praha and the German team here last night.

Canada scored 16 goals, while nine were scored against them in the series. The German opposition was encountered in Vienna, where an Austrian team held them to a 3-1 score and in Praha, where the Praha Sawa Club tallied four goals to the Olympians' five.

They are scheduled to play several games in Berlin and may also play in France.

Madoc, Feb. 28 (Special) Madoc Intermediates moved a step nearer a play-off berth when they shellacked Marmora by the score of 9-0 at the local arena on Tuesday evening. Madoc dominated the play from start to finish and scored two goals in the first, three in the second and four in the third. This game benefitters fourth straight win and they hope to make it five when they play the return game in Marmora. The game was featured by the keen power play and passing game, Akey was the high scorer when he banged home two counters. Calvery of the Marmora nets received a bad cut on the nose and was forced to retire just as the game ended when he was hit by a flying puck from a back hand shot.

Glenn Cunningham Still Best Miler Says Bill Bonthron

New York, Feb. 27.—(AAP)—To Bill Bonthron, Glenn Cunningham still will be the man to beat, when the mile classic of 1936 once more comes around.

Bonthron, the miler with the mule's kick at the finish, has been watching the rivalry among Cunningham, Jack Lovelock and Archie Mangan from the sidelines this winter and has formed first hand knowledge.

"Shooting Bonny," who plans to return to competition in the spring with an eye on the Olympics, met Mangan with the Wanamaker mile in 4:11 with Venzke second and Cunningham third in the Millrose games a few weeks ago.

"Venzke was the man in that race," said Bonthron. This seemed a strange statement since Mangan won the race.

"Mangan always was a serious competitor," he replied. "But as his feats this winter he's got to be taken more seriously than ever, but that was the best man that I met last night. He's come back a long way and I'm no doubt that cross-country running has helped him recover his old form.

"That hill and dale stuff has built up his stamina and taught him how to conserve his energy so that he always has something in reserve for a finish with the boys. Cunningham again will be the man to beat. I personally think Cunningham and Venzke are overdoing it this winter; in fact I'd say they're jeopardizing their chances for the Olympic tryouts."

CANADA BEATS U.S. IN LAST OLYMPIC TILT GIVING HOCKEY TO TIE TO ENGLAND—Canada won this hockey game from United States in the last match of the Olympic winter games series and by that victory gave England the hockey title. If United States had won they would have been tied with the British squad, but the Canada record the only goal of a tightly-fought contest. Here a U.S. player is taking a split for the puck just outside the American goal crease. The Canadian puck hounds won the miserable apparently, for a Maple Leaf player can be seen cornering the disc. Canada ended in a series in second place with United States third.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

In order to assure the very best of sheet of ice possible, all hockey games and public skating at the Arena were cancelled yesterday and last night. The ice surface stood up well under the recent mild spell and should be in splendid condition for tonight's big game. Manager Thomas' charges have rested completely since their 5 to 2 reverse in Whitby and should be right on the ball tonight. Both teams will be at full strength and it looks like a case of come early and avoid the rush. The Whitby squad, who are known as the "Red Wings," are equally as confident of victory, despite the fact that Whitby supporters would 'not bet a plugged nickel on their team's chances prior to the initial odds that Belleville would cop the rounds before the series opened, but no Whitby money was in sight.

If you want to exercise your lungs in song tonight here's a little ditty to sing to the tune of "Put On Your Old Grey Bonnet." It's an old chestnut that brings back fond memories and we hope it works to the same advantage as it did 20 years ago. Here it is—

"Put on your old red sweaters,
With the kly ral letters,
And we'll trim old Whitby in the fray;
When the game is over, we'll ride on a clover,
On that grand victorious day."

Although Manager Thomas requested a change of referees for tonight's game, W. Stevens, secretary of the O.H.A., would not listen to his plea. It seems that Armstrong was appointed for the series, and the appointment stands, so "Army" will handle the ball game tonight. Incidentally we have seen many worse hockey officials in town than Armstrong, whom we contend is strictly honest and calls all plays as he personally sees them. "Army" may err, but if he does you can usually depend that his mistakes are not done purposely or with malice aforethought.

Although no official information has been announced relative to Whitby running a special train to Belleville for tonight's game, the Red Wings' executive stated they were contemplating the same after winning at home. Apparently the Arena Officials expect an overflow crowd tonight as we observed they advertised for 12 additional ushers to take care of tonight's crowd.

Just prior to their leaving for Kingston to meet the winners of group "2" in the Ontario O.A.H.A. play-downs Tuesday, the Deacons of Belleville received a telegram—"Series cancelled, Belleville awarded O.H.A.A. title by default," and it was signed by Art Pollock, convener of the local juvenile group. The Belleville Deacons A. C. agreed when their group in the juvenile section of the O.H.A.A. while Kingston's College won the Kingston group. These two group winners were ordered to play-off, the winner to continue into the O.H.A.A. play-downs versus the last Ontario Park juveniles of Toronto. Last week when the Deacons stopped Nile Napanee and trimmed the Napanee "Grads" something like 12 to some small score, a contingent of basketball fans were on hand to escort the Deacons. After reaching Kingston they learned that the Kingstonians returned home now in hopes and advised the Nine Belleville winners, Reglopolis College to hasten any thoughts of even making the trip against the Deacons. Now the Cole-coached aggregation are O.H.A.A. champions, they are awaiting further orders from the O.H.A.A. relative to the date.

When H. J. Carmichael, of St. Catharines, was recently named as vice-president and general manager of the General Motors at Oshawa, it was a big break for Motor City baseball and sports in general in that city. Mr. Carmichael was president of the Niagara and District Baseball League and is an ardent supporter of all lines of athletic sport. Always taking an active interest in athletics. Now that a baseball-minded person is at the head of "the motors", perhaps the Oshawa O.B.L. team will get a well-rounded break.

While the subject of baseball it's high time that some action towards the rejuvenation of the diamond pastime was made in Belleville as March 15th is the deadline for procuring new players. We understand that various civic interested bodies and industries are being consulted as to the subject of the future of baseball in Belleville next week and providing the same get behind the game, Belleville will be once again represented in the O.B.A.A. come next June. Players turned thumbs down on daylight saving last year and baseball was dealt a deadly blow.

When you stock your nose out of doors this morning and that north wind bit you a beak behind the ear, little would one imagine that the day league baseballers are hard at spring training down in the "grape fruit" league, but they are.

Attendants remained at the Belleville Arena all night and sprayed the ice surface as soon as the mercury commenced to drop, with the result that a glass-like sheet of ice was seen at the Arena at noon. It is almost a safe bet to wager that the largest crowd of hockey spectators to attend a hockey match in Belleville, will witness the Whitby-Redmen clash tonight.

Here's a little sport note penned by Jack Cashaw scribe, which should substantiate our statement relative to the poorly lit Whitby rink. It reads—

"Belleville "Redmen" have got their work cut out for themselves if they are to eliminate that 3-goal lead which the Whitby Red Wings established in the first game. We doubt if they can do it, because the Whitby ice is "hot" when he gets in that well-lighted Belleville arena."

HUGE SYNDICATE BEING FORMED

Alliance Negotiated by Conversations in Amsterdam

Copyright, 1936,
By The Bellamy Agency

London, Feb. 27.—(CP-Havas)—Formation of a huge syndicate capping the great Krupp-Tyssen industrial interests of Germany with Japanese interests for the exploitation of Mongolia was reported in financial circles today.

German oil companies were said to be included in the combine with Netherlands interests participating to the extent of $20,000,000.

The alliance was said to have been negotiated at a series of conversations at Amsterdam. Efforts to enlist British financial interests in the scheme reportedly failed.

The participating interests have already partitioned Mongolia into areas of economic influence and railway zones, it is understood.

British banking interests in Shanghai are negotiating an agreement with several Chinese firms to construct and operate a railroad through the Yangtze Valley, it was reported.

The British-Chinese venture includes the construction of a railroad running from Shanghai to Nanking. Financial interests here believe the backing of interests in British Empire projects will consolidate British interests in the Yangtze Valley and assure the economic development of the region.

DR. DAFOE VISITS NEW YORK AGAIN

Spent Last Evening Witnessing Fannie Brice in The "Follies"

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(CP)—Dr. Roy Alan Dafoe was viewing Fannie Brice in "Follies" last night, resting from the business of seeing the quintuplets at Callander, Jr., Nov. Oct., don't get the measles or the whooping cough and grow up into normal healthy northern girls.

The good doctor spending his Winter vacation in New York said he had pretty nearly given up private practice in connection with the Quints.

"This is his second visit to New York since he brought the five sisters into the world and he hopes this time he will be bothered by the press and his populace but will be allowed to go whithersoever fancy dictates without the snap of flashlights, the shrieking police sirens and the staring faces.

He began by receiving the newsmen and photographers in order to get it all over in one big interview. In short he said the Quints were well and happy, had about $150,000 together and would not be spanked into them. They had no snowbaths but wore lots of clothes when tumbling about sheds. They talked and babbered away in a language of their own. I think they understand each other in their adventures into adult languages to date consisted of "non jamais", and "ma'wel".

"Hold your head up, doctor!" "Smile!" "Look!"

"How scratch your head like you did."

Dr. Dafoe did all these things and puffed his pipe contentedly. He looked up in Callander but healthy.

Little Benny's Note Book

We was sailing supper and ma said to pop, Claddie and Harvey are coming up around nineish, Willyum, I certainy hope you men don't spend the whole evening saying polly tics cuz my jod did the last time they were here." And anyway my goodness what can you possibly find in politics for such extended discussion? It seems to me it would serve a lot of precious time to merely wait till election comes and then go ahead and vote and forget the whole thing, she said.

You've got to vote according to the dictates of your conscience, and after you've listened to the politicial broadcasts on the air for a few evenings you're apt to find your conscience dictating a bit differently. Now for instants on Monday nite you tune in on Senator X and you're while he tells you in his sincere vibrant voice that Mr. X is the only candidate who can save the country from the fascists, communists and dicklers, and that Mr. Y is the candidate who is most certain to deliver it over to the anarkists and rackateers body and sole, not to say hook line and sinker, pop said, and ma said, All rite, then make a mental reservation to vote for Mr. X and go about your business. That's as simple as A B C rolling off a log isn't it? she said.

It would if you didn't feel it was your duty to listen to Senator X on Tuesday nite, and Senator Y on Wednesday nite, and reading how that a vote for Mr. X is a vote for honesty and decency and a vote for Mr. Y is a vote for happiness stepping hand in hand with liberty, well it still leaves us Wednesday nite and Senator Z who is the dark horse in the nominating accents of sincerity that Mr. X and Mr. Y put paid pardners to a vicious circle of gambling houses which will be pardoned forever and their ill gotten gains distributed among the voters by the uprite, deserving Democratic candidate Mr. Z. What would you do then? pop said.

I'd go to the movies, ma said.

And that's the end of supper, being stake under onions.

POLITICAL KILLING IS OLD IN JAPAN

Many Men Ready to Die For Emperor or Other Cause

(Editors' Note: The following story is by Wilfred Fleisher, Associated Press Staff Writer, who for five years was Chief of the Associated Press in Japan. Mr. Fleisher travelled extensively in Japan and has contacts and is personally acquainted with the leading figures in Japanese life).

By Victor Fleisher, Associated Press Staff Writer).

New York, Feb. 28 (AP)—Assassination, while not a particularly fine way of settling things, has been considered by the Nipponese as a highly honorable and a very efficient act of patriotism.

Killings and attempted killings throughout the past numerous years in the Island Empire have been directed almost exclusively to the righting of real or fancied political wrongs. Murders for money, or in the commission of robberies and burglaries, have been relatively few.

Hara-Kari an Honorable Custom

Hara-Kari, or the ancient custom of disembowelling by severing the abdomen with the family sword, has been practically abolished in Japan. But the taking of one's own life as a penalty for dereliction of duty or for many other reasons, is still common and viewed as entirely honorable.

Cabinet, police and military officers have been the victims of assassins in all parts of the Cherry Blossom land. The killers seldom attempt to resist arrest or escape. Their religious faith makes them martyrs to the Empire and, even though they are prepared to pay the penalty with their lives, they envision their immediate transformation into Shinto gods.

Attempts on the life of the Emperor or members of the Imperial family seldom have occurred, although an attack was made on the present ruler, Hirohito, a number of years ago. At the time, as Prince Regent, he was presiding over the ceremony of opening the Imperial Diet.

"Dishonor"

The youth who fired at Hirohito was adjudged mentally unbalanced but a number of police suicides followed this crime because of the "dishonor" connected with the lax guardianship of the Prince.

It was recalled when the Czarevitch of Russia visited Nippon in 1891, a policeman seriously wounded him with a sword. The Czarevitch, viewing a pointless crucifix over the spot where the Emperor's eldest son was stabbed, promptly rested his foot on the stone. This was a sacrilege to the super-patriotic police officer who immediately went into action to avenge the wrong.

Secret societies of "patriotic youths" have sprung up in Japan in the past several years, their members ready at all times to kill and be killed for the Emperor or for the cause to which they are devoted.

WOOLER

WOOLER—Rev. A. Pouller attended the meeting of the Quinte Presbytery this week and as the report of the M. & S. Fund comes in, it was most encouraging to know that every charge had exceeded the amount given last year, making a total increase of $2,000 dollars.

On Sunday morning there will be a radio installed in the Sunday School room, so every one may hear King Edward the VIII's message as it will be broadcast at 11 a.m. from England. Church service will begin until after the message is broadcast.

On Wednesday the group of W.C.A. workers of some twenty ladies living on the "Terril" Line gathered at the home of Mrs. Al Tuckaberry to enjoy a pot-luck noon lunch and sewing for the supply work was continued. At 2 p.m. there was a change in the afternoon program when a presentation was made to Mrs. Tuckaberry as Mrs. Tuckaberry and daughters are moving very soon to the 3rd Concession, Ameliasburg neighborhood.

On Friday evening the Town Hall was packed to capacity to enjoy the concert sponsored by the Continuation School, under the Supervision of the Public School teachers, Miss Dunfield and Miss Arthur.

JAPANESE SITUATION AT A GLANCE

(By The Associated Press)

Tokyo—Capitulation of the rebellious young army officers who Wednesday assassinated four high officials was communicated to the Domei News Agency; surviving ministers and supreme war councillors sought to form a new government to succeed that of the slain Keisuke Okada; establishment of an ultra-patriotic National-ist government seemed imminent; under martial law and patrolled by loyal troops, Tokyo was quietly ad-dilional soldiers and sailors main-tained order; death of a fifth statesman, Kantaro Suzuki, believed only a matter of time.

London—European reaction to the uprising in the Japanese capital was evenimate? Some political sources saw danger of a dictatorship determined to master all Asia; France was concerned over signa-ture to a mutual assistance pact with Russia in view of friction between Russia and Japan over outer Mongolian-Manchoukuo border incidents.

Moscow—A government newspaper predicted the attempted coup would mean a "further shift toward military Fascism."

Shanghai—Chinese officials believed if the younger militarists gained control in Japan, they could not remain in power long.

INCOME TAX BILL PASSED IN HOUSE

Supreme Mortgage Plea

W. A. Baird (Cons., Toronto-High Park) declared that the Government had returned to obtain anything at all the Dominion Government conference in Ottawa last December was due to proclamation of the bill amending power contracts, which Quebec power companies four days before Ontario's delegation left for Ottawa.

J. W. Freeborn (Lib., Middlesex North) appealed for the debt-ridden farmers and rural municipalities. He suggested a mortgage plan to aid the farmers and a system of Hydro charges to make power cheaper in the small municipalities.

Prompted by charges A. E. Hardy (Cons., Toronto Bracondale), invested against the Health Department administration, Deputy Dr. Roberts, in reply said the staff had been reduced, despite an increased hospital population. He approved the dismissal of district medical officers and the government's policy of giving health only to those, who could not afford to purchase it.

Opposition Leader George S. Henry had called Mr. Rowland the "evil genius" of the government and Dr. Roberts described the "evil geniuses" of the Conservative party. They included: John Aird, Jr., of Toronto, who Dr. Roberts said, had received $30,000 from the former government; the Dominion Power and Transmission and Abitibi Canyon deals.

Chided About Parables

Dr. Roberts wondered also whether Hon. C. Howard Ferguson, former Premier and later Canada's High Commissioner in the United Kingdom, was not an "evil genius" of the Conservative Party.

Mr. Acres suggested an increased tax on gasoline, a meal tax and a sweepstakes lottery to raise revenue instead of the Income Tax. He chided Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture, on the recent purchase of a $13,000 bull in Scotland.

Winding up his address, he proposed a "grand parade" to celebrate the opening of the Trans-Canada highway. One float, would contain Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests "together with his pet contractors". Another would be a packing company truck with the Minister of Agriculture displaying the prize bull.

Speaking of the bill, he said the Premier "is tied up to people, who take advantage of him and added: "It is no wonder you were sick, when you associate with some people". Also on the truck, he proposed to have Senator Frank P. O'Connor "with a bad three times he's been up Mr. Bennett's and Arthur Slaght".

Mr. Acres suggested another float containing the Premier and his cabinet, together with the "would-be premiers" Harris, Conant and Kelley.

Forest Areas Studied

Simon, 1911, Mr. Dec. charged, some 10,000 square miles of timberlands had been disposed of with little or no return. If timber dues had been properly collected, he said, the Provincial Treasury would have been enriched by $100,000,000.

Mr. Dec. charged that a racket in which fire-fighters were also fire-lighters existed in the north under the former conservative Government. He charged also the "fire racket operated by the Government in the Temagami area and their friends."

Establishment of a Board to deal with farm mortgages was suggested by Mr. Freeborn. It would differ from the Federal Adjustment Board, which adjusts debts of bankrupt farmers and will give them seven to three years without interest. They would be required, however, to pay four per cent. on the principal annually or as much as they could, all to be applied on reduction of the principal.

In connection with Hydro in small municipalities, he suggested a stabilized rate for five years based on the average rate they paid for power for the past three years. Additional power was given at the cost of power at the source, or at least at the average cost in larger centres.

As to the evidence of Wait, the Commissioner declared: "Having marked the demeanor of the witness, Wait, while giving his evidence, and noted the readiness of his answers, the fullness of detail with which he describes the various incidents, the way in which he stood the fiery cross examination of counsel, the apparent fairness and frankness with which he admitted other indications of sincerity, he has convinced me that he has made an honest attempt to tell the truth."

TAKE 3 TORONTO POLICE . . .

Former Reputations

The Commissioner said the men in the down town division bore high reputations for efficiency prior to the inquiry, Inspector Austin Mitchell offering to them as "100 per cent; boys."

"It was by a process of ironical twisting," the Commissioner said, "that that comparatively small section of the division, who later became suspected of belonging to a filtering ring became known as the "100 per cent gang."

Use of Term "Gang"

He thinks the term "gang" can be properly applied to the group notwithstanding the lack of proof of any, very definite organization, long found "the evidence indicates the existence of a number of men in the division known to each other and known to be ready to assist each other in acts of piety, sometimes more than piety thieving.

"The association that prevailed among them had something of the elements of conspiracy about it, in no case does it appear they were all involved in the same incident, sometimes the members acted singly on their own initiative, at times acted in small groups. The common sentiment that the facts disclosed as established, was that each was ready to help and protect each other and guard against exposure.

Of this group ex-Constable Wait was a member. He has been one of the group for at least ten years prior to 1933 and had taken some part in many of the acts established.

"Only a small percentage of the thefts afterwards ascertained as having taken place, and for this period were reported to the police. The great majority of them were either not discovered at all by the owners or discovered so long after the event as to make the reporting futile.

The reason for this is that the thefts were chiefly from establishments carrying large stocks from which pilfering in small quantities would not easily be detected. And another reason was that entrance was usually effected either through unlocked doors or open windows which it was the duty of police officers on their beats to find out by skilful manipulation or looks in any of which cases no evidence of a break-in would remain to arouse the suspicion of the owner.

"The Commissioners related the steps in exposure of the gang, through its leg, set in motion by Constable George Edmunds was arrested in a shoe store in the early morning of March 20, 1933. His arrest led to a searching investigation among other members of the force.

Constables Alex. Hood, Gordon Martin, Finlay Dance (nine months) Wait, O'Shea were arrested and tried in turn. All were convicted except Finlay and O'Shea.

"Large quantities of stolen goods were recovered and returned to their owners and the thefts were proved beyond judicial doubt," the report said.

Chief Constable D. C. Draper laid charges before the Board of Police Commissioners against Edmunds, Hood, Martin, Wait, Finlay, O'Shea, Britton, Dinnes and Schultz. All were dismissed from the force except Britton, Dinnes and Schultz, after an investigation.

Wait they said, was a man "who is more by grievance". He felt he had a grievance against Detective Lawson Mumberson who was instrumental in his arrest, they said and against Inspector Austin Mitchell and members of the gang.

His grievance against the gang, said the Commissioners, was they had failed to live up to promises made and written him "virtually abusive letters."

The exposure seemed to him an act of just retaliation.

The manner of Wait's evidence was found by the commissioners in many respects suspicious, discovery of attempted destruction of stolen goods, payment of money, writing of letters, and the only evidence of a number of witnesses.

COUNCIL FACES DECISION

tions meters were found to be from 40 to 60 percent slow.

"It is not a fact that these meters must be guaranteed accurate every year?" asked Mr. Stock.

"Yes, that is correct."

Alderman Jennings stated, that he was informed, that the ovens to be in perfect condition should be relined every five years and wanted to know if one of the ovens should not be relined at the present time. Mr. Hobbs informed the Alderman, that was correct but the company was trying to make the ovens perform their duties without repairs for this year and cut down the operating costs.

Asks About Dismissals

Alderman Jennings then switched to management of the plant asking why Mr. Scriven had been dismissed from the service. "I believe in Mr. Scriven, a man I have known for many years and I think he was not dealt fairly with by the Ontario Shore Gas Company. I am informed certain accusations were made. I have a letter in my possession from Mr. Scriven, outlining the whole case." At this point Mr. Conant rose to reply to these charges. "I think," said Mr. Conant "that the management of the plant was vested in the Ontario Shore Company, when the plant was purchased from the city and this is the first time that I have heard of the incident. No doubt Mr. Scriven was dismissed for reasons that I do not think the company has any right to divulge" and there was a murmur of assent from the council members. Continuing, Alderman Jennings asked if there had been any heavy expenditures in the past year and Mr. Hobbs replied: "There has been nothing out of the ordinary." The Alderman also asked the amount of gas, that was manufactured and he was informed that 38 million feet were made in 1922 at a cost of $130,000, while in 1935 there was manufactured 22,-23,454,000 feet at a cost of $30,-910.00.

Book Inspection

"There is in your agreement of last year, a clause regarding the inspection of the books of the company by a city official", said Mr. Jennings, and Mr. Conant stated, that the books of the company were open at anytime to an authorized agent of the city and he was sure, that the office staff would be glad to furnish any information possible at anytime. "Could all the book keeping be done in the Belleville office for the Belleville plant?" asked Alderman Jennings and he was answered in the affirmative.

"What are you going to do about the ovens, that are going to be relined again asked the Alderman. There was no answer.

Up until 1926 the Ontario Shore Gas Company received financial support from the Dillon Belle and Power Corporation or parent company in Chicago and the actual cash received from September 1st 1931 to 1934 was, $18,144.37." Mr. Conant. There was expended in actual cash $179,000.00 in that time which added to the $118,000 for administration and there has been no milking of the Ontario Shore Gas Company by the parent company.

"Due to contingencies and the changing of the financial structure the United Belleville Gas Limited continued, "the parent company never paid dividends after 1931 to 1934 and since that time the Ontario Shore Gas Company has been operating on its own resources. I think the company has revealed a real effort during the continuance of the economic conditions prevailing. There has been a decrease in operating costs from April to December of 1935 of $4,060.00 over the corresponding period and I think the company can do. There is ready to be put into effect a cut in the present time for the last three months of the year under the agreement and failed to do so, the months of the year are the slackest of any months. The placing of heating equipment in homes has increased the consumption of gas to a great extent in the margin of profit is not as large as for commercial purposes, but I think it is a step in the right direction."

Counsel Be More

"What are you prepared to pay now to clear off some of the indebtedness?"

"Well there is nothing more we can do than we are doing," said Mr. Conant.

Coming back to the dismissal of employees, Alderman Jennings asked why Mr. Lawson had been discharged, "He is in the building in answer for himself, but I understand that he asked the company to make a payment on a sum of money that was lying in the bank and to pay for it with the city."

Alderman Armstrong—"I don't think we had any control while the Ontario Shore Gas Company owned the plant. The Ontario Shore Gas has the full right to manage the plant and the question as I see it, can we operate it better than it is being operated at the present time."

Mr. Lawson was asked to speak but he declined the invitation.

Alderman Clapp—"I think as the Company is so far in arrears, that we should appoint a manager."

Alderman Arnott—"I have not taken much part in the discussion so far but as I see it we have an agreement with the Gas Company and from that agreement they are in no better condition than they were when the agreement was drawn. Do you intend or will you be able to make any payments on arrears?" said Ald. Arnott.

"Nothing more than we are doing," answered the delegation.

"Then," said Ald. Arnott, "the decision of the council will have to be whether they are allowed to continue or the city take over under the mortgage.

"There is a better outlook due to improved conditions," said Mr. Conant.

Ald. Saleman—"What is the net loss to the city in 1935?"

Mr. Conant—"About $30,739.00."

Alderman Saleman—"Will these losses continue to pile up at this rate?"

Mr. Conant—"That will have to be seen."

At this point Alderman Jennings apologized for his remarks on the dismissal of employees realizing that the company had full charge of the management from information gathered from the discussion and that he hoped there would be no ill feelings over the matter, "I am only trying to get all the information possible." The apology was accepted by the delegation. This closed the discussion for the evening and in the near future the City Council will announce the decision arrived at with respects to the relations with this company.

Dale Plays The Game

—BY—

Ann Forester

Dale changed quickly back, into her car, and started off. She felt very, very sick. . . . Jim would probably be the office when she got there. She didn't want to talk to any of the women here. With this quivering mood bubbling up within her she'd probably be rude to them. Thank heaven, neither Nance nor Melanie had come with her today. She wouldn't have to carry out the pretence of being bright and interested before them.

Saying goodbye to Nina—and resisting the tall end of a cool nod in return, Dale left the house alone and walked down to where she had parked her car.

When she reached it, it was to find Phil standing by it.

"You're alone, Dale? Let me ride with you?"

Dale's finger rose. Here was the very thing she wanted to avoid! The very thing which would add fuel to the fire of scandal which she already felt scorching her into the memory of Helene Du Bois soon caused her to weaken.

"Yes, in there!" Dale said nervously. In silence she started the engine and drove off. Phil looked at her, with some confused idea of avoiding the traffic, and then she turned the wheel and the car shot into the park.

Late spring sunlight, rich and golden, flooding the drive before them, flashed of newly leafed trees, of shrubbery, of newly leafed trees, of shrubbery, of newly leafed trees, of shrubbery,

Allan Cup and Memorial Cup Dates are Set

Montreal, Feb. 27. (CP)—Allan Cup finals will be played at Winnipeg starting April 7, Frank C. Greenleaf, immediate past president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association stated last night in announcing elimination dates for the Canadian title.

Eliminations will start March 29 with the Maritime winners meeting the Ottawa District champions at Ottawa in the first of a two-of-three series. The second game will be played at Ottawa March 25 and the third, if necessary, March 27 or 28, also at Ottawa.

Quebec's champions will clash with the Ontario Hockey Association winner in Montreal March 26 with the second game at Toronto March 28 and the third game, if necessary, at Toronto March 27.

Should the Maritime and the O. H. A. titists reach the eastern final all games between them will take place at Toronto, March 30, April 1 and April 3, if a third game is necessary.

If Maritime and Quebec winners advance the eastern final will be at Montreal April 1, 3 and 6 if necessary.

Should Ottawa be drawn against Quebec in the eastern final the first game will be at Ottawa March 30, the second at Montreal, April 1 and the third, if necessary, April 3, in Montreal.

In the event of Ottawa District and O.H.A. champions reaching the final O.H.A. will visit Ottawa March 30, with the second game at Toronto April 1 and the third, if necessary, April 3 at Toronto.

League Overtime.

Greenleaf said the Allan Cup dates would be April 7, 9 and 11 with further games, if necessary, April 13 or 14. In the preliminary rounds two draws and a win would be sufficient to advance a team to the next round. In the Allan Cup series, however, the champions must win two games in the series. Three 10-minute overtime periods will be played in all games if necessary. There is a provision that should Ottawa Senators capture the Quebec Province championship, games scheduled for Montreal would be transferred to Ottawa.

The dates were approved at a meeting at Toronto attended by Cecil Duncan, Ottawa, acting president; W. A. Hewitt, Toronto, Registrar, and others, Greenlea' said.

Battle for the Memorial Cup.

Ottawa will play the winner of the Manitoba-Saskatchewan junior championship, April 2, 4 and 6 if necessary. If Ontario and Quebec are winners Quebec will play at Ottawa April 4 with the second game here April 6 and the third if necessary here April 8.

The Maritime winner would take the O.H.A. winner at Toronto, both survived, on April 2, 4 and 6. Should Ottawa and O.H.A. survive the first game will be at Ottawa April 4, second at home and O.H.A. winner April 6 and the same place April 8, if ne

Premier Keisuke Okada Alive and Unhurt as Insurrection Suppressed

Previously Had Been Listed as Assassinated

REBELS SURRENDER

Minds Remains as Premier Until Successor Is Named

Tokyo, Feb. 29 (AP)—The Japanese government, throwing the weight of its loyal military forces behind an insurrection of soldiers, announced suppression of the uprising today and the reappearance of Premier Keisuke Okada—alive and unhurt—whose assassination had been listed as accomplished.

The crisis, which started at dawn Wednesday with a swift attack by the mutinous on Liberal statesmen and government centres, came close to starting and dramatic close tonight with the announcement that Okada had reassumed the premiership.

All the 1,000 rebels surrendered or were captured, the headquarters of the martial law administration announced. After Lieut. Gen. Kotaro Kashi's announcement of the end of the rebel positions in the centre of the capital, and machine gun firing was heard.

As far as could be determined immediately, however, the suppression was accomplished without bloodshed, the ringleaders in the revolt from 10 to 180 surrendering as various points as the government troops closed in on them.

Announced from Cabinet

The announcement that Premier Okada lived the four Liberal statesmen previously announced to be victims was made in the cabinet chamber, came officially from the Japan Times.

Kimbo Goto, Home Minister, who became acting premier, while Okada's reported death lasted, and other high militarists and ministers sought a new premier under the martial law government, was formally relieved of his post.

Okada's reappearance unhurt, however, was kept secret until the rebellion was quelled.

The cabinet secretariat announced, at "when the insurrection broke out, Premier Okada was reported killed in the official residence. Actually, however, it is disclosed the person there killed was Okada's brother-in-law Matsuo.

"Mrs. Okada discovered Premier Okada was living unharmed. Yesterday morning Premier Okada tendered his resignation to the throne, requesting Premier Goto."

Okada continued, however, as premier... When he tendered his resignation, Emperor Hirohito commanded him to continue in office until successor was named.

Body was Searched

The published report which lay in the snow in the garden of the premier's residence and hitherto searched by the rebels, Okada was identified as that of the premier's brother-in-law and secretary, Col. Denzo Matsuo.

The body was apparently mistaken the colonel for the premier in their dawn attack Wednesday when they broke into the house, shot the man as he sought to flee through the garden and established victim in headquarters in the building.

How the mistake of identification was still unexplained. Government communiques announced the three day siege on the block which gave asylum the heart of the suppressed shortly after the attack. The disarming of the rank and file of the insurgents was completed by 2 o'clock at least 18 officers—completed.

The government ordered the suppression of the revolt without bloodshed after the surrender of the leaders. The firing of a shot and without bloodshed after the surrender of the leaders. The firing of a shot and without bloodshed after the surrender of the leaders. The firing of a shot and

HOME AND HOME SERIES NAMED

Belleville "Redmen" Will Meet Whitby Here on Monday

Belleville "Redmen" and Whitby "Red Wings" who put on such a thrilling struggle in the local arena on Friday night in a third-game play-off in the Intermediate "B" series of the O.H.A. rake will again meet in a home and home series, goals to count, according to information received from W. A. Hewitt, secretary of the O.H.A. early today. The first game will be in Belleville on Monday night with the return game being played in Whitby on Wednesday night. In the first series Whitby won all home by a 5-3 count and the "Redmen" put on a gaging act seldom seen in one parts last night to win by 4-1 and tie up the round.

The home and home series was allowed by the O.H.A. because there are no teams ready to meet the winners of this series. Had there been a team ready there is no doubt a sudden death game would have been ordered but the O.H.A. in granting a special privilege and the district fans can again rally to the colors. It is to be hoped that the Belleville squad do not miss as many opportunities as they did last night. For minutes at a time they simply swarmed about Hurst in the Whitby goal, and he blocked, batted and pulled shots out of the net from all angles. The western team is by no means beaten and the coming series should be just as thrilling as the one just concluded. Ed Thompson, coach of the locals, said that the players came out of the tussle a little tired but without any serious injury and they would be in there battling to pile up a good lead to take to Whitby on Wednesday night.

The topic of conversation on the streets today is the determined and forceful game the locals made in their game and there is no doubt that a large outpouring of fans will be seen at the arena Monday night. The O.H.A. will appoint the referee and Jimmy Hillier chance of "Army" Armstrong again receiving the assignment. Probably a Toronto man will be named to handle both games.

FRED S. SAWYER

Lake of Pleasure

Leamington, Feb. 26.—Word has been received here by George M. Sawyer of Leamington of the death of his brother, Fred S. Sawyer, for the past twenty-five years an employee of the General Auditors Office of the Dominion Government, Ottawa and well known throughout the district in Masonic and Eastern Star Lodge circles. W. McMillan, C.D.S. Manager Is Transferred to Sudbury

Staff Tenders Banquet to Mr. McMillan, Mrs. McMillan and Daughter

After a residence of eight years in Belleville Mr. Wm. McMillan, manager of the Canadian Department Store here, is leaving today or day to take up his residence in Sudbury, Ontario, to which place he has been transferred by the company. During the eight years Mr. McMillan has resided in Belleville with his wife and daughter, many lasting friendships have been formed both in business and social life, and the departure of Mr. and Mrs. McMillan will be regretted by a large circle of friends. For the present Mr. McMillan and daughter will remain in Belleville.

In 1910 Mr. McMillan came to Canada from Ireland and entered the employ of T. Eaton Company Limited at Winnipeg where he resided for twenty years and rose to managerial status, being transferred to Belleville eight years ago as manager of the Canadian Department Store here in which position he has served faithfully and well.

Mr. McMillan is a member of Belleville Rotary Club, Masonic Club and Belleville Golf Club. He is a member of Prince Rupert Lodge No. 1, A.F. and A.M., Winnipeg.

Mr. McMillan will be succeeded in the management of the store by Harold C.D.S. by Mr. F. Conrell, who has successfully managed the Napanee branch C.D.S. for some time.

Banquet and Presentations

In order to express their regret at the departure of Mr. McMillan the members of the staff of the store tendered him and Mrs. McMillan and daughter a farewell banquet in the New Queen's Hotel Friday evening which was a very enjoyable affair. Various appreciations of regret were voiced at the severance of such pleasant ties as have united the staff under Mr. McMillan to which suitable response was made by Mr. McMillan.

A beautiful bouquet of roses was presented to Mrs. McMillan, a box of candy to Miss Nancy McMillan and a pen and pencil set to Mr. McMillan. Mr. Gay Wilson in the course of a witty and appreciative address took occasion to refer to the fact that Mr. Harry Bryant has spent the most years with the business than any other male member of the present staff.

The presentations were made by Miss Pat Kirby after brief addresses by Messrs. Gay Wilson and Harry Bryant. Then after many expressions of good wishes had been tendered and a pleasant hour or so spent socially the company dispersed.

POLICE BLOTTER

Bruno Zanini, sixteen year old Toronto youth, who was arrested in Belleville on charges of theft of bicycles and other articles of freezing apparel, appeared in the local juvenile court held before Magistrate K. J. Butler, K.C., yesterday afternoon and pleaded guilty as charged. A three months suspended sentence was imposed by the court and young Zanini was returned to Toronto by train. Inspector T. D. Ruston was given the custody of the youth and dispatched him to Toronto, where it was learned he was on parole from the Juvenile Court of that city. Young Zanini will yet be taken into custody in Toronto and subsequently dealt with in relationship to his breaking parole.

Activities in and around local police circles were rather quiet lately, no arrests or serious motor accidents having occurred. An increase in the number of transients to receive free lodgings at the police station was noted last night, when 13 signed the register at the sergeant's desk.

THE DRAMA

Three Charming One Act Plays Given at John St. Church

An enthusiastic audience, of drama lovers assembled in the John St. United church Sunday school auditorium last night and were highly entertained by the Young People's Society of that Church who presented three clever one act plays. "The Trysting Place" by Booth Tarkington; "The Bachelor's Dream" by Frances Beatrice Williams and "Elizabeth Refuses" from the novel Pride and Prejudice, written by Jane Austen.

Each play was of an entirely different nature bringing a varied programme of entertainment to the audience. Comedy was foremost in them all, producing a gay spirit to the entire setting. The audience of the past in each enrolled themselves and were a credit to the director, Miss Margery Lashbrook.

Before the curtain was drawn for the first act the Rev. Robert Hall gave an address of welcome and gave out the program for the night, declaring that the play "Elizabeth Refuses" was being one of the most popular request. It had previously been presented at the Winter School.

Mr. Frank Hitchon, baritone soloist was the guest artist and sang pleasing numbers between each play.

"The First Play "The Trysting Place" takes place in an alcove in a summer hotel opening off the main corridor. Time—the present. The background for the whole setting is made by Mrs. Briggs (Helen Denike) and her two children, Rupert (Ronald Tinline) and Lancelot Briggs (Sladen Kaiser) all become entangled in love affairs in the Tryst Place. Each seems to themselves that someone is listening to them. This was of course seen by the audience and was often the cause of many amusing laughter. In the scene opens Mrs. Curtiss, a widow (Donna Shalsworthy) and Lancelot Briggs in a love scene and Lancelot proposes to Mrs. Curtis, the latter's mother and pleter appears and as they are death against Lancelot. Later that night he is acquaintance with Mrs. Curtis, Lancelot hides behind the sofa. Jessie Briggs has meeting with Rupert Smith (Nora) Loney), also against her mother's wishes. Rupert meet at the tryst Place and Rupert confesses his love for Jessie. In the meantime Mrs. Briggs herself has been carrying on an intimate acquaintance with Mr. Impleton (Tom Hunt) whom she thinks is a gentleman and an old friend of the family of long standing. Mr. Impleton and Mrs. Briggs meet in the Briggs when a mysterious voice (Harold Kaiser) is heard by Mr. Ingoldsby scrutches the room in silence. Suddenly Smith, Jessie enters much to the confusion of her mother. Mr. Ingoldsby and Rupert come from the search for the mysterious voice and discover Lancelot, who tells in a humorous way of the love scenes which have taken place in the Tryst Place and of his explains that the mysterious voice belongs to a friend of hers who had come to see him. This adds to the confusion of Lancelot. All the players take a bow with Lady Catherine de Bourgh's nephew, who isn't entirely against it. She comes to the Bennets home and in a private interview with Elizabeth tells of the gossip and wants them to marry in good families of rin, incage. Mr. Collins, the parson (Elmer Doan) has decided to marry, because his belief is that marriage is a blessed thing and of late some, members had been urging him to enter on matrimonial seas. He is a cousin of the Bennett family and decides he will marry Elizabeth. He progress in a very humorous and unique manner which brought laughter from time to the audience.

Elizabeth refuses him much to annoyance of her mother who rebukes her in front of Mr. Collins. Elizabeth is pressed daily in love with Lady Catherine de Bourgh's nephew, who isn't entirely against it. She comes to the Bennets home and in a private interview with Elizabeth tells of the gossip that has reached her ears about Elizabeth courting with her nephew.' This some was very well presented. The foremost thought again in this play is that of Lorna Ridley as Mrs. Bennett by her quaint tricks of speech and walking which was presumably so prominent in this period when the act was supposed to take place extolled herself and helped to bring the audience in hearty laughter from time to time. The young daughters were very well portrayed by the Bell sisters, by their graceful movements on the stage, a predominate factor in that period of history. Mary Doan was ideal as the minister. Margery Lashbrook as Lady Catherine de Bourgh admirably portrayed the haughtiness of the character, she represented.

MENTIONED IN "LOVE LIFE OF HITLER"—A pose of beautiful Leni Riefenstahl, German actress, as she appeared in the "Blue Light." Leni's name was mentioned in the story, "Hitler's Secret Loves," which was published in Switzerland in defiance of the Nazi newspaper, Le Journal. Upon demand by Germany, all copies of the paper were confiscated and other papers were warned not to use the article. A lawsuit is pending.

CANADA-U.S. PACT BAD BARGAIN SAYS HON. R.B. BENNETT

LITTLE BENEFIT

No Revision of Voters' List This Year Says Rights

Ottawa, Feb. 28.—(CP)—Canada's two leading political figures, Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Conservative Leader Bennett can agree on at least one proposition, that a new election has no knack with it to do.

The House of Commons found them in complete harmony on the subject last night just a few hours after they were clashing in the acerbity of the Canada-United States Trade Treaty. Mr. King in his estimates asked for $10,000 additional to employ added assistance for his office and Mr. Bennett commended him for the move.

"The Prime Minister said his office should be organized in a more 'outstanding way,'" Mr. Bennett said. "Prime Ministers had not enough time to think and that is to do his meditating as he talked to himself walking up the hill. He was continually hearing important things through in front of him for decision.

On the trade treaty Mr. Bennett differed as utterly from Mr. King as was possible. He considered it a bad bargain for Canada, said "he could have obtained the same treaty himself, when in office but would not have it at any price.

Concessions Canada obtained in the treaty were small, he declared. They would be of no benefit to agriculture except to a small extent on cattle and this benefit was neglected by the United States in the treaty. The cattle business required time to rear stock and the treaty was only for a three-year period. If farmers increased their herds to supply the United States market now they might find themselves cut off from that market at the end of three years if the treaty were not renewed.

Canada had given all the concessions it could give, Mr. Bennett claimed. It had nothing left to bargain with if the treaty came up for revision.

Fears For Railways

It was a remark of the 1930 tariff increases and the empire agreements, that they had been added to make a contrast with the United States he held. There was nothing left now with which to bargain for a larger agreement.

Mr. Bennett feared the effect on the treaty on Canadian railways. Already, he said, manufactured goods for Western Canada were being supplied by United States industry of Detroit and Chicago because freight charges from the manufacturing centres south of the border to Western Canada were lower than from Eastern Canada. This meant less business for Canadian railroads.

Elimination of direct-shipment restriction on imports from nations enjoying preferential tariff treatment would also harm the railways.

Prior to the treaty such imports had to come through Canadian ports. Now they could come through the United States.

IMPERIAL GUARD AGAIN CALLED TO STOP UP RISING—From reports seeping out of Tokio, about the latest military uprising, indications are that the Imperial guard of Emperor Hirohito is again serving to put down the disorders. Details of the latest "military coup" are lacking, but it is known that Premier Okada, Finance Minister Takahashi have been assassinated, with other cabinet members and high government officials. Some leaders are wounded, some have been captured, and others are in flight. This picture, made during the 4 military uprising of 1932, shows men of the Imperial guard responding to the call to protect capital city against the extreme militarists.

this session many Canadian industries will be outpaced, said Mr. Bennett. The treaty gives the United States the intermediate instead of general tariff on all items in the tariff bag except on a specified list. Canada is left free to raise the intermediate rates. The government would give Mr. Bennett no indication of its intentions in this regard.

The House learned from Sir Fernand Rinfret, Secretary of State, of the governmental intention to bring in a bill dealing with fees charged by the Canadian Performing Right Society, for use of copyright music. The bill will be based on the report of Judge James Parker of Ottawa, who last year presided the society's affairs.

Bill to Stand

Sir Rinfret took on a bill proposed by W. R. Ralling (Cons. Kootenay West) to amend the Copyright Act in the light of the former report. At his suggestion Mr. Ralling allowed his bill to stand until the government measure should be introduced.

The House gave second reading to Mr. Rinfret's bill dealing with the Franchise Act. It would postpone annual revision of the voters' list for one year, the whole Franchise Act is to be reviewed by a committee of the House and in view of this the government considers a revision of the voters' list this year unnecessary.

In attacking the U.S. treaty Mr. Bennett said the arguments of United States exports to Canada even at the end of 1934 was $18,000,000 and representations were made to the United States government, greater trade concessions than those proposed would be required to offset the loss Canada would suffer by the treaty.

In 1934, 52.9 per cent of all Canadian agricultural products were consumed in the country, said Mr. Bennett. Only 17.1 per cent was exported. That showed the importance of the home market to agriculture.

"We proposed to make a broad and generous agreement provided we got broad and generous treatment in return and I say in return for the concessions we should have got a flat 50 per cent reduction on every item in the American tariff."

Peterborough, Ont., Feb. 29.—(CP) —Removing stop logs from the dam at Otonabee by Fish and Game authorities today relieved hundreds of maskinongé and bass which appeared in search of oxygen in an open stretch of the Pigeon River yesterday.

The fish disappeared shortly after the water was released. However, the occasional maskinonge was still to be seen jumping for air.

Large numbers of dead perch and rock fish were to be seen lying on the ice near the open water and a few larger fish could also be observed.

APPOINTMENT OF DUFF RATIFIED

Premier Announces Senatorship, While Member is in House

Ottawa, Feb. 28 (CP)—An event probably unique in parliamentary circles occurred in the House of Commons yesterday, when William Duff, tall, robust seafarer from Lunenburg, sitting in his seat in the green chamber, was advised by Prime Minister Mackenzie King he must leave the House because of his elevation to the Senate.

Mr. Duff's appointment to the vacancy created by the recent death of Senator Alex McCormick of Sydney was passed at Cabinet Council and forwarded to the Governor-General for approval. Shortly before six o'clock the Prime Minister received word His Excellency had approved the appointment and he passed a note to the veteran Nova Scotia member.

Mr. Duff read the note, smilingly bowed to the Prime Minister, and on amid the congratulations of his immediate seat-mates, walked for the last time from the scene of his labors for almost 30 years.

Formal approval of the appointment automatically vacated the Nova Scotia constituency of Antigonish-Guysboro which Mr. Duff has represented since January, 1927. Previously he had represented Lunenburg County from 1917 until the general elections of 1926.

Later in the evening Speaker Cragnan made formal announcement of the appointment and of the issue or writs for a by-election in Antigonish-Guysboro with March 31 set for the polling date.

Known to his friends in Ottawa as "Admiral Bill" because of his ready knowledge of marine lore gained from his experience as a leading Nova Scotia fish merchant and shipowner, Mr. Duff was one of the most popular members of the House and one whose contributions to debate were colorful and emphatic.

Rochester, N.Y., Feb. 28.—(AP)—With enough food on hand to last ten days, Captain Charles R. Redfern and his crew of 26 aboard the grounded car ferry Ontario No. 2 calmly awaited today a rescue that may be several days distant.

Workmen hurrying to recondition the ferry's sister ship, Ontario No. 1, reported their task would not be completed until Sunday at the earliest.

CANADA DID NOT PROTEST PLAYERS

sustained the ineligibility of the 18 suspended players, the other three not voting.

"From there on the case rested with President Lotz, who called a later meeting and suggested a vote be taken on the suspended players, who were under suspension to play with the English team during the Olympic Games only.

"The result being a majority vote in favor, Canada voting with the majority.

At No Time Protested

"One point I would like to make clear is that Canada at no time protested the playing of Foster and Archer, two ineligible players of the British team who were under suspensions by the C.A.H.A., Canada's position being of standing by the principle of having their decision on suspensions recognized by the controlling body, the I.I.H.F.

"Summarizing in brief I hope Canadians will give proper consideration to this fact, that 13 world nations supported our position."

His other statement discussed the search of arriving the hockey controversy. He said the system had been changed suddenly in the middle of the games "by not disinterested parties" and consequently, after being defeated by England in the semi-final round of the round-robin series, Canada practically found herself without "any further chance of winning the World championship."

Later he defended the choice of the Canadian hockey team. It was just as good as the Halifax Wolverines, who won the Allan Cup championship last Spring, but disbanded before the start of this season, he said.

Couldn't Do It Again

"You don't suppose the Canadian team would let the English team beat them again, do you?" he remarked.

One of his first questions was about the Canadian hockey situation, now getting down to the preliminary playoff stages for Allan Cup competition. He appeared particularly interested in the Quebec Senior Hockey League's series and the Winnipeg "Pegs."

There was no question of any Canadian Amateur Hockey Association officers resigning because of the grief over the Dominion's first loss of the Olympic title, he said.

"I've been misrepresented and misunderstood so many times, I am becoming hardened to it," he remarked, although Mr. Molyneux thought different in a separate interview.

PREMIER OKADA ALIVE, UNHURT

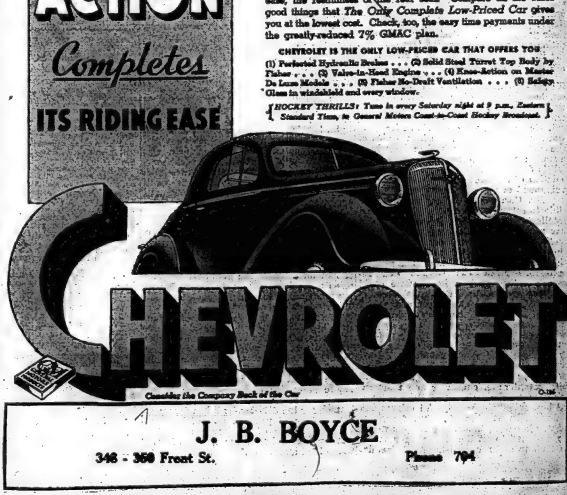
Premier Lonely

Premier Okada, lonely target for the rebels helped collapse the uprising, and the insurgents surrendered in large and small groups.

A spokesman for the martial law headquarters declared the rank and file of the insurgents were misled by their high official officers.



"The majority of the soldiers were ignorant of the meaning of the affair and blindly followed their officers," he asserted. "Nobody can find it in his heart to call such soldiers rebels."

General Kashii addressed a manifesto to the non-commissioned officers and enlisted men among the insurgents—but excluding their officers—asserting:

"By imperial command, you have been ordered to return to your barracks. If you disobey this order you must be regarded as traitors.

"If you return now, your offenses will be forgiven. Your fathers, brothers, and the whole nation are praying for you to return immediately to your barracks."

This manifesto was showered on the rebel concentrations by airplane, reaching the insurgents at the command of their Emperor, to them a divine ruler.

THIS MAJESTY'S BROADCAST

When His Majesty King Edward Fifth speaks on Sunday from London a message to his people throughout the Empire, he will deliver that which will be heard in every part of the earth, by his own subjects, by the people of the English-speaking Republic of the United States and by the rest of the population of the world. His Majesty following in the steps of his late father who early recognized the importance of radio in the sense of the immediacy and contact which it creates, will thereby come very close to the people. Through the ear many of man's impressions, which become his experience, pass. Everyone knows how intimately his radio speeches brought King George Fifth to the people of the English-speaking world. There will be the same sense of close relationship in Sunday's broadcast. It will be as if we met King Edward face to face and conversed with the monarch.

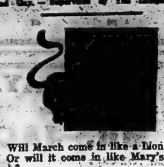
The world will listen with rapt attention to what King Edward, the latest among the great of the earth and the greatest as representative of the peoples he rules as king, has to say. For the King is thoroughly atune with the throbbing emotions and the spirit of the times which together with the experience and tradition of many centuries should make him the finest exponent of modern attitude towards the world we live in.

The day being Sunday, the King will be heard by a vaster audience than would be possible on any other day. Many churches have planned to instal radio sets in order that the message may be heard by the worshippers. Others are doing are planning an earlier opening in order to be in readiness for the King's words. Some churches are making other arrangements to suit their requirements.

The King's message will be laden with interest for not only British subjects but for all mankind, for King Edward in his outstanding personality in the entire world speaks it may be said almost for the human race.

FAVORS NATIONAL SCHOLARSHIPS

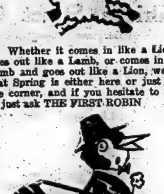
Fewer than one per cent of the people of Canada are university graduates, yet from their ranks eighty per cent of the leaders come, says a pamphlet endorsing national scholarships as a national investment. "In the matter of ninety per cent who leave school before or at matriculation, when their specialized education should begin, it is claimed there are many students, many brilliant than many of those who continue, who have the gifts of leadership, but who lack funds to go further.



R. Corrigan of the Canadian Corporation Training School considers the relation of education to leadership, and says eighty per cent of the business executives of national, industrial, financial and commercial corporations, including insurance companies, banks, railways, public utilities, engineering in all its branches and others are graduates of universities or technical schools of education. Today the student population of the colleges is made up largely of boys and girls sent there by their parents who are financially able to pay their way and to maintain them away from home which is a far more expensive matter. Besides these there are only a few who are private-endowed-scholarship holders, and, claims Mr. Corrigan the vast body of students are at college and university not because of necessary brilliance or especial aptitude, but because their parents or they desire a college education and pay for it or find means to pay for it. This large crowd of students the professors have to teach.

From consideration of the men who fill such posts, Mr. Corrigan draws the conclusion that it is to the trained that the world must look for leadership, and that leadership not being the best possible at present. He says "if we set systematically to work to find and train the best brains of the country, we would before long have a small army of brilliant experts and specialists devoting their unusual gifts to the solution of Canada's problems and the development of Canada's resources.

Mr. Corrigan believes that it is possible to select even one thousand brilliant intellects in Canada each year who could not possibly otherwise find their way to institutions of higher learning, subsidize their education in our universities, our theological, technical and agricultural colleges, our scientific schools and research institutes—then he says we could turn out one thousand distinguished graduates, destined to be leaders in every walk of life. He suggests one thousand national scholarships of the annual value of $400 with free tuition to be awarded by the Dominion, the scholars to be chosen only from those who would otherwise be unable to attend university by reason of lack of funds, and because of their mental and intellectual gifts, character and temperament, and to be assigned to courses deemed best suited to their special talents and individual bent of mind on the principles of vocational guidance. The courses would be designed to fit the students for works in Canada and for the benefit of Canada.



A portion of the scholarships would be for nationwide competition, the remainder to be allotted to the provinces according to population.

Cocky little Cock Robin has arrived as advance agent of a certain Mr. Spring. AND SO, with the worst of the winter behind us, especially those two dark and depressing months, January and February, when business is dull and many folks are either out of work or working short—we can face with a smile the prospect of Spring, Spring, Beautiful Spring, and sing Bye Bye Blackbirds, and Hail the Bigger and Better Prosperity that is bounding down the Pike.—Believe it or not.

FAMILY TREES AND ROOTS

The book "Pioneer Life on the Bay of Quinte" recently mentioned in this column, is not scarce .There are copies aplenty in Belleville, and in Hastings and Prince Edward Counties. The book is esteemed more for the high-for-the times prices at which it was subscribed for rather than for its general make-up, and on that account when originally received by the subscribers proved more or less disappointing to many of those whose names appear therein. Unlike Mrs. Moodie's "Life in the Clearings" and "Roughing it in the Bush", the "Pioneer Life" is not a descriptive historical work on the early life and traditions of the Bay of Quinte district, but is rather, more or less, a genealogical record. Interest in it locally is light, but from a distance comes an occasional request for a copy so that some former resident may check up on their relations. We understand that the usual market price for the "Pioneer Life" runs from four to seven dollars, according to condition. The Corby Public Library have a copy for the inspection of anyone interested.

A HISTORICAL HOLE IN THE GROUND

CAMP BIRD, COLORADO, WHERE THE GOLD CAME FROM TO BUY THE HOPE DIAMOND, famous for its legend of bad luck, where the hundred thousand or so came from to pay Gaston B. Means for not finding the Lindbergh kidnapped baby, besides other millions mostly spent by Helen Walsh MacLean, of Washington, D. C. in various spectacular ways, has been buried in a gigantic snow slide which recently swept down the mountain. Deserted mine buildings and buried miners' shafts. Perhaps the Hope Diamond, one of the largest diamonds in the world, still in the possession of the daughter of the discoverer of Camp Bird mine, will be blamed for the disaster, as it has for many others—loss of parents, loss of husband (divorce) death of children and other sorrows which befell the heirs of the Camp Bird discoverer.

Parliament Hill Hears
By Wilfrid Eggleston

"Did you know——" that Senator Samuel Taylor, C. C. F. member for Moose Jaw, is a descendant of Scandinavian Island stock, with the blood of the Vikings running in his veins? He is a student of history, and of comparative religions—and of comparative folklore, too, for he asserted in the Senate recently.....that in his wanderings in Iceland he followed typical "Alice in the cities" rooms, as an interested students of economics.....

"that Senator Ellis Shakespeare, known little Lelia and late Creek-Indian Princess, was the first "political pro busts" or "at politics," Bob" Wilis, veteran C. C. "that Senator Lefrenz is High Finance, former banking city, now member for Toronto-Trinity, who created a precedent by getting the Senate and the House into "records of" parliament when, discussing the housing act, he paid for the private dinner at which to build a home must contribute in land and, cash, at least "twenty per cent of the value of construction....."

A witty Rhodes scholar once defined Rhodes Scholars as: "Men who have enjoyed a brilliant future" Well, the present government of Canada is Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Labor, whose brilliant progress is just now unfolding itself.

Like M. J. Standing room only was left for a large number.

At the opening of the play "Rose" an attractive western girl named Rose Chicago met on a hunting trip in the Rockies, was invited to the uncle's ranch to fall in love with her. Her cowboy lover Bill Briggs followed her there and after many final analysis Rose marries one of the Chicago beaux, Mr. Robert Hanmon. The last scene is in a Chicago drawing room, where Rose's long lost father turns up and the Chicago scene is quite a contrast to the first one supposed to be in the Kansas woods.

REPORT JAPANESE EXTREMISTS' COUP QUELLED AS MARTIAL LAW DECLARED—Though rigid censorship is still being maintained on all reports from Japan, it is indicated that the coup of the younger officers in the army has been shortive, and that the government, aided by the imperial guard of Emperor Hirohito, has succeeded in regaining power. IN MARJTIME'S KIDNAP-MURDER TRIAL—Two brothers, Arthur, 19 (LEFT), and Daniel Bannister, 21 (LOWER RIGHT) with their mother, Mrs. Mary Bannister, 51 (LOWER CENTRE), stand in the shadow of the gallows at Dorchester, N.B., in criminal proceedings in which Frances Bannister (UPPER LEFT), 15-year-old sister and daughter of the accused, is a material witness for the crown, and a five-months-old baby, said by crown to be Betty Lake (UPPER RIGHT), will be the chief exhibit. On the night of last January 5, or early on the morning of January 6, Phillip Lake was shot to death, and the body was left to be cremated in his burning brick-woods cabin, near Moncton, N.B. Lake's wife, Bertha, was beaten to death and another child, Jackie, 20-months-old was left to freeze to death outside the cabin. Baby Betty, the fourth member of the little family was missing. The crown contends that Arthur and Daniel Bannister killed the Lake family; that they kidnapped the baby that it might be presented as the infant of Mrs. Bannister, to the dismay, financial and otherwise, of two suitors. Frances Bannister, held as a material witness, may be put on the stand to refute the claim of Mrs. Bannister, that she is in fact mother of the child. On the identity of the baby hinges the case. The crown must prove to the jury and jury that the baby is Betty Lake, and not the child of Mrs. Bannister, in whose home, two days after the crime was discovered, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police found it.

"The Affair of Susan"

Secrets of Side-Shows to Pitts and O'Connell

Zasu Pitts, Hollywood's leading comedienne, and Hugh O'Connell, former stage star, co-starred in Universal's gay and colorful "The Affair of Susan," coming to the Capitol Theatre next Monday and Tuesday, have added another chapter to their education—for they know the inside of the side-show and concession business.

They learned about it while making "The Affair of Susan," which tells the story of their romance during one day at Coney Island during which time Hugh changes from a shy young man to a veritable lion tamer.

Universal not only constructed many of the concessions now being operated at Coney Island, but also placed a number of carnival men on technical experts. It was from these men that the noted players, Miss Pitts and O'Connell, got the various gaming devices, "shills," and come-ons used to get the crowds playing the games, the "grind-stores" and other colorful things in connection with the midway amusement business.

Moreover, after having everything explained to him, decided that when he decided to leave the screen he could get a position as a side show barker and really learn human nature.

"Wanderer of the Wasteland"

Thorpe, who appears in the Zane Grey production, "Wanderer of the Wasteland" featuring Dean Jagger, Gail Patrick and Edward Ellis, now playing at the Capitol Theatre, is cast in one of his own favorite roles, that of an Indian guide, Charley Jim. In his multimillion dollar career he has never been given any but two kinds of characterizations. Either he has been cast as a football star or as manager in college productions, or he is an Indian guide in a number of action pictures. These two particular parts seem to fit him perfectly and his portrayals assume a naturalness and ease.

This stirring outdoor drama, laid against the vivid background of the Old West during the gold rush days in the California desert wastes, which forcefully depicts the manner one is compelled to flee from civilization and take refuge in surridden areas, a fugitive from justice unable to clear his name of a blotched of which he is innocent.

AT THE BELLS

"King of Burlesque"

Warner Baxter heads the glittering cast of this picture, which includes Mona Barrie, Jack Oakie, Kenny Baker, popular tenor of the Jack Benny Radio radio program, Alice Faye, Gregory Ratoff, Dixie Dunbar, Pats Waller and Dick Long, Jr., among the featured personalities. Although the picture is a revealing glimpse into the gaudy world of burlesque, it does not sacrifice its action to backstage drama, but maintains the life story of a genius of the theatre, played by Baxter.

With his two trusted aides Alice Faye and Jack Oakie, Baxter has formed a side show business. Quickly he tucks to Broadway's glittering realms. There, Baxter falls in love with a lovely society woman who represents everything he has dreamed of in his life. The rise of the film shows Baxter regaining his self-respect in the theatre and finally winning her love.

Songs go from bad to worse with Baxter, until his wife, Mona Barrie, leaves him. Baxter's career took blackest. Baxter's old friends return to him and he starts a successful venture of his life. The success

Read-Ambler.

There are several reasons to explain the current strength in the shares of Read-Ambler. The price of Lamaque Gold Mines stock has advanced on the "Street" market this week, demand for Lamaque is reported to be quite keen. The publication of the annual report this week showed a satisfactory increase in positive ore reserves of $18,181 tons. Net earnings are not quoted but earned with the $2,000,000 obligation to be repaid to York-Hughes. It is also reported that the present rate of production and estimated profit will be equal to $1.50 for 2 years. But the one possibilities are more than the formula in the mining rate is looked for this year and thus the bond issue may be repaid sooner.

Developments at Sigma are progressing very satisfactorily and this mine has now reached the stage where production will be a big factor on the tax basis this Spring. No Sigma is looking more promising than the mine. Some of the holders has advanced to over $30 per unit and it is likely that this figure may will be formed before long with Read-Ambler retaining a large interest.

An official denial was recently given by the treasurer that the Company intended to distribute its assets. It is no secret, however, that the directors favor such a plan to become effective if and when the three properties have been developed to the production stage.

The floating supply of Read-Ambler is comparatively small, as probably 60 per cent of the issued capital is held in the hands of our directors and the shares are pooled for voting purposes for a three year period. On several occasions during the past three months offers have been made for large blocks of stock by Toronto interests.

At current market prices for Lamaque, Sigma and Hy Hanna, the total value of each Read-Ambler share is over $3.00.

McKenzie Red Lake.

The McKenzie Red Lake Company concludes a recent analysis of this Company as follows: "Ore development has now been proved in the main shear zone over a length and extension of 1800 to 1900 ft. Wide ore making possibilities are presented in the hanging wall zone to the North and West, where the West vein has responded with encouraging width, persistency and strength of the mineralized structure in the greenschists are very strongly suggestive of deep seated continuity.

Under very capable management, the mining operation has shown steady progress during the past year. Dividend action, in view of the strong treasury position and sustained earnings, is forseen. The shares at present levels have pronounced speculative appeal.

Many people are being attracted to the market by the lure of 'easy money'. A minority are profiting, particularly International Nickel, have secured quick money recoveries from the low levels of the depression, that many figure that all stocks will continue to go up indefinitely. While admittedly recovery has ahead and business is good in a great many lines, should continue to move upward, indiscriminate buying of stocks is not advised. The successful investor or trader gives consideration solely to his prospective purchase.

Even in the bull market of 1929 all stocks did not move ahead. Even for example the newsprint stocks. Those who have been in the market under conditions feel that the immediate years ahead will witness a marked improvement in the position of many constructive industries. Consequently the better grade common stocks in both of these groups appear to offer promising prospects of value for those carrying providing patience can be exercised.

The case with which stocks in New York can be floated in a sharp decline of the early part of the week lifted hopes of bull that a still better and extended Spring rise is in prospect. The sharp break in the market's action has not completely removed doubts and probably will not until the market shows a little more weeks earlier this month. After the decline of the past week an immediate rally was to be expected. In the meantime, those who have been still holding commitments light until they see what kind of a rally is going to be forthcoming in the action. There have been hints lately that the upswing may be of what more severe than expected earlier.

Consolidated Bakeries

The annual financial statement of the Consolidated Bakeries of Canada for the year 1937 is scheduled to make its appearance any day now. The company is controlled by Ogilvie Flour and the indications are that forthcoming report will show somewhat higher earnings over 1936 as well as an improved financial position.

Alcohol Might Follow Lead of Rubber

General pessimism as to Advantages of Rubber Regulation Scheme Certain Industrial Alcohol Company Expected to Declare a dividend or any sort since January 1930. Recently this is mixed and reselling at the same time that the company's income is at record and the statement is made that the management might consider the advisability of declaring a "whisker" bonus, similar to the one paid by National Distillers in 1934.

Earnings Will Tell

The biggest profit in the market rise of the past year have been in stocks generally supported by dynamic earnings improvement. Bank clearings and you won't go far wrong.

Belleville Redmen Tie Round With Whitby in Thrilling Contest Before 1,500 Fans

Score is 4-1 And Locals Were Full Value For Victory

WHITBY OUTSKATED

Local Carried Too Much Speed Down Wave Only Bucked on Occasions

Completely out-classing their rivals on the opening game until the final bell, the Belleville juniors were rewarded a three-goal margin and defeated the Whitby Red Wings by the score of 4 to 1 before nearly a capacity crowd at the Belleville rink last night thereby tying the round robin total at two points apiece. The locals were outskated by the more experienced Whitby team but took its tall on the visiting Red Wings as they proved no match for Eddie Thomas' sharpshooters. Generally speaking, it rated the play for the 55-minutes of terrific hockey played.

"Million Dollar" Goal

Although the "Redmen" started to click in the first period, it was not until the second that the "million dollar" goal of the game as he sensationally stick-handled his way through the entire Whitby defence to score. Bellevilles were short-handed and waits in on the play. Dave Morgan made the perfect goal scat another these parts in years. The Whitby team was also in the groove at the offensive and continually swept the Red Wings off their feet, they scored in the Whitby net repeatedly, only to be knocked or sending the puy to the locks. The score stood 2 to 0 at the end of the second frame in favour of the locals. The next inning each scored a goal, while in the final session Sgt. Jimmy Thomson put the "boots" of all local fans with his perfect shot which knocked the count on the round.

Stories Frustrated

Hats off to Goalie Don Morton in the local forces, on various occasions left the fans breathless with his miraculous saves. Harry Hamilton in the Whitby nets also performed a super-head on the attack and blocked everything that came his way. Donald and Steven McIlrath looked well with the Victorian Redmen in the Whitby country of protection. The five forwards the local standard of the Red Wings in the form of Carl and Pete Morgan carried too much speed for the Whitby team at times and Carl checked back the fiends, while Barrigan's poke-checking advertises him as one to be cultivated heard, the Red Wings' star shooting Eddie Thomas was held scoreless by the defence pair of Ross and line of St. Louis, Harry Morgan and Jimmy Rundle. Thomson, in the second period scored Belleville first counter in a crowd mix. Rundle and Harry Morgan saw in front of the goal, let Jack McGuire's pass go across the second counter. A pretty piece of combination was shown by the locals in the second as Carl Morgan laid a perfect pass on Pete Morgan's stick to beat Hamilton for the third counter, but Randle spoiled that celebration by hitting the puck into the Belleville net during a scramble that shows have been seen the puck batted by the referee.

Hurst Real Star

Then came St. Louis' heart-breaking solo effort. For Whitby they got their counters goals which was undoubtedly the star of the game, as he skated through the ice between the "Redmen" and a two colour scoring effort. Goalie Morton and Goalie Hamilton on the Red Wings' defence played a hard game for the locals, while Harry Randall and Sid Sleightholme turned in splendid efforts in the most terrific game seen in Belleville in years. Referee Hugh Boughner had no serious arguments caused to add voice to the contest, especially as Goalie Morton scored a goal accidentally to the first two goals, scored by Belleville, while Referee Armstrong would not allow Pete Morgan's goal in the third session, contending Pete was standing inside the goal crease but gave Whitby their lone tally as the referee had ruled the goal cross-to poke the rubber puck the previous Morgan.

The "Redmen" checked the Red Wings to the minute and stood still and skated them into the ice with bursts of speed that were the talk of the fans last night. Following the game the managers of the two teams met and arranged to have a second home and home series play-off with goals to count.

The Play

Belleville opened the pastime by carrying the play and for the first five minutes were around the Whitby net but the visitors broke up the play. Carl Morgan had the first open shot on goal and Barrigan went in the second but was upset by Conlin, no penalty was given. Belleville were threatening as Randall and Harry Morgan carried the puck down the ice but Hamilton was there to clearing Hurst shot the rubber onto Ingram's stick but Harry Morgan was there to check. Pete Morgan was through all alone and missed an open shot by inches. Ingram then drew a penalty Morton gave a beautiful stick save. Sleightholme took time; even again McGuire carried up the left boards passed over to Pete Morgan who was camped in front of the net to score but Hamilton was there. Belleville were by far the better team and carried the play to the Whitby net. Morgan scored a three man play, Barrigan to Carl to Pete, but Referee Armstrong said "no goal" as Pete was in the crease.

Hurst Objects

Goalie Hurst objected long and vociferously to Referee Armstrong's decision and Randall kicked the puck into the net as Hurst was still objected on Pete's counter. The period ended 1-0 in favour of Belleville on the play. He shot over Hamilton's head. Ingram and Morgan was inside of the defence on Barrigan's pass but fell as he let go his shot. Pete Pat was treading too fast. With McDonald off, Whitby applied the pressure and J. Sleightholm missed the net, by Randall and Morgan and end of a dashage was done. St. Louis Harry Morgan and McGuire were the first line through after a change of lines Hurst beat Barrigan and Ingram Morgan at Belleville, were finally flying all over the ice. Morton out-guessed Hurst only to have Carl Morgan break away, carry to the blue line, give a perfect pass to Pete Morgan, who raced in to the round score, but it was short. Hurst was in the groove and a scramble in front of the Belleville net and the period ended 2 to 1 for Belleville.

Locals Outbucked

Although the locals were in sufficiently to score a third goal, they were outbucked and outskated by their off-luck and beaten by Hurst three times and more than once they have St. Louis sick-handle through the entire Whitby team to score the "million dollar" goal on the most brilliant individual effort of the season. Harry Morgan Belleville squad worked hard out-played their rivals in every department to win by a much larger margin.

The line-ups:

Belleville—Goal, Morton; defence Ingram and McDonald; centre, Barrigan; wings, P. Morgan and C. Morgan. Whitby—Goal, McGuire, H. Morgan and McIlrath.

KITCHENER GAME AHEAD

Niagara Falls, Ont. Feb. 29 — (CP)—The series is far from over if their recent lists can be taken as a criterion, but Kitchener's mighty Greenshirts skated on the shorter path today towards the Senior Ontario Hockey Association intermediate "A" section championship. They leaped one game ahead in their best-three-of-five series with Niagara Falls by defeating the Falls 3-4 last night right in the Cataract city. Previously the evenly-matched forces had each won one battle, while the third ended in a draw.

The largest crowd of the season jammed Stanley Stadium to see Reuben Bruley' manager face off at the puck to start the struggle. They stayed until the last minute and cheered the thrilling, speedy struggle. Both teams were exhausted at the finish.

SERVING MAJORS WHEN GAME OVER

Wild And Exciting Game When Windsor Defeats London 6 to 5

(By The Canadian Press)

Another chapter was written into the young history of the International Hockey League today—that of its smallest city—and the fans and servants looked back and thought of the wreckage, that night has in store.

It all happened last night, when Windsor Bulldogs trounced London Tecs 6-3. When the battling and the game was over, four players were in the penalty theatre—per several per team.

The teams had finished their hockey playing. Then the fists started to fly. The start started. There was a half-minute left to play in the game when Bill Arnott, Tecs' star, Aubrey Webster squared off in regular fistcuffing. Webster drew the first blood. Bill Arnott started and the fans joined in.

Arnold broke his stick over the London player's left shoulder and opened cuts around his head. Webster came back with his and cut Arnott's head, despite the protection of a heavy bandage. Both received scores of the night for fraternizing with the enemy.

The officials, Mickey McGuire and Hal Bincarde, handed out 10 minutes in penalties, 30 of them in majors. Arnott, Webster, Bill Thomas and Joe Primeau, all in the hockey, scoring the only two goals of the first period, drew majors for their bit of the second. Joe Bratta, burly Windsor defenceman, picked up two goals and two majors.

While they went wild in Windsor, Tecs' management got back to hockey and play-off contention by whipping Buffalo Bisons, who previously got off to a 3-2 lead in the opening period and held it for a while longer, in a one-way attack on Buffalo for the last 40 minutes.

SKIING

By Herman Rubinson

In the last article of this series on ski instruction one of the most important parts of skiing was discussed, "Skiing Down Hill", it is the hill-climb and the descent from this part that makes skiing such a fascinating sport. Mastering this part of it will really realize the importance of learning this correctly and of practising it over and over again. Probably the best way for the beginner to work himself into the right position is to start down with hope in his heart and skis nearly knees up to the chin on a short, gentle hill run. The result of these experiments have many times been disastrous, but nevertheless for ladies and older people who want to be safe.

The conventional practice of the "Normal Down Hill" position necessitates the skis being placed parallel to each other, so that if you should anyone a good down hill slide. Nevertheless we can give some advice for the practice for the down hill run.

The main physical necessities for this are: body flexibility, good sense of balance and the ability to relax the body. All these can be developed through exercises. It is highly helpful to do a few gymnastic exercises every day. This will help very little and keep the body supple and loose. Exercises for relaxing are very necessary for the making of skiing and it will improve your general well-being.

For the body flexibility do this one: Jump with both feet for six inches apart, feet flat on the ground, arms and shoulders completely relaxed. Bend the knees and hips until the hands hang near the knees, move up and down a few times without lifting the heels from the ground. During these motions try to go further and further down until the arms are just hanging at your sides have to be bent because the flats are reaching the ground and the end of the spine is almost touching the heels which have to be still FLAT ON THE GROUND.

For the improvement of the sense of balance stand again with the feet parallel about 6 inches apart, body erect. Lift up the right ankle, keeping the knee in the same line, lift up the left leg until the thigh is at a right angle to the upper portion of the body. Hold this position for a little while, then lift up the right leg in the air off the ground and balance on the toes. After coming back into the normal position alternate arms and legs. Use the left arm and the right leg. Doing either one of these exercises relax the body. This is the best way to completely limber up the body and additionally breathing out. It is also the complement of relaxation if the knees are slightly bent and the upper part of the body falls forward.

Practice these exercises often and for any resistance. I shall go with you on a small practice slope next time. Remember these physical necessities which are important for an enjoyable down hill run.

DAY BY DAY

There's an old saying: "Any team you can tip you can beat," and last night the Belleville Redmen" more than overcame a three goal lead, when they downed the Whitby Red Wings 4 to 1 to tie the round. We usually try to figure out the odds and calculations are rather 'screwy' the "Redmen" should have come down in front of the Whitby crowd at least a half dozen goals. Without a doubt, by coincidence, we say, that the Red Wings did not have a chance to win as the Belleville nine six out of the 60 minutes of play. The only thing that saved the visitors was the brilliant net-work of Goalie Morton and the clean-cut victory was the result of Referee Armstrong's decision of the proverbial fan, that has been dodging local hockey teams for some years past.

We admit we never saw the Red Wings play better hockey and though there may be slightly better averages last night, last, they never will be seen playing a better game than the entire personnel of the Belleville team displayed last night. The Thomas line was the best seen on the Belleville ice this season and they literally carried the play throughout the entire 60 minutes of play. The Whitby crowd left the arena wondering how such a playstem and hold up the goals we are at a loss to say. As a matter of fact that all added depend upon the Redmen, for they had been beaten by a better team on the day and deserved nothing but praise. Incidentally the "Y" Whitby medicines and the B.C.I. senior captain, Ken Hurst, takes care of working out tri-weekly with the Dessons. The local juvenile squad had a splendid opportunity to put Belleville on the basketball map last Saturday they met the fairy "Lassies" of Toronto, in the first round of the O.B.A. finals and the finals with the return game slated for March 14th in Toronto. The number of points made in the two games will determine the ultimate winner, who will drop into the finals.

The official International Baseball League schedule was released by President Charles Hughes last night. The opening games will be played at Montreal at Albany, Rochester at Syracuse and Buffalo at Baltimore. The home opener will be on April 30th, while Montreal series off the 3rd the same day.

C.R.U. TO CHANGE RESIDENCE RULE

American Players Must Live Year in Canada to be Eligible

By ELMER DULMAGE

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Feb. 29 (CP)—Fate of the United States' college football star who has been coaching in Canada in September and leaving in December will be decided today by the annual meeting of the Canadian Rugby Union. The changes are American players will be accepted in future only on a bona permanent basis or residence.

Yes, and that means that no American be eligible to play in this country only after residing here a year will be placed before the Canadian Rugby Union.

It is certain to meet with strong opposition and a degree of support. Many delegates figured the resolution can be defeated.

Western delegates, for instance, don't like it at all, although they are willing to concede some sort of residence regulation in Canada. Under a one-year rule, they think might be usefully put into force in a year or two. Meanwhile there is no danger of "raids" being made by importing.

"We can't take from Winnipeg manager of the 1935 Canadian champions. "And don't think for that I mean the Winnipegs. All our players will qualify."

What the western clubs would n't be able to get good Americans from the United States. Where would they go for them: Why they'd hit straight for Winnipeg if there's any one-year residence rule it will have to mean residence in the province where the player intends playing—not just the country."

DANNO O'MAHONY GIVEN BATTLE

Champion Lucky to Win Over Montreal Tough

Boston, Feb. 29—(CP)— Danno O'Mahony wears his world wrestling crown a little less securely today after a tough give-your-shoulders beat last night with French Canadian Yvon Robert.

The young Montrealer was foiled by a right to the jaw and pinned to the mat in the second after the long-waited meeting between the youngsters got underway before a crowd of 30,000 that filled every inch of the Boston Garden-Arena.

The giants grappled through the remaining hour in 45 minutes and O'Mahony, without another fall but at the end the habitant was the fresher and the Irish titleholder appeared very worried when his throne, which would give the winner of the Thursday night bout at Belleville a chance in the provincial secondary series final at Lantern. The matter of eligibility has been the subject of endless controversy in the Belleville O.B.A. circles for the past few years. Perhaps a benefit all star game between the Thursday night winners and a team picked from the other teams in the local league basketball circuit would be more profitable.

The local Deacon A.C. juvenile basketeers, champions of Eastern and Central Ontario, are experiencing some much-needed competition prior to their entering the provincial finals. Tonight they face Bob Abate's Toronto "Lassies." The Toronto aggregation have been the instrune the Oshourn/Intermediate "A" girls, upsetting the dope, by without results. Crucial Games Over Weekend For Canadiens

(By The Canadian Press)

A round-up of "crocials" was on the National Hockey League's weekend program today with alarming possibilities for the fate of playoff or contenders should they fall to win. Montreal Canadiens and New York Americans faced especially stern tests.

Canadiens and Americans are fighting for the third and last playoff berth in the American section, leaving a first-place struggle between the Maple Leafs and Montreal Maroons.

Canadiens will do the hard work, playing Detroit Red Wings in Montreal and the Red Wings in Detroit Monday night. If they win from both games the Frenchmen will be alone in third place, regardless of Black Hawks' finish and Boston Bruins in New York to-morrow night.

Black Hawks tackle the Leafs tonight in Toronto, seeking to gain on the Leafs, who are all-powerful section leaders. Then the Hawks will go to Montreal to play New York Americans, who can't afford to drop this one if they hope to finish in third place ahead of Boston.

CURLING

Toronto, Feb. 29—(CP)— The Macdonald's Brier, dream trophy of every Canadian curler goes up for competition in Toronto on Monday night when the ice at the Toronto Granites will be the first thing in its history, there'll be representatives from every province in the British Dominion and Prince Edward Island will make their debut in the annual classic. Manitoba and west it means another entrant in a field of seventeen as never-ever held on the coveted championship. The field will be broken in two by the Rev. Campbell and his Hamilton Thistles.

There hasn't been an outstanding performance by any of the Brier aspirants of the game point to J. Ross Whiteman and his rink from the Strathcona Curling Club of Winnipeg as the most likely winner. Whiteman and his rink have been in the Manitoba Province. In 1927, the first year they competed for the Brier, they won six times, Ontario and Alberta once; Northern Ontario, New Brunswick and Quebec have tried unsuccessfully during the past nine years.

The players include:

Ontario—Harnin—M. J. Oulton, Alex Ryley, W. D. McOuat, H. Cowan, sk.

Northern Ontario (Haileybury) — M. Robb, W. A. Beacroft, Dan Miller, E. R. Smith, skip.

WHITTALL CANS AND WOOLER WIN HOCKEY CONTESTS

Advance Into Semi-Finals of Trenton League Finals

BOTH GAMES FAST

Whittall Cans To Meet Carrying Place in Next Round

Trenton, Feb. 29.—(Special)—In defeating R.C.A.F. by the score of 7 to 3 and on the round 11-4 the Whittall can won the first round of the Trenton and District Hockey league and the win entitles them to meet Carrying Place on Monday night. The game was a thriller from start to finish and as the R.C.A.F. boys were four goals down on the night before, they played like demons from start to finish, but the harder they played the harder the Whittall team turned it up and the effectiveness of the Whittall forwards around the R.C.A.F. net proved too much for the hard fighting Airmen. From the start of the game, the Airmen played four men up in order to overcome their four goal handicap.

Soon after the face-off Whittall scored Kidd of the Whittalls shot a goal past Gould from the side of the net pushing his team one up. Five minutes later Kerr Whittall defence man took a pass from Dadswell to brighten their lead. Torpadie of the R.C.A.F. opened the scoring for the Airmen when he shot the puck past Gray out of a scramble. The period ended Whittalls 3, R.C.A.F. 1. Early in the second Kidd, Whittall forward, Baker and Spencers of the R.C.A.F. received penalties during the period. The Airmen started off at a terrific clip in the second period and held the Whittalls in their own end of the rink for the first five minutes.

Whittall Cans Score

The Whittalls were in the penalty box for three minutes but they got their puck but he was just one better than they were. About halfway through the Whittalls of the Whittall team added their lead by scoring the fourth Whittall goal on Dadswell's rebound.

Ordered Off Ice

Manners of the R.C.A.F. and Kerr of the Whittalls were ordered off the ice by Referee Davis for pushing in the corner. As Manners and Kerr left the ice Kerr was given following salad him "what was the matter with Manners?" Kerr told Manners took a poke at Kerr. As both players were ordered off the squabbling pair, they did not have much chance to exchange blows, but Kerr and Manners left the ice as the Airmen supporters rushed out on the ice and pounced on Kerr. At the time many were on the ice and the fans thought a free-for-all was on. Whittalls came right back and scored their seventh and last goal. Kerr was knocked down by Torpadie on the goal. Gould went out to pass but Kerr was there to meet it as a terrific speed ran into Gould and he fell against the boards, beaten the net.

The last three minutes he was also to continued. Cain received a penalty for tripping and while the Whittalls were short-handed, the Airman bunged around Gray, but they were unable to score. Referee Davis, "Pinkeye, Knightly, Harnin, Ryley and Cowan, sk. Bedard.

Referee —E. Davis.

Eliminated Silvermen

The second playdown game of the evening was a close, clean game of hockey and both teams played a fast game throughout the sixty minutes. Wooler eliminated Silverman hard fighting Benedict and Proctor congregation by the score of 5 to 3 and won the round 8 to 4. In the first period the Silvermen formed to the pressure and set the ones were leading 1 to 0. Blakely scored after getting through a melee. MET OPERA STARS TREMBLE BEFORE CONDUCTOR'S BATON—Here is a remarkable series of candid camera pictures of Arthur Rodzinsky, famous opera conductor, as he leads the Metropolitan Opera orchestra. The pictures were made when Rodzinsky was rehearsing his musicians, but he shows no less fire than while directing for public consumption. Note how he changes expression with almost every wave of his "magic wand."

MONTREAL GRAPPLER GETS STEP NEARER HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP—In two straight falls, made in less time than it took Dan O'Mahony, Yvon Robert of Montreal dropped Count Jasimir Pulaski, veteran grappler. The count is shown on the mat as Referee Charlie O'Donnell tolls the fatal twenty for the final fall. Robert is poised for more action, as seconds of both men swarm into the ring for the free-for-all which followed the bout. The second and final fall came after only thirty-five seconds of wrestling, to bring the Canadian another step closer to a title bout with Champion O'Mahony.

NEW YORK GOES IN FOR THIS NEW FORM OF ASSAULT—The gentle art of manhandling as accomplished in modern wrestling is just child's play to judo, the new Japanese diversion which is an advanced form of jujitsu. Prof. Theodore Kiwashima, the number one Japanese judoka of America, is shown on the floor giving a demonstration of the technique he employs. His pupil is G. Yoshida, who, though on top of the teacher, is quite helpless. Scores of New Yorkers are reported taking up the new sport.

ANOTHER MARK TO MEAVOY'S CREDIT—Mitrema anguish is depicted on the face of this dusky battler as Jock McAvoy of England, a competent piece of fighting machinery who doesn't fool in the ring, smashes a blow to the head. Ameen Green, 164-pound Philadelphia negro is the recipient and McAvoy was given the decision to add another to his list of triumphs. He fights John Henry Lewis for the light-heavyweight title early in March and has hopes of a scrap with Joe Louis later on.

CASTLEMAN HURLS FIRST BALL OF TRAINING GRIND—Young Clydell Castleman, one of the rookie pitching stars of last season and this year expected to be one of the mainstays in New York Giants' hurling brigade, gets up steam for the campaign ahead by hurling the first ball from the training camp mound. Castleman and the rest of the Giants started their spring didoes at Pensacola, Fla., under the eagle eye of Bill Terry himself. Clyde was a sensation in the early stages of the 1935 baseball war.

PEDEN GETS MEDICAL ATTENTION AFTER BIKE RACE SPILL—This pedal pinkie went round and round till he went out cold. It's "Dorothy" Peden, and the Vancouver redhead got mixed up in a tangle of broken bikes and falling riders when the drive chain of his machine snapped during the six-day race in New York and he ended up at the bottom of the board track unconscious. His partner, Gerald Debeats who had just relieved him, was also injured in the spill. While doctors worked over hurt riders the rest of the field went pedalling on in the merry whirl.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING INSTALMENTS

Antoinette Tait, 22, attractive and wealthy, has been hired to host a television broadcast from a Chicago fair with her sister Brenda and Brenda's two children. Also on the broadcast are Brenda's husband, their best-old brother Arvad, and their Aunt Meg. In her job-hunting days, Nan met Lawrence Manning, editor of the Journal of Commerce, who after her first broadcast tells her she does not carry any news of women's activities in her column. Manning's ex-fiancée, Sylvia Burke, who had made a success of soliciting ads, Despite Nan's misgivings about Sylvia, Manning says that she's a stunning young thing, and is tall as Nan, and not more than thirty. I think," she tells Brenda, "that very much the gentlemen's is the dinner talk, difficult. Barney Kerr drops in, asking where Cliff is. He is told that Nan has taken him to the line-printer for the installation of a publication, and then suddenly to Sacramento. Tony knew that the man who was having oysters at the counter was watching her; she looked absorbedly at Joe. . . . She was thrilled; she was happy.

INSTALMENT 4.

The nervous excitement persisted for days—for weeks; there were bad days as well as good. Tony had accepted Barney's humiliating suggestions in earnest; surely, she would take no chance on this job. Tony was always the first at the office, the last to leave. Pursuit with her work. She brushed her hair back sharply and saw to it that her cuffs and collar were in trim. Over such matters as she made she shrewd so horrified a contrition that Greenwood's reproofs often turned into good-natured laughter.

She was often late at the office as autumn came on with affairs for the debutantes and the reopening of city homes—she loved every minute of it. Aunt Meggy, satisfied more often by colored Astarbel now, insisted that Tony drive to confirmal dinners, and in a constant state of hashing and unhashing Tony would clock and coming out to the sitting room for late coffee and cigarettes and the newspapers and Aunt Meggy's contented chat. It was not only one's business, Aunt Meggy and Tony thought; it went deeper. Now you saw, all of a sudden, that she wasn't tasty, that she did like work! She was a professional woman now, and added and busy, well going to be content, and her hours deserved respect.

At ten o'clock every morning she left her cousin's apartment and became one of the fashionable woman's chain, perhaps a visit to some kindly old customer, a woman who liked to help her out with news. Always she went in the office to see Greenwood, to see Brenda in the bookstore, buy herself some new and lovely thing in books, and usually with some items gleaned from her morning's work. From Brenda she went back to the office, where much of her copy was dictated—Gathered about the supper table Tony was spread out, her elbows on tottering over their figs and grapes, Cliff and Brenda, Aunt Meggy and Barney agreed that the girl was "doing pleased—the most serene time, they thought together.

She had six bellish years," said Tony, "They're over!"

"Not they, honey," hellish, darling," Brenda protested. "It was years and years after Cliff and I were wed for a while, getting our bearings, and Arvad was struggling and planning for him and Mona, we couldn't have much fun."

"Did you, Cliff?" Clifford muttered, smiling reminiscently over his coffee.

"Do they all make love to you when you have friends once asked her. Tony laughed.

"That's just what they don't. They borrow your money and tell you all their whole histories and they telephone other girls from your desk, but somehow the atmosphere of the city room is anything but romantic," she added, with a sigh, so much rush and confusion, we're always having to send out for food and Van and Spike Hlyan—they're reporters, but they don't call them that at me!"

"Aunt Sally is always casting out dark suspicions of these evenings at the office . . ."

"Aunt Sally! She thinks Preston Harrison is still in office! Sometimes I suffer for Aunt Sally. Sally, "As for her dear influential friend Augusta Terry," she told the Executive Secretary, "she might as well be a stuffed shirt!"

"Antoinette," said Miss Bruce mildly,

"You remember she was going to help me with social notes, and add to all her friends to send me in stuff? Well, Mrs. Terry was "sending" her when I got into a tight place two years ago, and I couldn't collect her. So yesterday I went up to see her—and I said how kind it would be if she'd do it, and how much she stiffened up like an old mackerel and said she preferred to keep her greatest abhorrence to newspaper notoriety about though it was the most natural thing for any girl of a nice family would ever have her name in the paper. She looked quite ill, as were a gentle woman I'd give up my job for." Nan laughed, and then on the other hand, Greeny told me to stick up for Tony's friends. "Handling Flood—the other day. I was stuck and he wanted me to go on the job—and I refused point blank and of course I wanted to, because it's powerful fun to be in on any of the straight stories—and he said, "Call up Linda Flood; she'll do a lot of good."

"And you don't know her?"

"I've never seen her; she's been at Tahoe all summer. So I sort of half-hesitatingly called her up and said who I was, and I heard this darling voice, 'Why, dear girl, I don't know anything! But I'll do what I have! Got a pencil?' And she began to just spout it out, what every one was doing, and tips on two engagements she was going to make. And she said, 'Now you just call me up whenever you get short—I used to do that for society columns myself.'"

"Oh, people are lovely when they're happy," Brenda said, her face shining. "I'd love her!"

Tony and Brenda began to gather up the dessert dishes. They were presently talking with their own individuality and enthusiasm over the extraordinary thing that had come to them. "Mostly doesn't matter terribly," Tony commented. "What is the wonderful thing. To be working hard at something you simply love, and to walk up to the morning and think that here's another day's work —that's heaven."

"Yes, a while," Brenda conceded. "But after all," she presently added thoughtfully, "I'm not sure that's heaven, either. I'm not sure it seems to me she's a little bogged if she doesn't have it."

"I don't mind anything now," Tony said. "I'm absolutely happy."

Brenda, even while she smiled and shook her head, knew that it was true; that Tony had found herself, and quite innocently and unconsciously. She seemed to grow taller and slimmer as the days went by; all her activities that had made Brenda and Aunt Meggy anxious about her disappeared as if by magic; she was groomed, surprised, purposeful.

Tony always came home to them with tales of her adventures. She had been given a special seating the big Call staff for their benefit and they felt that they knew good-natured, serious Linda Greeny, and stern handsome Mr. Fitch, and the boys of the city room as she did.

Lazy unwashed yawning little Arch Baker contributed to enlarge the desk next to Tony's and helped her gum-chewing Spike Hlyan when he could not do his own work. Spike Hlyan came in from the sports department to talk with her the clothes the women had worn to the tennis tournament. Spike Hlyan seemed to be afforded an attitude of an old friend, promising to take her to a fight some night. And Van Florence told her about his wife's tuberculosis. All of them liked her and she liked them all and regretted that they were often so busy to accept her too convivial dinners, and in a constant state of being fired and unfired, especially by Greeny, who was himself a heavy drinker.

Patsy Jordan she did not like, but there was a friendly rangy big woman who covered Oakland and was comfortable and friendly with Tony; and there was timidly old Mrs. Hall, who covered the Call's society. Mrs. Hall's society editorial headed a Kiss for Cinderella and Mrs. Hall's Column, or Baby Annie's Little Hands Keep Daddy Safe and Sane. Mrs. Hall was a widow, and rational, with a mother, a baby, an old soldier, an old dog and a canary named Mr. Magliw, who signed "Betsy Ross" postcards to Tony.

The only other woman on the staff was a blonde named Rose Cutter who was a hundred dollars a week for a column called Beasts Bear Me Out, and who was supposed to know why Gavin Frankfurter Hall killed himself and why Mrs. Alfred Ingalls Mix Cutter so generously for the queer-laughed notes that appeared in her column. Rose Cutter was spread all over the office, sitting on other people's desks, and one did know that she had an apartment on Post street and a Packard phaeton, almost every night, and that Mrs. Fitch often had to be sent home from the office because Rose Cutter was always unwilling to ask where he was that he had had to go to Sacramento or Burbank.

Tony and Rose got on well together and Tony, while it was not the custom for Tony to do a great part of Beasts's work. The Beasts Bear Me Out will look like this—would tumble all sorts of little notes and memoranda to her desk with pathetic confidence as Tony worked, and Tony always obliged.

That Mr. Fitch, who was allpowerful and much feared, was also the friend of Antoinette Tait was an inefficient Beasts she knew when he appeared at conferences and read over a new thick book on her desk.

INSTALMENT 5.

She flipped page. "No, I haven't, and I've heard a lot about it."

"Well, you'll enjoy it." He hesitated, his face rather red. It is not a book for a young girl, and they're double-crossing Mrs. Fitch, but certainly he's not the man to tell her so. Maybe I've got my job to think about!" Tony said warmly.

He was relieved by her tone while. Then he said in a gentle brotherly voice:

"I don't think I'll worry about my job, Tony, but refuse her invitations! Greeny's coming out in her big New York success. I've seen her twice. She's coming out in a few days later."

Tony was conscious of fear, beating like a pulse in her ears. "Oh, no, I haven't."

"Well, I'm not sure about her," Bessie said. "Ever have dinner at Olivier's?"

"Dear heaven, get me out of this," Tony prayed silently.

"Although really," Bessie said, as the second course was served, "that boy, Pete Loo, serves a better dinner than they do. Only it's a mistake to have a man cook for a party. What do you say?"

"I'd love it!" Tony answered cordially. She went home rather soberly a little while later. There was a letter from Mr. Fitch next day when she thought of a dinner and party for Antoinette Tait, both Brenda and Bessie.

She dared not ask Brenda or Aunt Meggy about it; so she went to Barney on an occasion when he had gone out to take her to a special movie.

INSTALMENT 5.

It was a beautiful November night, warm and clear. Stars were shining thick over the city and the lights of Berkeley and Oakland sparkled like jewels scattered against the dark waters of the bay. Barney had parked his car on the Market street curb and, as Tony's eager eyes swept over the scene, he said, after a while, took her up to the splendid curves of Twin Peaks, where they got out and stood staring down at the brilliant panorama below them.

"It's probably the most interesting city in the world," said Barney.

"San Francisco? Well, some day

She knew what was coming. Her elbows on the fence, her chin in her hands, she did not turn. "I hope he isn't going to say what I think he is!" Tony said in her heart.

I'll see the others and then I'll about it!"

Tony both laughed mirthlessly and Barney said quietly, "Something about thinking about it?"

"I don't know," Tony muttered. "I don't know what I'd feel that I had something to work for," Barney told her.

"I have," Well, I am sort of not—well, thinking about that now," Tony rejoined.

She walked away from him, toward the car, and they sat in in silence.

"You pay me the highest compliment a man can pay a woman, I know," Tony observed pleasantly, as they drove downhill.

"I am sorry," Barney said briefly.

"I'm very proud of it." She was saying perfectly sensible and decent things but there was a heaviness in them that shook her. Barney and Tony, after a long pause, began to talk of other things, and out of place, nevertheless threw herself into the conversation with a vivacity that was quite different in her own home. In the office she was the same Tony, but here at home she was quieter, even a little timid, as if wishing to be sure that she might be pleased. The dinner was excellent and the show that followed delightful, and Tony took Tony home decorously as seven.

Tony knew that it was just like any other party. We had dinner at Beasts's, and then went to the show and then went to Tony's home. It was all right, not very thrilling, but it was pleasant, and in a way that was immediately undressing.

It was well over when Cutter dinner called, and hoped fervently that it wouldn't occur again.

Barney and the editor ashed her if she was in a good humor.

"I think so," she said.

"Well, listen, here's this damn' midwinter carnival over in Tiburon Tuesday.

"I think I'd like to do it!" Tony said, with a little flutter of excitement at the prospect of a party.

"Barney said it is: Arnoldson wants a page of it, see, because his wife is the head of the committee and she's going to have a dinner at the clubhouse with a lunch and a program—sports and all that stuff, and then a dance afterward a big dinner and speeches and then a floor show."

"O-o-oh, fancy doings!" Tony said. "Tell me what you want me to do."

"Well, it's a big thing, keep an eye on the cameramen, get in touch with the Mussel-Shoals Club, run away and do whatever he wants," Barney told her, with a laugh.

"Yes, I have a corporate costume. But I shouldn't think I'd be expected to wear it as a guest would I?"

"No, you wouldn't be a guest. But you'd have to be there early, and have to mingle in with the glad throng. Well, we'll see. Call me Tuesday, and get the lunch. Then if you have some time in the afternoon go down to the Call and tell your pet a typewriter—and turn your self into a Mussel-Shoals Club cameraman who looks like Mussel-Shoals Club, and then go home and up and do dinner and bring that in as soon as you can.

"Oh, I'll be a perfect train, say!"

"Oh, I'll have some one over there to look after you. You'll have a good sport!"

"Why, I think it'll be fun!" Tony said.

Leaving home with her suitcase in the early afternoon Tuesday had joined the newspaper group on the Call-Bulletin ferry, in charge of the two cameramen and of the expedition generally.

Tony enjoyed the clubhouse, at eleven; it was always thrilling to say that one was a guest and that one would be barred their way. It was exactly what she had expected. The great preparations had been made for the comfort of the press, and there were lunch and breakfast, and Miss Taft especially was to be considered. Miss Bruce had made arrangements for Miss Taft to rest at the clubhouse from two to five afternoon and dress there.

"I'll arrange things right here at the club," Tony, finally finding Mrs. Rogers in a whirl of directions, and lists, and last good-byes, assured. "My dear, you'll do nothing of the kind. You're to go to the Fairmont home—right near here, it looks over the marina green, and get a hot bath and take everything comfortably," Hille Mrs. Rogers protested in urgent. "It's all turning out so beautifully, as ever called. "There never was anything like it!"

"You say, 'No, I'm not like she is!'"

"Well—" Tony tried to pass it off with laughter. "I'm not like her, that's all! girls are like that. Only the right man does not say, 'Come to me!'"

"You have a high opinion of women, Tiger," Tony said.

"Some—the man said, and they were and they were not. I'm not sure. He does not like them. He does not like women."

"I don't think the whole difference!"

"No, because sometimes he can say, 'Marry me!' But he can't have a wife, and this he cannot say, like this woman to him. Women" he had an indistinct way of saying "women that indicated that Tony understood each other and the ducks might be created for more. "With you it's quite the reverse."

"Oh yes, I'm going," Barney said quietly, "I'm not married, I'm not laughed at, to be thought a prude. If men were not going to be married, details between men who frankly sold themselves for fun, orchids and champagne, tuxedos, and girls who held themselves as too fine for them—then it was just too bad!" Tony said.

She told Brenda and her sister that she was going to a party after Tuesday that Miss Bruce was giving on Tuesday night; Miss Bruce finished a little desk-set nothing, but Brenda chose an opportunity to protest.

"Tony, this Miss Cutter! You told me—I understand that she and Mr. Fitch—"

"They're friends," Tony admitted. "But—"

"Oh, Bendy, for heaven's sake!" Brenda diverged in vexation. "I wish you girls would learn to say 'No!'"

INSTALMENT 6.

Rosie's apartment was in the popular neighborhood of the big hill hotels; it was not a big place. The curtains were taffeta in pale French pinks and blues; there were painted tables and tassels, great cushions of brocade; fat chairs upholstered in pale satin-tail and silk and heavily flaked with knobs and scrolls of wood. There were also six large ragged dolls were on a cushioned window seat; there was a dog, Rosie's own, a Pekingese, and a cat-eyed, a tangle of pale brown hair.

Tony and Rosie Wade said laughing, looking very handsome, pausing occasionally in the air of people who knows what may mean.

"Oh barkin'!"

Tony had breathed on and was shut in the bathroom for his bad manners. Rosie, Barney, Tony, comfortable and out of place, nevertheless threw herself into the conversation with a vivacity that was quite different in her own home. In the office she was the same Tony, but here at home she was quieter, even a little timid, as if wishing to be sure that she might be pleased. The dinner was excellent and the show that followed delightful, and Tony took Tony home decorously as seven.

Dale Plays The Game

—BY—

Ann Forester

...That day of which had whirled only too suddenly upon herself. She had been shopping—also a busy line, during a spring sale—in the ready-to-wear department of the recognized, fashion store of the district, when she noticed wide eyed at the position of their own salesgirl.

"...well, even if Dale Kendall is a snob, Jim's mother's still positive he's a good catch, and Jim's mother's opinion counts a great deal with her husband and he made me cultivate her. He wanted to get close to Brant. I tell you we had a sweet set-to about it. But there was no help for it. You don't know what it is to be poor, Rona, and have to put up with perfectly intolerable people just for what you can get out of them!"

"Well—of course I didn't know that, Dale," Rona Emley's unwilling murmur.

"You might have guessed!" Eleanor said sharply, "I tell you it's no fun to be married to a poor man and have to toady to his business friends. Brant's all right—he belongs, Dale—but, Rona, you should have heard her a little while ago. Wanting to know if being dropped was a slight! Imagine! I told her she was crazy—her imagination was working overtime."

High laughter came over the wire, and Eleanor stopped as Dale replaced the receiver.

Dale's face was milk white. For a moment after hanging up she sat staring at the instrument. She spoke aloud through cold lips.

"My friend..." she said slowly. "My friend..."

Dale was too crushed for tears, too wounded for resentment. She felt herself, as though all of herself had shrunk from the surface back into her heart. Her husband—

She got up and walked to the mirror to automatically brush her hair. She put the brush gently down and walked slowly about the room...Walked back to the dresser and picked up a lipstick.

A white faced girl looking back at her from the depths of the mirror. A girl with cold lips. The pupils of her eyes were large and black as though she had used belladonna.

Then of a sudden Dale was hotly painfully alive. Eleanor treacherous—unfaithful—the meanest thing on earth, a fake friend! Eleanor pretending to be sympathetic!—leading Dale on to her own destruction. Dale writhed under the humiliation of it. Her quick temper was awake and raging. Oh, to make Eleanor feel the misery she gave her! Petty! Despicable! Well, she'd find the poor fool she had never could help Jim Farraday in business! Well, we'll see—we'll see. Dale told Brant that—when she told Brant.....

Tell Brant about the tableaux... that meant telling him about Phil, that meant Rona's spite which lay at the bottom of it. True, there was little to tell but that little was damning. Moreover, Dale's pride wouldn't let her tell Brant. It would cheapen her in Brant's mind. She would lose caste in his eyes. And Brant was proud. He was bitterly proud! Who should know as well as Dale! It was Brant's pride which was building up the wall between them. His was ashamed of its weakness in the old days. He resented the memory of how she had helped him.....

No! With a sort of cold horror Dale knew that no help was to come from Brant. Play the game alone.....and if it got too terrible—when she felt she was at the breaking point—there was Phil. She could run away from it all with Phil.....

CHAPTER XI.

DESPERATE DAYS

The thought of running away with Phil had no sooner struck through the confusion of Dale's mind than she was violently repudiating it. Oh, no! She hadn't been that mad. She had never even considered Phil.... That had been merely one of those wild words yesterday. Shameful. Disloyal. Never think of it again. But—oh, if she could only get away from it all! Dull misery throbbing under her head.

Dale whipped up her pride. Was she going to let Eleanor see under this? Let them see they had hurt her?

Again she seemed to hear Eleanor's sly laugh. She wouldn't give Eleanor the chance to laugh like that again!

Dale tightened her lips; squared her shoulders. She'd fought all her life, hadn't she? She needed spirit now. Crush back that unbearable sense of humiliation. Don't let Brant suspect.....

Dale couldn't stand having Brant know that his friends had refused dinner to accept her. Brant would be furious. He would resent it. But a man unconsciously takes on the color of his world. It would put the thin edge of a doubt in his mind. It would cheapen her.....

Dale was curled up on the day bed in her own room pretending to read a hastily snatched up book, when Brant came home. Her eyes went up to him as he stood in the doorway, seeing him as another woman might. Tall and brown and compelling. What was it Eleanor had said to her—Brant's beluga." Oh,

Agricultural Notes

PACKAGE BEES AND THEIR CARE

Thousands of packages of bees will soon be coming into Canada from the Southern States to build up into the strong colonies by the time the main honey flow from clover is ready to be gathered, usually by July 1st, or earlier in the Dominion Experimental Farms, the bees will require special care from the time they arrive until they are well established in their new location. Many of the bees are overcrowded in the package and should get in touch with their queens as soon as they arrive otherwise disease and damage for increase delivery of the bees would result.

As soon as the packages are received, they should be put in a cool, shady place and the screening of the queen cage removed. Then sprinkle them very lightly with cane sugar and water. This will refresh them after their long journey. During the late afternoon or early evening the packages may be placed in the hives. Read carefully the directions given by the manufacturer of full instructions are not given, full instructions should be followed. These instructions vary somewhat, but in general the bees are released on their combs after being confined for several hours by candy plugged in the end of the cage. Before releasing the queen, however, it is necessary to remove the cork from the candy plug and replace it with a wire nail, or pushed so that the queen is released from her cage. Full directions should be followed carefully. If any queens, or only a few bees are found dead, they should be replaced at once, but such loss as they are likely to secure sufficient food from the feeders.

After the bees are installed, they should not be disturbed for at least a week, other than to remove the empty package and replace it with a full feeder. It should be seen that the queen is released from her cage, and that she has begun to lay within thirty-six hours after installing the bees. Unnecessary disturbance of packages during the first two or three weeks after they are in the hive should be avoided, as this may upset their queen, and many a promising colony has been ruined through someone's curiosity. Methods of installation and care of packages have been given in bulletin No. 161, a copy of which may be had free upon application to the Publications Branch, Experimental Farms Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, Ontario.

Borax Should be Used With Discretion

Much is being said these days in some parts of Canada about the beneficial effects of borax in connection with clover, timothy, and occasionally, other grasses. Also the production of seed. Some crops, such as beets and tree crops, require boron in order to develop properly. The point is, according to officials of the Seed Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, that under certain soil conditions which are not yet thoroughly understood borax gives positive results, but in small amounts are applied to the above mentioned crops. Further experimental work will likely add to present-day knowledge of the subject.

In the meantime, farmers should be extremely careful in using this material for it is about as easy to destroy most crops if applied in excess as it is to grow them. For example, an application greater than four pounds per acre of borax mixed in the soil for a mangel crop while turnips may stand even more than twice this amount per acre under the same conditions.

The Fertilizers Act prohibits the sale of mixed fertilizer containing more than four pounds of borax to the ton so as to protect the farmer against crop damage. In the case of present day fertilizers the proportion of borax that can be profitably used is used with extreme caution.

Poultry Shipments To the United States

The trade in live poultry from Canada to the United States has again become a factor of considerable importance to the poultry industry in Western Ontario as the result of the tariff reductions made effective under the recent Canada-United States Trade Treaty. During January, 1936, shipments of live poultry to the United States totalled 1,000,000 pounds, chiefly to Buffalo, N.Y., according to unofficial figures, to 11,339 head. In January, 1935, shipments totalled only 200,000 head. By the terms of the Treaty the United States duty on live poultry was fixed at four cents per pound. It previously had been eight cents per pound.

Shipments are made up largely of fowl, geese and ducks. Both veal and Toronto at the present time are approximately five cents higher than last year.

Marked Increase In Cattle Exports

The total exports of cattle from Canada during 1935 reached 112,777 head, the largest movement in several years. Of the total approximately 108,000 went to the United States. Compared with 1934, exports showed an increase of almost 100 per cent to all points, while those to the United States alone were six times greater. During 1935, nearly 21,000 calves were exported as compared with 1,302 in 1934. These figures indicate that the Canadian movement was a much stronger factor than in the previous year, and the value of the cattle so marketed since the Canada-United States Trade Agreement came into effect on January 1st.

The new United States schedule of duties are:

Cattle for the improvement of stock Free.

Cattle weighing less than 175 lbs. each 1 1-2c per lbs.

Cattle weighing from 175 to 700 lbs. each 2 1-2c per lb.

Cattle, feed, 700 lbs. or over 2c per lb.

Cattle, dairy, 700 lb. or over 1 1-2c per lb.

The old classification of the last two items was 3c per pound on cattle 700 pounds or over, and 3 1-4c per lb. under 700 pounds.

Associated with these reduced duties is the zonal quotation plan. The quota on cattle, other than dairy and those for the improvement of stock, is 155,700 head. The quota for calves is 51,923 head, and the quota for dairy cattle 30,000 head. The quotas are to cover total importations from all countries. They do not apply to quotas for Canada only. Normally, the quotas average around 80 per cent of the trade. There is no change in duty for cattle, from 175 to 700 pounds. This weight range includes the bulk of the cattle sold to the United States by Ontario farmers. Any excess of supplies above the quota volume will automatically pay the old tariff rate.

Taught Girls' High School Mrs. Helen Turner is Now 96

Belleville Native is Resident of New York State

Mrs. Helen Turner, once teacher in Belleville, Ontario, High School, is now 96 years of age and celebrated her birthday anniversary on good, last Saturday, at 27 Hill lane, New York. In the N.Y. Sun the following interview with Mrs. Turner appears:—

Flags which fly tomorrow in honor of George Washington will wave in honor of Mrs. Helen Turner, who will celebrate her 96th birthday at the home of her son-in-law and daughter Dr. and Mrs. R. Leslie Burwell, 1 Pierce Street, Bronxville, Sunday.

This sweet, gentle "young" old lady heard the rumbling of the Civil War, witnessed the building of the first railroad through Dakota and Montana, knew Dan Daniel who later became the mother of Dr. Jillian Rose, the woman doctor who ushered the Dionne quintuplets into the world, and taught school in Belleville, Ontario, Canada, Mrs. Turner, the widow of Nelson Turner, is the mother of a family of eight children, the daughter of Mary Ann Jane Hall and Robert Leitch. Her father was a United States Loyalist in the War of 1812. He first came to the United States, later going to Canada. Her mother was born in Scotland.

How Times Change

"Why how times do change," said this vivacious, charming, Gaelic in a becoming black velvet gown, her favourite hue. Looking back to a canoe pin, tomorrow's calendar hand struck over the years. "When I, Helen Leitch, had high school in Belleville—in those days we called it Seminary—we learned the same school with girls every Wednesday afternoon for fancy needlework and sewing. Girls were taught embroidery work, how to darn stockings and how to make lace which was so fashionable then, and how to knit, slipped stitch, plain stitch.

"In those days we danced a great deal, quadrilles, waltzes and cotillions, for we didn't use cards as much as we do in this day entertainment. We would have quadrille parties, which would begin promptly at 8 o'clock and we danced until 12 and sometimes 1 and we all tired out the next day. For refreshments we would have ice cream and cake, but never with coffee, for we didn't know anything about coffee. Men never smoked or drank in the presence of women.

"I don't admire women smoking especially young girls. As a rule I am thankful I think it is bad taste as well as ruinous to their health. I don't like the short frocks worn by girls.

"You know we lived very quietly in those days. There were no automobiles or motor cars. I remember how excited we all were when Mr. Bell invented the telephone. I remember the first message that was sent over the wire for the Sunday my sister and I walked to the station to see Mr. Bell send the message.

Mrs. Turner, who claims "modern" life is "fine," says she realize life a long life, has weathered two severe illnesses. In 1900, 1901, she contracted a serious major operation performed by Dr. George Woolverton, assisted by Dr. Burwell. In two weeks' time Mrs. Turner left for Rochelle, where she went to live for the past 36 years in New Rochelle. Eight weeks after the operation she tripped on stairs and fell, fracturing her hip. She gradually recovered today, except "for my knee, which is a little stiff at times."

Moderation in All Things

"I believe in moderation in all things, amusements and even in eating. I think today many folks carry much too heavy a load. Years ago we ate more, but we lose it was dancing, I hadn't any heavy meals and I had to go and upon my feet and pound. I had plenty of friends then and I have them now. The only thing I wish for is my only grandson, Ned Burwell, whom I miss so much. He is attending Pasadena Junior College, Pasadena, Calif. When I had my broken leg, Ned, bless him, would carry me up and down the stairs as if I were a baby. Those do change, I used to carry him!"

When asked if she would like to fly by airplane to California to see her grandson she said, "I have no desire to fly."

BRITISH COMMONS SITS ALL NIGHT

Long Discussion Heard Over Bill to Pay Bill Incidental to War

(By George Hambleton)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 29.—(CP Cable)—Weary members of the British House of Commons at 12.25 p.m. Thursday, after a 32-hour session which began Wednesday afternoon. The Chamber was untidy with order papers and discarded manuscripts, and many commoners who had slept little in the session from the beginning were only barely awake.

And it was all because of a petty feud between Labor members and the Government of subjects that would ordinarily take little time.

When the House rose, with seven members still in evening dress, it adjourned until Monday. Friday afternoon assembly begin at 11.00 a.m. but the overlapping of last night's debate automatically put off Friday's sitting and incidentally wiped out intended submission of a private member's bill to increase motor benches.

The trouble began when J. H. Thomas, Colonial Secretary presented an estimate to cover the cost of a band of Hallans who had departed the Fascist Army in Italy's recent conquest of Ethiopia into the British Colony of Kenya. They had to be interned.

Obituary

The Late Edward H. Bale

Brighton, Ontario
(Supplied)

It was with profound regret and deep sorrow that the people of Brighton had learned of the death of one of their leading citizens in the person of Edward Henry Bale, which occurred on Wednesday morning, after a brief illness, departed this life on the morning of Friday, the 9th day of February, 1912, at his home in the Township of Brighton in the year 1859, where he had his home during his boyhood years and he completed his education in the public schools, College, Guelph, Ontario, at the age of 19 years. He became a resident of Brighton in 1881 and entered into business of selling farm implements and conducting a harness shop. He was married in 1882 to Miss Ada Pearce for upwards of 30 years.

In the winter of 1896 he was married to Beatrice Smith, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Smith. To them were born one son, Harold, now engaged in the mercantile business in Brighton, and one daughter, Carolyn, Mrs. G. A. L. Thorne, formerly of Brighton, now of Belleville. Mr. Bale was a member in full standing of the Methodist Church, serving on the different boards of St. Andrew's Church until the time of union, when he was consummated when he transferred his membership to Trinity Church, where he was a faithful steward.

The funeral service which was held at the late residence on Main St. on Monday, the 10th of February, at 2.30 p.m. was very kindly conducted by the Rev. G. W. Barrett, assisted by the Rev. W. J. Hicks, both of whom gave a very fine address of a large congregation.

Ed., as he was familiarly called, by his friends, was a Christian man, he was highly respected for his unassuming character and his generous heart. He was one who was always ready to help in the case of those who had not conveyances of their own and bring them to his car to church on Sunday and take them home again after the service.

Interment took place at Mount Pleasant cemetery, Brighton, and extend to the widow and children and three grandsons their deep sympathy in this their hour of sorrow.

INDIA'S WIDOWS BEG FOR LIVING

Death Preferable in Many Cases, Says Priest Recently in Benares

Montreal, Feb. 29.—(CP)—A narrow street in Benares lined on both sides with child widows begging for food, constitutes a sight to cause return to their "in-laws" with a record of cruel treatment received from life in India described to members of the Catholic Women's League here by Miss Isabel Beaudin. Father Beaudin visited Benares during the course of the Empress of Britain.

Commenting on the fact the All-India National Congress recently voted against the abolition of the child marriage system, Father Beaudin expressed hope that with such suffering children should be approved by a gathering which included a number of women of India.

The custom of suttee — widows casting themselves on the funeral pyres of their husbands was still practised, though outlawed by British Rule, Father Beaudin said. The number of child widows were so filled with hardship that many women preferred death.

The gunboat was ordered to proceed to the spot by Minister of Commerce White.

The steamer damaged property and looted a number of homes, the reports said.

Manus Island lies north of Cape York Peninsula.

CLAIM OLDEST TWINS' TITLE

Elora, Ont., Feb. 29.—(CP)—Matthew Smellie of Elora wants it known that if any twins in Canada are going around claiming to be the oldest set in the Dominion, he and his brother Jack of Edmonton, are right up in the running.

Matthew said he and Jack were 83 years old February 9th, which means these three year old twins of Stanley Chesbrough of Windsor and his twin Nugent of Montreal, who claimed honors were well up the top so far as Canada's oldest twins go.
